with Mike Lundgren

Motorcycle riding in northwestern Minnesota during April can be a very precarious pastime.

Long before the disappearance of the year's last snowmobilers, the rabid cyclist is out dodging the ice sheets on Main avenue while contributing to his doctor's frost bite research fund.

With the temperature climbing upwards of a record setting 36 degrees, the bike enthusiasts bundle up in their varied paraphernalia consisting of the "ole man's" World War II field jacket, sister Jane's best wool sweater and mother's scarf for a two minute ride before coming back to slip on that snowmobile suit.

One of the more important pieces of equipment a cycle rider possesses is his helmet; ranging from the old high school football helmet to the full racing type which makes him resemble Sir Lancelot on his gallant steed.

A must for high-speed riding is a bubble or window for the helmet. A device which works like a charm at 25 miles per hour but tends to resemble London at midnight as it fogs up going thirty.

There can not be a more desolate feeling for the motorcycle rider than to look out the window and see that beloved cycle, capable of going 120 mph, become encrusted in a late season snowstorm.

The cycle rider is indeed the peacock of humanity as he winds the engine past the red line on his tachometer going by a corner-full of female admirers, gracefully missing second gear.

The cherished accomplishment of a bike rider is the block-long "wheely", which is the art of lifting the front wheel of the cycle off the pavement and maintain your balance on the back wheel alone without ending up on your back with the 350-pound bike on top of you.

Frustrating enough, the "wheely" is best performed just as the gang turns to watch the little old lady trying to parallel park around the corner. In the same respect, the most embarrassing situation occurs when the rider has attracted everyone's attention with his loud antics at the stop light as he plans to "peel out" only to kill the thing on the green light.

Pushing a bike away from an intersection is no easy trick for the proud driver who somehow managed to pick himself up from the street after "wipping out" and walk away as if nothing had happened.

Cyclists face many more problems on the road than a driver of an automobile since the car owners seemingly don't believe motorcycles exist.

It's sometimes hard to keep the bike on the road without gas in the tank and it's sometimes hard to get gas in the tank. A station attendent does not match the record ten-second gallop to the pumps to service 50 cents worth of premium.

Cycles riders are a rare breed to be sure and we've just joined the gang. Next thing on the agenda is to find a leather jacket with a picture of a chicken on the back.

Changes Made In LHS Schedules

A few changes have been made in the spring sports schedules for the Prowler athletic teams, it was announced last week.

One of the changes will find Jim Sims' track crew taking part in an Invitational meet April 27 at Crookston beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Smelt Should Be Running Heavily By End Of Month

Smelt should be running heavily along northshore streams near Duluth by the end of April, according to Herbert Jensen, superintendent at the area fisheries headquarters in Two Harbors.

The catch of the silvery little fish by fishermen in the Duluth area began late this year because of heavy ice conditions.

Fishermen along the Lester, Talmage, French and Sucker rivers report the streams to be opening, though not yet entirely free of ice.

Area fisheries biologist Dick Hassinger cautions that day-to-day smelt conditions will vary during the run. This will depend not so much on temperature as on storms coming out of the northwest. Smelt are not hardy swimmers and will not enter river mouths to spawn if the water is rough.

Fishermen outside the Duluth area, wanting precise, up to the minute information on smelting conditions should call (218) 727-0048 or 722-5501.

Photographic Safari

Jerome J. Knap and Peter Moss, are leaving for a photographic safari and explain how others may be included in traveling with their group. The following is written by Jerome Knap.

"I am organizing and co-leading a photographic safari to the wildlife-rich Luongwa Valley of Zambia, central Africa. Besides photography and game-viewing, the safari will offer opportunities for fishing. This is a 21-day, all expenses paid, trip limited to 20 persons. I hope to organize a similar safari on an annual basis.

My partner in this venture is Peter Moss, a former game ranger for 11 years with the Zambia national parks. Mr. Moss knows the country, the wildlife, and the people well, and speaks all of the major native tongues.

Some of my newspaper columnist friends have already stated their intention of writing a column about how sportsmen can lengthen their hunting season by switching to a camera after the gun season has ended.

If you would like any additional information or more brochures, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Twins' Bat Day Set May 9

'Bat Day', always a prime attraction for the small-fry on the home schedule of the Minnesota Twins, is set for Sunday, May 9, this year, when the Twins will take on Ted Williams and his colorful Washington Senators at Metropolitan Stadium.

Begun seven years ago, Bat Day has proven to be an overwhelming success with youthful baseball fans of the upper midwest area. Banner crowds, consisting mainly of youngsters, can annually be expected to pack the Met to take advantage of the free Louisville Slugger official little league bats that are passed out, free of charge, at the turnstiles on Bat Day.

As in past years, the bats will be distributed on the basis of one to each adult who attends the game accompanied by one or more children, 16 years of age or younger. It's emphasized, though, that no more than one bat can be given to any individual adult, regardless of how many children he or she might have with him.

Noise Greatest Complaint Along Busy Highways

What do property owners living close to highways complain of most? Litter? Fumes? Landscapes? Traffic hazards?

No, it is none of these. Noise is the source of most complaints, reports the highway research board, national research council.

Titled the "Effect of Highway Landscape Development on Nearby Property," the report is based on studies made by [illegible] Brinton Jr., and Joel N. Bloom of Franklin institute research laboratories and was sponsored by the American association of state highway officials in cooperation with the federal highway administration.

The researchers concluded that although new highways can be depressed or elevated to partially reduce noise levels (funds permitting) the best solution to the problem remains to reduce levels at the source, especially for existing highways with little elevation or depression relative to adjacent properties. Quieter truck mufflers and tires would probably hasten the acceptability of highways to adjacent property owners, the report concludes.

Dr. Richard Koppenhaver, North Central Conference Commissioner headquartered in Minneapolis, was an all conference quarterback for the Sioux in 1952. He also lettered in basketball.

INTEREST among snowmobilers and non-snowmobilers alike was drawn to the Arctic Enterprises turbine-powered snowmobile at the boat, sports and travel show Friday through Sunday. The sleek machine holds the 1971 world record for snowmobiles of 125.87 miles per hour and was driven by Dale Cormican.

At 11:00 A.M. the Board proceeded to open bids as advertised and called for, as follows:

A report entitled 'A Comprehensive Plan for Regional Jailing and Juvenile Detention in Minnesota' was before the Board for its consideration. Sheriff Richards and City Police Chief Waller were present to discuss the matter with the Board. The Regional Jail concept appeared to meet with general approval but the other proposals relative to local lockups, communications network, detection facilities and law enforcement training appeared to be far afield from what could be accepted. The matter was taken under advisement.

Commissioner Tase introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, A search of the records available in the Courthouse in Pennington County reveals that pipelines contribute a great deal toward the development and growth of the County through its own investments as well as related industries, and

WHEREAS it would appear to be in the best interest of all that crude oil pipelines be allowed the right of eminent domain as set forth in bills now before the Legislature in H.F. 1389 and S.F. 1110 and as enjoyed by other utility lines,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That this resolution indicating the mind of the Board be transmitted to Representatives Skeer and Fitzsimons and Senator Sinclair.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Henson and declared carried.

The proposed Northwestern Mental Health program was reviewed by Director Roy Waters and H. M. Lindquist of the staff. The total proposed budget for the year amounted to $246,930.00 with the participating counties furnishing $98,322.00 based on population. Pennington County share was estimated to be $13,690.00 with a possible reduction to $12,340.00 depending upon State participation. The matter was taken under advisement.

The sum of $3,660.37 was appropriated to be paid the Department of Corrections for Probation Services for the period July 1 to Dec. 31, 1970. Motion carried.

Moved by Henson seconded by Stenberg that an agreement with St. Louis County for Board and Room of prisoners at the St. Louis County Work Farm be renewed at a cost of $10.50 per day per person. (Last year the rate was $6.75) Motion carried.

Moved by Olson seconded by Henson that a County Attorney Contingency Fund be set aside for use of the County Attorney to be dispensed by verified claim approved by District Court. Motion carried.

After call for a second to the motion the Acting Chairman Olson declared the motion lost for lack of a second.

Chairman Anderson then took back the Chairmanship.

It was then moved by Olson seconded by Henson that the Engineer and Auditor be instructed to call for bids for black topping of SA No. 22 (Mavie road), black topping SA No. 28 (Grygla road) and grading SA No. 10 (Ridge road) at 11:00 A.M., June 8, 1971. Motion carried.

Prowlers Gain Experience At Dragon Invitational

Jim Sims' Lincoln high school Prowler track squad participated in its second large invitational track meet Wednesday night and, although finishing well back in the pack, again gained valuable experience.

The Prowlers competed in the Dragon Indoor in the Alex Nemzek fieldhouse and finished with three points as 41 teams ran in the event.

Moorhead repeated as the team champion in the sixth annual event with 34 1-3 points. Fargo South was second with 26 points while Wahpeton and Mahnomen shared third with 12 points each. The Prowlers finished with three points in the meet where all athletes were limited to one event plus a relay.

"We're not overly pleased with our performance," said coach Sims. "We felt we could have done better although it is a tough track to run," Sims related, "but again it was good experience for us that will pay off in the long run."

Top performance turned in by a Prowler runner was Mike Fitzgerald's 56-second effort in the 440. Fitzgerald tied with two other runners for third in the event but lost both flips of a coin for a medal.

Doug Aaseby ran an 8.2 for the Prowlers in the 60-yard lows and Jon Wangberg was clocked at 8.8 in the 60-yard high hurdles.

Jerry Johnson of Moorhead set a new fieldhouse record with a 7.3 in the 60 high's as Moorhead won its second title in three indoor meets this season. The Spuds earlier won the Outstate crown at the University of Minnesota and finished second by two points to Sioux Falls in the Shanley Invitational at NDSU.

Paul Bottleson ran 2:09.2 in the 880 for the Prowlers while Kim Murphy turned in a 4:58 mile and Markoe Hanson ran a 6.7 in the 60-yard dash.

In the field events Jeff Rhoden went out at 5'8" in the high jump while Jon Markstrom recorded at jump of 17'10 ¾" in the long jump. The Prowler sprint relay team of Steve Belch, Wangberg, Fitzgerald and Hanson clocked a 68.2.

Need Of Support For Wildlife

Natural resource commissioner Robert. Herbst indicated that Minnesota's wildlife needs help in discussing a set back in the state senate of a bill that would provide increased funds for wildlife land acquisition.

The department is supporting an increase in the wildlife land acquisition surcharge from the present $1 to $2. The surcharge has been a part of all small game hunting licenses sold in the state since 1957. The department is supporting a 10 year extension of the program to 1982.

At a senate hearing last week, the committee cut the request back to $1 and the time limit to 1975.

"The 10 year, $2 program is being supported overwhelmingly by the Minnesota Conservation federation and other sportsmen groups across the state," Herbst said. "With anything less than that, we are going to fall further and further behind on the program—a program that benefits all wildlife and all citizens."

He stressed the fact that while the program has been considered by some to be a waterfowl habitat acquisition project, it is in fact, "a multiple purpose program designed to preserve important habitat for many kinds of wildlife and for such uses as public hunting and trapping, conservation of surface waters, preservation of natural beauty and open spaces, lands for photographers, birdwatchers, students, scouts, hikers and naturalists.

"Among the wildlife forms besides waterfowl that benefit from such a program," he added, "are pheasants, prairie grouse, songbirds, shorebirds, mink, muskrat, beaver, deer, moose and fish—not to mention amphibians," Herbst said.

He said that the present $1 surcharge has provided funds for acquisition of thousands of acres of wildlife lands and must not be undersold.

"However, under the present funding, we are at best, running as fast as we can just to keep in place," he said. "We need at least $400,000 just to exercise the options we are already holding."

The commissioner pointed out that while the acquisition program was preserving 217,000 acres in wetlands projects, various draining operations in the state were creating over 90,000 miles of ditches.

"I realize that drainage is often a necessary part of land development, but too often little thought has been given to what such projects do both to wildlife and to the water table," he said.

Herbst asked sportsmen and citizens concerned for wildlife to let their legislature know that they support the 10 year, $2 surcharge for wildlife land acquisition.

Three LHS Runners Place In Sioux Indoor Meet

Moorhead high school track team flexed its muscles once again Saturday in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse to win its second straight indoor track title of the season as the powerful Spuds repeated as the Sioux Indoor champs by a wide margin over second place Grand Forks Red River.

Thief River Falls placed three individuals and scored 8½ points to finish tied with Bemidji for eighth place in the final team standings. Moorhead won the team title with 46½ points, followed by Grand Forks Red River with 25, Grand Forks Central 17, Cando 13, Bagley 11, Hillsboro 10½, Fargo Shanley 8½ and Bemidji and Thief River Falls.

Team captain Paul Battleson placed third in the 880-yard dash with what coach Jim Sims called "a pretty fine half mile." Battleson ran the event in 2:04.3 to finish behind Moorhead's Dan Smith who set a new meet record with a 2:03.3 in the event. Smith's record setting run bettered the previous record by three-tenths of a second.

Another Prowler runner, Mike Fitzgerald, tied for fourth place in the 440-yard dash with a time of 55.8 seconds. Kevin Larson paced the 440 with a 53.8 as Fitzgerald tied with Al Methues of East Grand Forks.

Jim Gravelin of Moorhead captured the 60-yard dash crown with a 6.5 while the Prowlers' Markoe Hanson placed fourth in the event with a time of 6.6.

"We're real pleased the the times and performances of the three boys who placed," said Sims, "but the rest of the squad ran just so-so, we are improving through and the next couple of weeks will tell us a lot about our team," he said.

Moorhead captured seven first places and a second in the Sioux meet as the Spuds trailed Central through the morning's four field events, 8½ to 15 before capturing the 60-yard dash, the 440, the 60 highs, the 60 lows and the 880 in succession to win easily.

Other first place finishes in the Sioux Indoor were:

Shot put, Dan Gwyn, Fosston, 49-4; long jump, Scott Horner, Moorhead, 20-1¾; high jump, Bob Rossow, GF Central, 5-11; pole vault, Geno Petch, GF Central, 12-5; mile relay, Moorhead, 3:38.1; mile run, Harvey Jore, Cando, 4:35.8 (new record); 60-yard dash, Jim Gravelin, Moorhead, 6.5; 440-yard dash, Kevin Larson, Moorhead, 53.8; 60-yard high hurdles, Jerry Johnson, Moorhead, 7.4 (new record); 60-yard lows, Jerry Johnson, Moorhead, 7.1; 880-yard dash, Dan Smith, Moorhead, 2:03.3.

Next action for the Prowler track squad will be tomorrow, Tuesday, when they will take part in the Crookston Indoor along with Crookston, Roseau and East Grand Forks. The meet at Crookston will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Don McLean, University of North Dakota Senior linebacker in 1970 who was named to the Associated Press All America grid team last fall, is a licensed airplane pilot. He has a commercial license.

John (Gino) Gasparini, University of North Dakota junior varsity hockey coach, lettered three seasons (1965-68) as a center.

LHS Opens Tennis Season Tomorrow

Tennis anyone?

The Lincoln high school Prowlers will open their tennis season tomorrow (Tuesday) when they travel to Ada to take on the Vikings in a 3 p.m. match.

Head coach Whitey Olson has been working with 12 candidates, including six seniors, two juniors and four sophomores. Five lettermen are on this year's squad.

"We expect to have some good matches this season," said Olson, "and we have what could be called a top doubles team in the region with Mark Thyren and Stuart Waltonen."

Thyren and Waltonen are a pair of senior lettermen who played together last year. "The other three teams in the region that gave them trouble last year have graduated so we should be a strong team in that position," Olson stated.

"The team's success will depend on Mark Liden in the number one singles," Olson reported. Liden is a junior letter winner who placed fourth in the region last year. Olson thinks Liden has the ability to win it all this season if his knee, operated on during basketball season, holds up.

A battle for the number two and three singles is shaping up between seniors Don Bren, Gordy Delap, Tom Nepper and Gordy Prichard along with junior letterman Craig Knutson.

Sophomores fighting for positions include Jeff Wendt, Mike Engen, Scott Stuart and Dave Forney.

Seven home matches are on tap for the Prowlers this season with the first one set for Monday, April 26, against East Grand Forks. All home matches for the Prowlers will begin at 3 p.m. on the high school courts.

The complete high school tennis schedule for the 1970-71 season is as follows:

April 20, at Ada; 22, at Crookston; 26, EAST GRAND FORKS; 28, at Bemidji; 29, MAHNOMEN; 30, FERTILE.

May 3, GRAND FORKS CENTRAL; 4, Northwest Conference at Bemidji; 7, CROOKSTON; 10, at Grand Forks Central; 12, MAHNOMEN; 13, at East Grand Forks; 17, double dual against Valley City and Detroit Lakes at Detroit Lakes; 19, ADA; 21, BEMIDJI; 25, at Fertile 26, district 31 meet.

June 4, region eight meet at Bemidji or East Grand Forks.

What's in a name? Murray Wing, a sophomore from Thunder Bay, Ont., is a defenseman on the 1970-71 University of North Dakota hockey team.

Changes Proposed In Food Stamp Program

Some 223 families currently in the food stamp program in Pennington county may be affected by proposed new regulations in the food stamp act, according to Ron Mooers, head of the county welfare department.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture last Thursday proposed new regulations for its food stamp program to implement amendments to the food stamp act enacted in public law 91-671.

Along with the proposed regulations, the USDA also announced national uniform income eligibility standards and new issuance tables which spell out how much participants pay for their food stamp allotments.

Eligibility for the food stamp program will be determined according to uniform national standards set by the secretary of agriculture. Monthly maximum income eligibility levels are $160 for a one-person household, $210 for two persons, $293 for three persons, $360 for four persons, $427 for five persons, and up to $600 monthly for eight people. Above eight persons, $53 additional is allowed per person.

The standards apply to all households, including those receiving public assistance.

Resources other than income, such as savings accounts, negotiable securities and certain property, would be limited to $1,500 per household, plus an additional $1,500 for households of two or more containing a member 65 years of age or over.

Excluded from resources are the value of such items as a home, household goods, car, personal effects, cash value of life insurance policies, income-producing property, and tools and machinery essential to self-support.

However, resources would include such other types of nonliquid assets as buildings, land, or other real or personal property, at fair market value.

Allotments of food stamps would continue to be geared to cost of the economy diet, with the amount of money paid by households not to exceed 30 per cent of income. There would be

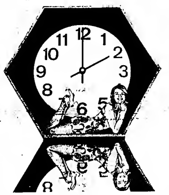
Firemen Answer Several Calls; Vehicle Damaged

Four grass and brush fires, three of them outside the Thief River Falls city limits, kept the municipal fire department busy Saturday afternoon. Two of the fires occurred within 15 minutes of each other.

In another incident, firemen were called to extinguish a fire in a furnace motor at 609 N. Knight last Friday afternoon.

In what could have become a tragic fire, according to the Thief River Falls fire chief, a carelessly discarded cigarette caught in the exterior wall of a building at 110 N. LaBree, but the fire was extinguished before any serious damage could result.

Firemen were summoned at 3:55 p.m. Tuesday afternoon when a car caught fire in front of Penney's auto center on Third street. The fire was serious enough that the car had to be towed away.



DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME will officially begin at 2 a.m. Sunday, providing an extra hour of daylight for recreational pursuits. Area residents are reminded to set their clocks ahead one hour before they retire Saturday night in order to be in step with the rest of the state and nation. The lost hour of sleep will be made up on October 31—the last Sunday in October—in accordance with federal regulations. And while Daylight Saving Time is gaining more acceptance, there are still those who like it and those who don't.

Art Show Open Here In May

Tenth annual high school art show will be open to the public May 1 and 2 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the cafeteria at Lincoln high school.

The exhibit consists of art work done during the 1970-71 school year by Lincoln art students. The work varies from realism to abstraction and from drawings to sculpture in a wide range of media. Coffee will be served.

HONEY SUNDAY will be promoted in Thief River Falls this week as a project of the local Jaycees to aid Minnesota's retarded children. Bruce Trager, left, co-chairman of the campaign with Paul Wold, checks his list as volunteer Don Loeb picks up a supply for sales. The plastic bottles of Minnesota honey will be sold this Sunday on a door-to-door basis by the local Jaycees. Part of the funds will be used to add to a building at Camp Friendship and other funds will aid local programs for the retarded. Last year the Thief River Falls chapter was among the top chapters in the state in honey sales.

'71 Heart Fund Collects $1,239 In Pennington

Lowell Anderson, state Heart Fund chairman, has announced that returns from the 1971 Heart Fund campaign to date in Pennington county total $1,239 which represents approximately 61 per cent of the county's goal of $2,030.

"The research allocations committee of the Minnesota Heart association recently recommended that we increase our research funds by 15 per cent this year," he said. "If we are to raise the necessary funds for this increase, it is important that all county volunteers complete their assignments as soon as possible and deposit their funds so that final tabulations can be recorded."

Kilen Sheep Enterprise Includes 450 Ewe Flock

by Marvin Landin
Times Editor

When mention is made of a shepherd and his flock, the mind's eye image created is that of an elderly man with a hooked staff, sitting serenely on a large rock while his sheep graze contentedly around him. Tranquility seems to be the dominant feeling brought to mind.

Roger Kilen of rural Middle River might well disagree with that idealistic mind's eye view. He is a young shepherd of 430 ewes and, in the extra-busy spring lambing season, the scene on the Kilen farm is anything but restful.

Roger believes that it should be possible to make money raising sheep, and he has disposed of his dairy herd in favor of expanding his flock of ewes. This year he has reached his maximum point on numbers and will put more concentration on improving his flock.

Kilen's operation is unique in that he has undertaken to raise sheep on a large scale with a planned program and only family labor. Shearing time is the only time when help is hired—and that is also lambing time.

Three Lamb Crops

Under Roger's plan, a controlled breeding program produces three groups of lambs each spring. With the building facilities which he has, he can handle about 150 ewes in any one lambing period. Breeding is planned to result in one crop of lambs from 150 ewes in March, another 150 ewes in April and a third group in May.

So far, with a lot of work and determination and no little amount of knowledge, he has made the system work.

Roger has lived on his present farm 13 miles east and one mile south of Middle River all his life and has been operating it by himself since 1957. He bought 320 acres in 1966 and now farms 880 acres. In addition, he leases some pasture from Agassiz National Wildlife refuge, which borders his farm on the west.

"We always had sheep on the place," Kilen recalls. "My Dad kept a flock and I built up a flock of my own. You might say I was raised with them, so I guess working with them comes kind of natural. And now that I'm getting to the point where I want to be with my sheep, I think I prefer them to dairy cattle."

Careful Choice Of Set-Aside Acres Is Advised

Pennington county farmers enrolled in the feed grain and wheat programs are being reminded that the acreage set aside under each program should be as productive as the acreage normally used to produce the crop.

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee, suggested that producers check with the county ASC office as soon as possible if they have any doubt about their proposed set-aside acreage meeting the qualifications.

Knutson pointed out that at the time producers come in to the county office to certify their set-aside acreage, they must specify precisely where the set-aside acreage is located. Final date for certification is July 15.

After a producer has certified, if a mistake if found in his set-aside acreage he could lose some or all of his farm program payment.

"A farmer who is not quite sure whether his set-aside meets all requirements would be well advised to check with the county ASCS office ahead of time. Also, he can request measurement service, which, if followed, will give him a guarantee that he has enough set-aside acreage. Measurement service is offered by the county ASCS office at cost," Knutson said.

Producers in the voluntary feed grain and wheat programs for 1971 set aside a percentage of their land to conserving uses, and will also maintain their farm's conserving base acreage. On the rest of their acreage they may plant as much feed grain and wheat, or any other crop they choose.

Pollution Agency Receives City's Permit Proposal

City of Thief River Falls has applied to the Minnesota pollution control agency for issuance of a construction and operation permit under Minnesota statutes, 1969, chapters 115 and 116, for a sewage disposal system for the municipal airport to be located in the NW ¼ of the NE ¼ of section 21, Rocksbury township, Pennington county, and the discharge of an effluent therefrom to a county ditch and thence to the Red Lake river.

The application is on file in the pollution control office and available for review by any interested person during normal business hours.

The application indicates that the project will consist of a two-cell stabilization pond system having a total surface area of approximately 1.5 acres and a detention time of approximately 240 days. The effluent at design maximum will amount to about 6,750 gallons per day of treated wastewater.

The applicable water and effluent quality standards are set forth in regulations WPC 14 and 23, copies of which are available for purchase from the Documents Section, Minnesota Department of Administration, 140 Centennial Building, Capitol Complex, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Interested parties are invited to submit to the pollution control office written statements of facts, arguments or objections concerning the project. The statements primarily should refer to the adequacy of the project with regard to avoidance of water pollution and possible conflicts between the discharge of the effluent and any actual or potential uses of the waters, involved or other environmental impact, and suggest any appropriate changes in the project which may be deemed desirable from this viewpoint.

All statements should be addressed to the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, Division of Water Quality, 717 Delaware Street S.E., Oak Street Station, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55440, and mailed so as to be received by not later than May 6.

Grygla Plans Rabies Clinic

Rabies clinic will be sponsored by the village of Grygla on Wednesday, April 28, starting at 7 p.m. near the post office in that village. Dr. Larson of Greenbush will administer rabies shots to dogs at a cost of $3 per animal.

Mayor Ralph Klein of Grygla has encouraged all dog owners to bring their dogs to the clinic.

ROGER KILEN is a shepherd with a big job on his hands. Getting this personal with a little lamb is a rare situation, since he is usually too busy caring for the needs of his 430 ewe flock. He plans to stabilize his flock at 450 ewes, lambing 150 animals each in March, April and May.

Charles Kotasko, who recently retired as manager of the association, was presented with gifts from the association and from Farmers Union Grain Terminal association.

25th Anniversary Observed By The Gordon Phelpses

Approximately 100 relatives and friends gathered recently at the Gordon Phelps home at Goodridge to help them celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

The event was hosted by their children, who were all present and participated in the open house activities. The couple's daughter, Mrs. Richard (Eileen) Glonzer of Pierre, S.D., served the punch and poured the coffee. The sons: Virgil, who is stationed with the United States Navy in San Diego, Calif., greeted the guests, Eldon and Gayle, opened and recorded the gifts, and Robert, presided at the guest book.

Centering the serving table was a floral centerpiece, a gift from the children. Fern greenery surrounded the punch bowl and the square, four-tiered anniversary cake topped with a 25th anniversary symbol. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Raymond Molskness of Thief River Falls and was cut and served by Mrs. J. Duane Nelson. Miss Debbie Vennes of Thief River Falls served the gelatine salad.

Among the guests attending were the couple's son-in law, Richard Glonzer of Pierre, S.D., and their only grandchild, Melodie Joy Glonzer.

The couple received many gifts and cards. Among them were gifts from Mrs. Phelps's mother, Mrs. Margaret Asp of New Richmond, Wis., and from Mr. and Mrs. David Imrie, also of New Richmond. Mrs. Imrie was bridesmaid at the wedding 25 years ago.

Relatives and friends attending the open house celebration were from San Diego, Calif.; Pierre, S.D., Goodridge, Newfolden, Strandquist and the Thief River Falls area.

One-Car Mishaps Damage Autos, Sheriff Reports

Three car accidents took place in Pennington county in the last week, all of them involving only one car, according to County Sheriff C. R. Richards.

Last Thursday at 4:30 p.m. Robin May Dgata lost control of the 1969 Pontiac she was driving as she entered an "S" curve on county road 77 one-half mile north of Thief River Falls. The car spun around and came to rest in the yard of the Harvey Hemmestvedt residence.

While attempting April 20 to pull off county road 63 six miles north of Thief River Falls, a car driven by Arlys Adamson and owned by Delray Gilbertson, the passenger, from Newfolden, rolled over as a tire sank in the soft shoulder. Damage to the 1967 car was about $500.

Also on April 20, a car driven by Evan W. Mapes of St. Hilaire and owned by Conrod Skyberg of Grygla hit a bridge southeast of St. Hilaire and was totally destroyed. There were no injuries in the accident, however.

Bicycle Safety Needs Stressing Again This Year

"With the advent of spring weather and outdoor activities, thousands of new and old bicycles are again appearing on our streets and highways," Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

"And with this first sudden spurt comes a rash of riders who have not yet learned or have forgotten the principles of bicycle safety.

"Last year 19 people, mostly children, died in bicycle-vehicle collisions. In practically 100 per cent of the cases, the deaths were avoidable, and the fault of the cyclist.

"Two of the main causes of these deaths were riding on the wrong side of the street and riding at night without proper lights.

"Minnesota laws clearly state that cyclists must ride on the right side of the street, as close to the edge as possible. Cyclists, unlike pedestrians, must never ride facing traffic.

"Also, cyclists on improperly equipped vehicles at night are inviting injury or death. Every bicycle operated at night or during other hours of poor visibility must be equipped with a headlight and a red reflector on the rear. If a person does much night riding, a lighted tail lamp should be mounted.

"Of prime concern at this time of year are those youngsters who received bikes for Christmas and are riding for the first time. It is the responsibility of parents to properly instruct these children in safety before they are allowed to ride the cycle.

"Though most elementary schools conduct bicycle safety courses during the late spring months, principals are encouraged to hold them as early as possible. We all know that the first nice days will bring them out, often before they have had proper training."

Meat Plants In State To Have U.S. Inspection

Meat plants operating wholly within Minnesota will be subject to federal inspection effective May 16, the U.S. department of agriculture announced today.

The action is being taken because the state has not developed a satisfactory meat inspection program of its own, officials of USDA's consumer and marketing service explained. After reviewing the state's inspection program earlier this year, and finding it not equal to the federal one, C&MS announced its intent to place Minnesota's 162 intrastate plants under federal inspection.

C&MS then surveyed each of these plants to determine inspection staffing needs. Inspection supervisors have since been working with plant operators explaining the details of inspection and helping them plan changes needed to bring their plants, facilities and operations into compliance with Federal inspection regulations.

C&MS officials explained that these actions result from requirements of the federal meat inspection act, which gave each state two years to establish a meat inspection system at least equal to the federal one.

It authorized USDA to grant a one-year extension to any state showing significant progress toward meeting the requirements, and Minnesota was among the states granted such an extension. The act requires that USDA place under federal inspection plants in any state which did not have a satisfactory program in effect Dec. 15, 1970.

Minnesota is the third state in which USDA has had to assume meat inspection responsibility. North Dakota's intrastate meat plants were placed under Federal inspection last June, and Montana's will be April 27.

Official notice of today's action on Minnesota will be published in the Federal Register April 15.

Propose Changes In Food Stamp Program Benefit

no payment required from one and two-person households with income under $20 per month, or from all other households with incomes under $30.

Under the new law participants may elect to have their payments for food stamps deducted regularly from money they get under any federally-aided public assistance program.

Households would also be able to elect, at time of issuance, to receive three-quarters, one-half, or one-quarter of their monthly food stamp allotment, with their payment adjusted accordingly. If a family chooses less than its full allotment during any purchase period, it would not be permitted to return later for the balance for that period.

The monthly food stamp allotment for a one person household would be $32, $60 for two persons, $106 for four persons, and $148 for six persons.

In determining elegibility for the program and the amount of money the eligible household is to pay (purchase requirement) for its allotment of food stamps, a net income figure is determined by deducting certain "hardship" allowances from the total money coming into the household.

The proposed regulations would permit deductions for shelter costs that exceed 30 per cent of income, medical payments in excess of $10 per month, and child care costs necessary for a household member to accept or continue employment, and unusual expenses resulting from disaster or other casualty losses.

Payments on business related land or equipment by the self-employed would not be deductible, nor would educational expenses of students.

All members of a household under 60 years of age must be related by blood or legal relationship sanctioned by state law in order for the household to be eligible for food stamps.

Foster, adopted and other children under 18 years may be in the household. An unrelated roomer or boarder is not considered part of the household, and will not disqualify the household from the food stamp program.

No household would be alloted food stamps if it has a member over 18 years old who is claimed as a dependent for federal income tax purposes by a member of another household which itself is not eligible for either food stamps or USDA donated foods.

The proposed regulations set work registration as part of the application process and subsequent recertifications for food stamps, if the household has an able-bodied member between 18 and 65, unless the member is responsible for caring for children under 18 or incapacitated adults, a student enrolled at least half time in any school or training program recognized by any federal, state, or local agency, or is working at least 30 hours per week.

The work registration form is to be forwarded by the food stamp certification office to the state or federal employment office for the area.

For householders to be eligible for stamps, the registered number of members of the household must cooperate in seeking work, and accept employment of a type and in a location reasonably consistent with physical and mental fitness, with consideration of transportation costs and commuting time, and at wages that are the highest of applicable federal and state minimum regulations, but in no case at less than $1.30 per hour.

The registrant would not be required to join, resign from, or refrain from joining any recognized labor organization as a condition of employment, nor accept work offered at a site which is undergoing a strike or lockout.

Elderly participants who are so disabled or feeble that they cannot adequately prepare all of their own meals, may use food stamps to pay for meals delivered to them by non-profit meal services if available.

The delivery services would be authorized to redeem stamps by USDA's food and nutrition service similarly to retailers and wholesalers.

The proposed regulations also contain provisions aimed at eliminating abuses of the program. In addition to the new household definition and the tax dependency requirement, mandatory "quality control" plans are to be part of each state's food stamp plan of operation.

Misuse of "authorization to purchase" cards (the document households get when certified for participation) is to be subject to the same penalties as unauthorized issuance and use of the food stamp coupons themselves.

The new regulations would also modify the present "fair hearing" procedures so that applicants who are improperly denied benefits and subsequently gain them at a hearing receive credit at state expense toward their purchase requirement to the extent that benefits were denied, and that households overcharged because of improper certification receive cash payments.

New Phone Books To Be Delivered Through The Mail

Thief River Falls telephone customers soon will be receiving their new phone books in the mail, according to D. L. Lindquist, Northwestern Bell Telephone company manager.

Cover of the directory features a painting of the Minnesota state bird, the common loon, by noted Minnesota wildlife artist Leslie G. Kaube.

In addition to Thief River Falls, the new directory will contain listings for Baudette, Crookston, Euclid, Roseau and Warroad in the alphabetical and classified sections and for Badger, Beltrami, Holt, Malung-Wannaska, Middle River, Newfolden, Roosevelt, St. Hilaire, Viking, Williams and Rainy River, Ontario, Canada, in the alphabetical section.

Because of new listings and some other changes, Lindquist urged customers to discard their old directory as soon as the new one arrives.

Dialing instructions, area codes, long distance information and rates, party line usage and other general telephone information are covered in the call guide portion in the front of the new book as well as listings for local emergency numbers, telephone service numbers, Zip codes and other postal information.

Civic and historical information about Thief River Falls and a map of the community are also included.

"We recommend that each customer determine the emergency numbers that apply in his area and write the proper numbers in the blank space provided on the inside front cover," he said. "Space is also provided on the inside rear cover where customers may list frequently called local and long distance numbers."

"Another helpful hint is for customers to place a check mark or underline a number the first time they look it up in the directory," he said. "Then when they have occasion to look it up again, it will be easier to spot."

Lindquist said the new directory has 10,977 listings in the alphabetical sections and 3,021 yellow page listings. Some 16,032 copies of the directory will be distributed initially.

In all, Northwestern Bell will produce 40 directories covering 128 Bell-served and 15 independent telephone communities in Minnesota, printing more than 3.2 million copies this year.

Unemployment In State Continues Upward Climb

Seasonally adjusted March unemployment rate in Minnesota was 5.1 per cent, up 0.2 percentage points from February, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of manpower services said today.

This compares with a national unemployment rate of 6 per cent for March, also up 0.2 percentage points from February.

Cushing said the number of unemployed in Minnesota last month was the highest for March since 1961. In March, 1961, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 6.1 per cent and 117,000 persons in the labor force were without jobs. In March 1971, the total number of jobless was 101,400.

The 2.6 per cent increase over February, when unemployment totalled 98,800, followed the national trend. Normally Minnesota can expect a slight seasonal drop in the unemployment rate from February to March, Cushing said.

Nonfarm wage and salary employment in Minnesota was up slightly from February to a total of 1,270,500 in March. The small increase of 200 jobs compares unfavorably with the average monthly rise of 10,300 jobs from February to March during the last five years.

Compared with a year ago, nonfarm employment dropped despite a rise of 4,100 workers in nonmanufacturing industries. The drop in manufacturing compared with March, 1970, was a sharp 29,100.

Cushing said approximately 88 per cent of the decline in manufacturing employment from a year ago was in industries producing durable goods. Machinery manufacturing recorded significant decreases, with nonelectrical machinery down 6,800 and electrical machinery down 6,600. The category which includes ordnance and scientific instruments and miscellaneous industries was down 7,300.

Cushing said the 4,100 gain in employment from a year ago in nonmanufacturing industries was brought about by increases of 4,100 in government and 3,400 in Service industries. Most of the rise in government jobs was in the administrative and educational segments of local governmental units. Added jobs in hospitals and medical facilities were the main factor in the increase in employment in the service category.

Offsetting some of the gain in government and service industries were decreases from March 1970 of 1,000 in construction, 2,100 in transportation and 1,900 in trade. The 2,400 drop in retail trade was partially offset by an increase of 500 in wholesale trade.

In March, 1971, production workers in manufacturing earned an average of $148 per week for working 39.7 hours at $3.74 per hour. In February, average weekly earnings were $146 for 39.6 hours at $3.70 per hour. March was the seventh consecutive month in which the average workweek has been below 40 hours, Cushing said.

However, he said, compared with March of 1970, average weekly earnings advanced almost $8 in spite of an estimated decrease of half an hour in the production manufacturing workweek.

Conference On Poverty Slated For Bemidji

Representatives of health, education and welfare groups in a 12-county area will attend a regional conference on poverty and mental retardation on May 4 at Bemidji state college.

The 9:30 a.m. opening session will feature a video tape of an address by Rodger Hurley, author of the book, "Poverty and Mental Retardation: A Causal Relationship." The conference is one of 10 one-day regional conferences on poverty and mental retardation being held throughout Minnesota April 26-May 7. The interested public may attend.

In his book, Hurley describes how the effects of poverty can damage the child's brain both before and after birth. It also documents the failure of welfare and food assistance programs, schools and the medical profession to care for the poor.

The Minnesota regional conferences are being sponsored by the Minnesota Association for retarded children, state department of education, state department of public welfare, state office of economic opportunity and area mental health centers. Purpose of the meetings is to increase understanding of the relationship of poverty to retardation, to explore possible preventive measures, and to seek ways of ensuring that services for the mentally retarded are available to poor and non-poor alike.

Norman Cole, special education regional consultant, Red Lake Falls, is a member of the Region 2 planning committee.

Anyone interested in attending may register at the door at 9 a.m. There will be a registration fee of $2.75 to cover noon luncheon, forenoon and afternoon coffee and other expenses.

TRF Bank Debits Up 10 Per Cent From Year Ago

Bank debits in Thief River Falls during March showed an increase of 10 per cent from the same period a year ago, according to statistics released by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

In dollars Thief River Falls bank debits volume during March was $18,757,000. In the same month in 1970, the total figure was $17,085,000 in bank debits.

The cumulative 12-month percentage change of the last year has been five per cent, or $272,089,000. The cumulative percentage change from January through March of 1971 has, however, declined by 10 per cent, or $53,722,000.

For the entire state the March volume of bank debits for reporting cities increased 14 per cent from March of last year. Debits for the 12 months through March, 1971, increased eight per cent from the previous 12-month period.

Bank debits for the most part are checks against depositors' accounts and thus represent payment for goods, services, and debts. They also include all debits against checking accounts of individuals, partnerships, and corporations, and of states and political subdivisions. They do not include debits to the accounts of other banks, the United State government and saving accounts.

TRF Educators At Conference On Handicapped

Robert Ostazeski, James Fremstad, William Desrocher and Frank Hamerlinck from Thief River Falls schools attended a conference on educating handicapped children recently at Bemidji state college. More than 60 educators from northern Minnesota attended the conference.

The session was intended to plan and discuss a two-year, federally-funded project called Restructuring Education to Accommodate Children with Handicaps (REACH), and the conference itself was funded with Bemidji state planning funds for the project.

Educators from Bemidji state college, Range mental health center, University of Minnesota, state department of education and Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Kennedy, Brainerd, Moorhead, Thief River Falls, Virginia and Staples schools attended the conference.

REACH seeks to give leadership for improvement of the capabilities of schools to deal with handicapped children and to accomodate children more easily through design and development of education programs.

Moratorium Asked On Electric Plants

A coalition of environmental organizations and American Indians have asked for a moratorium on all federal action related to electric power developments they fear will devastate the heart of the scenic southwestern United States.

The Native American Rights fund, Environmental Defense fund and National Wildlife federation told Interior Secretary Rogers Morton a mammoth system of coal-fired power plants, strip mines, high voltage transmission lines and related developments seriously threaten the fabled Four Corners area of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

By 1985, an association of about 20 southwestern utilities plans to generate more than 36 million kilowatts of electricity in the Four Corners area to serve Phoenix, Tucson, Las Vegas, San Diego and Los Angeles.

The first plant of the system has been operating since 1964 at a site on the Navajo Indian reservation near Mesa Verde national park. It emits more particulate matter daily than New York City and Los Angeles combined. Four more plants are under construction and another in final planning stages.

Smoke from the first plant alone has covered up to 10,000 square miles and was the only man-made object visible in a 1966 photograph taken from Gemini 12 at an altitude of 170 miles.

When all six plants are in operation they will daily emit an estimated 200 tons of fly ash, 1,365 tons of sulphur oxides, and 1,000 tons of nitrogen oxides. The groups contend these emissions will blanket the Four Corners area with smog potentially hazardous to human health and the fragile desert ecology.

They contend too that the plants' tremendous demands for cooling water from the already saline surface waters of the Colorado River basin could have serious impact on resident Indians, damage agriculture in the fertile Imperial Valley and aggravate existing water squabbles between the U.S. and Mexico.

According to NARF, more than half of all American Indians living on reservations will be subjected to the air pollution and strip mining operations threaten to despoil areas of unique religious significance to the Navajo and Hopi.

More than 16 million Americans visited the six national parks, three national recreation areas and 28 national monuments subject to air pollution from the power plants. Tourism ranks second or third in each of the four state economies.

Involved federal agencies have filed estimates of potential environmental impact for individual pieces of the total project. However analysts from the three organizations claim all are woefully inadequate and completely ignore the national environmental policy act mandate for a report on the cumulative environmental impact of the whole system.

A spokesman for the groups said the requested moratorium would give the Federal government time to do the required environmental studies which will be vital to the utilities if they are to fulfill promises to minimize the environmental impact of the Four Corners development.

The powerful U.S. Senate interior and insular affairs committee called the Four Corners situation "a classic example of the clash of divergent needs" and scheduled field hearings for May 24, 25, 26 in Albuquerque and Farmington, New Mexico and Salt Lake City.

Clark Dahlgren State Winner Of Business Award

Clark E. Dahlgren, the man who turned sunflowers into a major Minnesota industry, has been presented with Minnesota's small businessman of the year award by Governor Wendell Anderson and Harry A. Sieben, regional director for the Small Business administration (SBA).

Dahlgren is president of Dahlgren and Company, Inc., a certified seed cleaning business in Crookston which expanded its sunflower seed processing under his direction in 1963. Since that time, the firm has had phenomenal growth with more than 200 employees and growing contracts with 425 farmers in the Red River Valley area.

Governor Anderson said that the SBA's choice of Dahlgren was commendable in that "It recognizes the personal initiative and innovative thinking which he has employed in boosting the economy of Crookston and rural northwest Minnesota."

A native of Cambridge, Dahlgren became manager of Beans, Inc. (now Minnesota Bean and Pea company) in that city upon his discharge from the U. S. Coast Guard in 1946. In 1955 he started the Kiel-Dahlgren certified seed plant in partnership with Lyle Kiel, assuming full ownership in 1961.

In expanding his company's operation to sunflowers, he introduced new uses and modern packaging techniques for the product, one example being the polyethylene bags of sunflower birdseed with which most people are familiar.

SBA director Harry A. Sieben praised Dahlgren for his contributions to the economic, civic and social betterment of his community and his state.

CONCERN FOR ENVIRONMENT became a little more real for these members of Marvin Walter's sixth grade class at Mark Twain school this week. The class members are shown with a pile of rubbish which they collected in a clean-up of the school grounds. Walter directed his class in the clean-up project as part of the Earth Week observance being noted nationally this week. The activity should also serve as an example for adults and for other youngsters as the community plans for an extensive clean-up, paint-up, fix up campaign in early May.

Unlicensed Drivers Cause Accidents

At least 25 persons died and as many more were seriously injured in Minnesota highway accidents last year in which unlicensed drivers were at fault. This is the conclusion of Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund, on the basis of a study of last year's accident records.

"In about 60 per cent of the cases, the driver survived without serious injury. Several were driving after suspension or revocation of their licenses. In many cases the driver was intoxicated or had been drinking. Two of the accidents occurred during police chases and one involved a stolen vehicle.

"Many of the drivers had histories of previous accidents and violations, and some had six or seven violations on their records, including driving while intoxicated, driving after license suspension or revocation, speeding, careless driving and violation of the open bottle law.

"The safety responsibility act had been invoked and licenses were suspended in about half of the cases, an indication that the drivers were uninsured and unable to cover damages or compensate for the injuries and deaths of the victims.

"One driver, drunk and speeding, pulled into the left lane to pass another car and killed the other driver and two of his children, seriously injuring the other driver's wife. The offending driver was uninjured. He had a record of five license suspensions and revocations and revocations involving accidents, driving while intoxicated, and other violations.

"Another, speeding, lost control of his car and ran off the road, killing a passenger. He had a record of violations, accidents and license suspensions going back four years, and was under a safety responsibility suspension at the time of the accident.

"In nearly every case, the unlicensed driver was in the 19 to 25 age bracket, one was 14.

"The Minnesota highway patrol carries on a continuous program of checking driver licenses, and at certain times makes an intensive campaign. Last year these checks resulted in 1759 arrests for driving after suspension, revocation or cancellation.

Police and sheriff's departments are also active in this area. For example, St. Paul police tagged 803 drivers for this offense last year.

The penalty varies with circumstances and courts. The maximum penalty is a $300 fine and 90 days in jail. Court officials report that driving after suspension or revocation nearly always draws a workhouse sentence.

"The courts are required by law to impound the car license plates of drivers convicted of driving after suspension or revocation. In such cases, the law permits issuance of special plates with an identifiable serial number, so that the car can be used by other members of the family. However, only 81 such plates are currently in use, compared with an average of 1,000 revocations and 3,400 suspensions each month during the past year.

How such drivers continue to drive is not entirely clear, Hoaglund said. In many of the cases studied, the driver was using a borrowed car, sometimes borrowed without the owner's permission. Stolen plates are also used.

Farmers To Plant 8 Per Cent Of Nation's Total

Minnesota farmers intend to plant nearly eight per cent of the nation's total acreage of 10 major field crops this year, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reports.

A March revision of earlier planting intentions disclosed that Minnesota's agriculture industry will boost crop acreage by almost nine per cent over 1970.

Commissioner Wefald said new forecasts developed by the Minnesota department of agriculture crop and livestock reporting service indicated several adjustments over the initial planting intentions for 1971 filed in January.

These include further increases for spring wheat and barley, and cutbacks for corn and oats, compared to January intentions, plus initial forecasts on acres of flax, potatoes and sugar beets.

Farmers now intend to plant 1,278,000 acres of spring wheat, including 31,000 acres of durum. If planted it will be the biggest spring wheat acreage in Minnesota since 1940, and would represent 11.2 per cent of the U.S. total. It would be a 60 per cent increase over Minnesota's 1970 acreage of spring wheat.

However, Commissioner Wefald noted that the purpose of the forecasts is to give farmers the opportunity to change production plans to fit economic and weather influences on their annual income.

Long the nation's leading producer of oats, Minnesota this year will apparently cut 1970 acreage by seven per cent, but will still seed over 14 per cent of the U.S. total. Minnesota's revised intention is 3,264,000 acres.

Since the January intentions, state farmers cut planned corn production by 106,000 acres. But, the forecast is still a whopping 6,148,000 acres, the greatest for any Minnesota crop, and 8.6 per cent of the planned national total. It is a 16 per cent increase over last year, and compared to a national increase of only 6.4 per cent, strengthens Minnesota's bid to repeat as the nation's third ranked corn state.

A 33 per cent increase in barley acreage, to 607,000 acres, bolsters the state's grasp on fifth in U.S. barley production. The intention represents 7.4 per cent of planned U.S. acreage.

Minnesota flax growers plan to protect their third ranking in national production with 13.5 per cent of the U.S. acreage this year. However, the 302,000 acres intention does represent a 29 per cent reduction from 1970, compared with an average national cutback of 25.6 per cent.

Other initial forecasts indicate a three per cent increase for potato acreage and a 15 per cent cutback on sugar beets. The 130,000 acres of sugar beets will represent nine per cent of the U.S. total, and the 105,900 acres of potatoes will be 7.3 per cent of the nationwide planting. Minnesota ranks fifth in production of sugar beets, ninth on total potatoes harvested.

Minnesota farmers made no change since January in their plans for 3,360,000 acres of soybeans, up six per cent from 1970, and for harvesting 3,199,000 acres of hay, one per cent less than last year. Minnesota ranks sixth in soybean production and plans to plant 7.2 per cent of the U.S. total this season. Minnesota ranks second in hay production, with only five per cent of the nation's acreage.

Summarizing, Commissioner Wefald said March intentions indicate Minnesota farmers will increase acreage of corn, spring wheat, barley, potatoes by more than the national trends, and will make sharper than national cutbacks in oats, flax, hay and sugar beets, while making less than national percentage increases in soybeans and durum wheat.

Ernie Pyle Will Be Honored On 16-Cent Stamp

A 16-cent stamp portraying combat journalist Ernie Pyle will be first placed on sale May 7 at Washington, D.C., with first day issuance ceremonies sponsored by the National Press club.

Robert Geissmann, a New York City artist, designed the vertical stamp. His source for the portrait is based on a photograph made by Alfred Eisenstaedt, which appeared in Life magazine in 1944.

The stamp will be printed in brown and will be available indefinitely. Vertical left, in white typewriter type, is "Journalist". Across the top, brown on white in the same type style, is "Ernie Pyle". Bottom right is "USA 16 cents".

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may submit orders to the Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013, plainly indicating full name and address, including zip code, with remittance to cover the cost, which is 16 cents each. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 16 cents Ernie Pyle Postage Stamp."

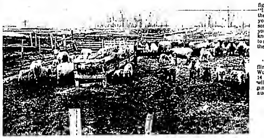
YEARLING EWES in the Roger Hilen flock still sport their shaggy coats. These ewes will be shorn and lamb in May as part of the third crop of lambs on the Kilen farm east of Middle River.

CONVERTED DAIRY BARN is used for lambing on the Roger Hilen farm. With the facilities that he has available, Hilen operates a flock of 450 ewes by himself, except for the actual shearing process.



LOAFING CONTENTEDLY are these ewes and their lambs in the feedlot on the Roger Kilen farm east of Middle River. This is part of the second flock of ewes lambing this month under Kilen's controlled sheep program.

A CHICKEN COOP at one time, this building serves as shelter for ewes and their young lambs when they leave the lambing barn. Kilen is shown in the background with Ed Sisler, director of the farm management program of the area vocational-technical school in Thief River Falls.

Sheep Enterprise On Kilen Farm Has 450 Ewes

Kilen sold his dairy herd in 1966 and bought 80 Columbia ewes from William Wilson at Greenbush. He added them to his own flock of 40 ewes and began expansion to his present program. Recent addition of Hampshire breeding is being tried for production of crossbred market lambs and establishment of a registered Hampshire flock.

During the summer, Kilen pastures his flock on a rotation basis on three 80-acre pastures. He also cuts hay from the pastures which are seeded to a mixture of alfalfa, Timothy, alsike, brome grass, trefoil and other grasses. All of the ewes are in one flock during the summer grazing period.

In the second week of October, Roger brings the entire flock in from pasture. He tags all ewes and selects his "premium" ewes—the first group of 150—which he places in the home pasture. With a group of 10 rams available, he uses four at a time, replacing two at one-week intervals.

Breeding of the second flock—the second group of 150 ewes selected—begins in mid-November, and breeding of the third group starts in mid-December.

"The two most important times for a sheep farmer are breeding time and lambing time," Hilen said. "You have to have the ewes in a gaining condition at breeding time and you have to watch them and take care of them when they are having lambs."

Winters Sheep Outside

During the winter the sheep are outside, but all have at least shelter from the wind. Roger feeds one group with the use of a snowmobile, hauling 10 bales of hay on a sled. He does this to provide feed on the lee side of the woods in the pasture area.

As with any good livestock producer, Roger believes that prevention is the best way to avoid problems with sickness or disease. He worms his flock in the spring and fall, vaccinates his lambs and also dips the sheep to guard against parasites. And he is always alert to any abnormalities which may appear in his flock, warning of possible future danger.

Uses Same Buildings

"I'm using mostly buildings which were on the place when I started," Roger explains. "We use the old dairy barn for lambing, a chicken coop for one group of ewes and lambs, two other sheep sheds and an old granary. It's nothing fancy and nothing new, but it seems to work all right."

Yes, it seems to work all right. Last year he raised a 135 per cent lamb crop through to market at 100-plus pounds and sheared his flock with an average fleece of 11.7 pounds on 312 animals.

"This year the wool won't be quite as good," he said. "The Hampshires don't have the fleece that Columbias do, but they do improve the market lambs. I guess you can't have both wool and meat."

Roger's day starts at 5 a.m.—"unless I think there might be trouble, then I get up a little early". His day ends after midnight—the last time he checks his sheep for the day. In between, when he isn't caring for his sheep, he is taking care of his beef cow herd and feeder cattle.

Fencing is one of the big problems in sheep raising, he says. It's expensive, time consuming and just plain hard work.

Family Gives Help

Roger already gets quite a bit of help from his growing family. He and his wife, the former Sharon Olberg of Middle River, have four sons. Bruce is 11, Greg is 10, Douglas is 0 and Bradley is eight months old.

A member of the farm management program of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school, Roger is a firm believer in keeping accurate records.

"There are a lot of angles to figure in farming," Kilen says. "If you can't make money at it, there's no point in doing it. And you don't know whether something costs or pays unless you have records to prove it. I know that records are necessary to my business. I'd be lost without them."

STRANDQUIST

"Voice of the Martyrs", a color film in which Rev. Richard Wurmbrand tells the story of his 14 years in Communist prisons, will be shown next Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Strandquist school auditorium.

Athletes Honored At 21st Annual Sports Banquet

Green Bay Packers defensive back Doug Hart was the guest speaker at the 21st annual Thief River Falls athletic banquet Monday night in the basement of St. Bernard's church.

Hart told the large audience, "there is a close parallel between sports and life. Sports is the game of life and you have to have self discipline, dedication and self-confidence to do well in either one," he said.

The large turnout included 162 letter winners from Lincoln high school, Northland junior college and the area vocational-technical school.

Former Thief River Falls resident and now Grand Forks radio personality, Doug Tegtmeier, was master of ceremonies for the event and Rev. Louis Hermansen gave the invocation.

Athletic director Russ Smith of Lincoln high school told the crowd that Thief River Falls has had a fine athletic year in all sports and he introduced the various coaches in the school system with the varsity coaches announcing their letter winners for the past season.

Cheerleaders of the three schools were also given recognition along with two Lincoln high school girls who earned athletic letters with the Thief River Falls swim team.

Hart spoke harshly of professional ball players who slam the sport after getting so much out of it, as in the case of Dave Meggessy and Jim Bouton who have written books criticizing the sports after finishing their careers. "We (professional players) never needed them (Meggessy and Bouton) and we're sorry they ever were there," Hart said.

The pro footballer also spoke of the late Vince Lombardi and said he always told his players to "run to win," and that there were three important things in life: 1. your family; 2. your religion; 3. the Green Bay Packers.

Hart also mentioned the fine rivalry the Packers have going with "that semi-pro team in Minneapolis."

Deer Hunting Enters New Era In Minnesota

The first step in the creation of a brand new era in deer management and hunting in Minnesota was taken this week through nearly unanimous passage of two bills in the House Natural Resources committee.

The bills would give the Department of Natural Resources broader authority to establish seasons and to limit the number of hunters allowed in specific zones.

The measures would pave the way for a "select your own days" state season extending from November 1 to December 15 of any year, according to DNR Commissioner Robert Herbst.

Under one bill, House File 1846, the commissioner would be able to allow the hunter to select any group of days within the time span of November 1 and December 15 (or portion thereof) that he wanted.

As an example, Herbst said, in 1972 hunters might be allowed to select any three consecutive days. If conditions were right in 1973, the period might be extended to four or five days.

"Hunters who like to get out early and hunters who prefer to wait for the snow would each be served under the program," Herbst said, "and the opening day pressure would be gone."

The commissioner pointed out that the quality of the hunt in Minnesota would be improved considerably "not to mention the safety factors—both in the woods and on the highway."

Herbst added that as the condition of the herd either improves or declines the hunting period could be adjusted.

The other bill, House File 1845, would give the commissioner authority to limit the number of persons hunting deer in any given zone.

Because such authority does not exist under present law, the commissioner was forced last week to announce the closing of deer hunting in the entire state for this fall.

With the authority that HF 1845 provides, Herbst could have opened hunting in specific areas where the herd is healthy.

According to David Vesall, supervisor of game for DNR, eastern states such as Maine and New Hampshire have had long deer seasons for many years and have found that this spreads out the hunting pressure and improves the quality of the hunt tremendously.

"We are looking to the day when regulations will help provide a quality hunt, longer seasons, improved safety and yet allow us to increase the herd in parts of the state where this is needed," Vesall said.

The bills still must be heard in the senate and signed by the Governor before they become law.

Prowlers Finish Second At Crookston Indoor

"We went into the meet with the idea of finding out where we stand in the district and I think we got an idea," were the thoughts expressed by Lincoln high school track coach Jim Sims after last night's quadrangular track meet at Crookston with the Pirates, East Grand Forks and Roseau.

"I think we found out we don't have the depth and we may have to do some juggling of positions," said Sims. "We had some surprises and some disappointments but I think we found out that Crookston has a mighty tough team."

The Prowlers ran up an early lead on the rest of the field as Thief River Falls scored 33 points to runner up Crookston's 31 after six of the fifteen events. The Prowlers moved out to a 40-32 edge over the Pirates after eight events but Crookston then reeled off three straight first-place finishes to climb in front 63-52½ over the Prowlers.

The Pirates won the title with 86 points to the Prowlers' 69½ while East Grand Forks tallied 44½ and Roseau ended with 10 points.

A triangular college meet was held at the same time in the Winter Sports show building as Lake Region of Devils Lake, North Dakota ran away with the title with 95 points to Crookston Tech's 37 and Northland state's 21 points.

Markoe Hanson supplied a pair of first-place finishes for the Prowlers in the 220-yard dash (25.3) and the 70-yard dash (7.7). Miler Kim Murphy supplied the other first-place finish with a time of 4:55.4.

The Prowlers received second-place performances from Mike Fitzgerald in the 440-yard dash (56.5), Paul Bailleson in the 880 (2:10.4), Jon Folkedahl in the two mile (11:08.7), and Steve Belch in the 70-yard dash (7.8).

Third place finishes for the Prowlers were supplied by Rande Smith in the 880 (2:10.8), Jon Markstrom in the long jump (17'9") and the 440-yard dash (57.2), Joel Folger in the mile (5:03), Tim Strand in the two mile (11:16.5); Jon Wangberg in the 70-yard high hurdles (10.0), and the sprint medley and 1520 relay teams.

Other performances by Prowler trackmen included Mark Koushagen, fourth in the pole vault with a leap of 8'6", a fourth in the 70-yard lows by Wangberg with a time of 9.0 and two fifth-place finishes by Doug Aaseby in the 70-yard low's (10.1) and the 70-yard high's 10.4).

Northland state junior college coach Chet Engelman took four men to the triangular college meet with Tim Olson collecting 15 of his team's 21 points.

Olson, a freshman from Thief River Falls, had first-place finishes in the 70-yard high hurdles (8.7) and the 70-yard lows (9.0). Olson also finished second in the 70-yard dash (7.9) and third in the 220-yard dash (26.4).

PROWLER LONGJUMPER Jon Markstrom finished third in his event in last night's Crookston Indoor track meet. Markstrom had a leap of 17'0" to finish behind Tim Wagner of East Grand Forks who had a jump of 19'6". Next track action for the Prowlers will be tomorrow (Thursday) when they will travel back to Crookston for a dual meet with East Grand Forks.

Other Northland performances were turned in by Jim Duray who finished second in the 220 (26.0) and fourth in the mile (5:30), Jim Kosmalka who finished fourth in the 440 (56.9) and Mark Kays who finished fourth in the shot with a heave of 29'8½".

No Moose Season In State Yet

"We are being literally deluged with phone calls and letters from hunters asking how they can obtain a moose hunting license for this fall," Mike Casey, Director of Game and Fish, said this week.

"Most of the callers think that the bill has already passed the legislature," Casey said, "unfortunately such is not the case."

He said that while the bill authorizing the DNR to set a moose season this fall has passed the house, it has not as yet been heard in the senate.

Casey said that as soon as the bill is passed and the Governor signs it into law, details of the season will be announced through the news media.

As the season is now envisioned, it would allow the harvest of no more than 400 animals, (either sex, any age) in two separate areas where there are high moose populations—the northeast area of approximately 955 square miles and the northwest area of about 4,330 square miles.

The harvest of 400 animals would make licenses available for 1600 hunters. Each of the two areas would be divided into zones and license application would be made by zone, Casey said.

Under the terms of the bill, application would be made by parties of four hunters and a public drawing would determine successful applicants, Casey said.

Ron Novak, director of the program, reported this meeting is to recruit coaches for the 13 to 15-year old group and a meeting for 11 to 12 year-old's will be held at a later date.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

Pennington County Sportsmen's club will meet in the basement of the city auditorium at 8 tonight. There will be a special program and lunch will be served.

State, Federal Agreement On Wolves Signed

Whether they love him or loath him, most people feel that the timber wolf in Minnesota needs some kind of management.

And managed he will be, under terms of a joint agreement signed this week by the state and federal government.

Natural Resources Commissioner Robert Herbst and Superior National Forest Supervisor Craig Rupp penned their names to an agreement that is based on the premise that "the timber wolf in Minnesota may be both an asset and a liability."

The document lists eight major points of agreement.

On the one hand timber wolf habitat has shrunk to three per cent of what it once was and his prospects of survival "are in immediate jeopardy." On the other hand, old canis lupus takes deer as his main food and occasionally kills livestock.

"Management of the wolf, therefore, necessitates recognition of both positive and negative values of the wolf," the joint agreement says, "emphasizing the needs of today's society while providing the flexibility to adapt to the needs of the future."

The Superior National Forest is one of the state's most important timber wolf management areas because it contains a significant portion of the remaining wolf habitat in the contiguous United States. Most of the forest is publicly owned by the state and by the federal government.

Under the terms of the agreement, the DNR will establish regulations for the protection and taking of timber wolves in the state, including hunting and trapping, control of nuisance animals, issuance of special permits, establishment of sanctuaries and wolf censusing. The department will also have the prime responsibility of enforcement.

The U.S. forest service will have prime responsibility for habitat improvement in the national system and will inventory and preserve den sites, rendezvous sites, etc.

Both the department and the forest service will collect data on the timber wolf.

Special timber wolf sanctuaries could be established by DNR and both agencies would cooperate on establishing wolf management zones within the Federal forests.

Special emphasis is put on research through the agreement.

A new brochure will be issued to inform the public of facts about the wolf and his habits.

The new agreement went into effect April 12.

Knutson Heads Women Curlers

Organizational meeting of the Thief River Falls women's curling club was held Tuesday night, and officers were elected.

President is Sandy Knutson; vice president, Sharon Russell; secretary-treasurer, Elaine Borsheim; reporter, Valerie Larson, historian, Janice Henrickson; and director, Lois Amundgaard.

Bailey Howell committed a record 345 personal fouls for the Baltimore Bullets during the 1964-65 NBA season.

Bemidji Tabbed NW Baseball Favorite

Bemidji's defending champions have been established as the team to beat in this year's Northwest Conference baseball race but a wide open battle seems likely before the title is decided.

Bemidji captured its fifth outright title last year with a 5-1 record, two games ahead of Crookston which ended 2-2. Thief River Falls edged Roseau for third on percentage points, each three games behind the leaders.

Bemidji and Crookston each return six starters from their 1970 teams while Roseau has seven on hand. Thief River was the hardest hit, losing six regulars to graduation and another to injury.

Thief River Falls will open its baseball campaign Saturday, April 24, with a 2 p.m. contest at Fertile. First home game for the Prowlers will be Tuesday, April 27, when they will host Goodridge beginning at 5 p.m.

THIEF RIVER FALLS—The Prowlers graduated seven regulars including its top battery of southpaw Dan Sullivan and catcher Don Balmer. Also gone are infielders Tim Duke, Dale Gilbertson and Gordon Peterson and outfielders Larry Lee and Steve Daley. A knee injury has claimed catcher Tom Wurst, possible for the year. Ralph Skay, beginning his 19th season at the helm, has only four seniors and four juniors and will face inexperience all year. Heading the returnees are second sacker Brian Peterson and first baseman Mike Hamerlinck who started frequently last season along with Wurst. Sophomore lefty Pete Sullivan will probably head the mound staff which will include Homerlinck, Dale Hanson and Peterson. Soph Ordeen Peterson will replace Wurst behind the plate with an infield of Hamerlinck, Peterson, Mike Hamilton and Neil Nelson from first to third with Hanson moving in when one of the other four pitches.

Jerry Morben, Rick Jensen and Nelson figure to see outfield duties. Peterson, Hamerlinck, Hanson and Morben are the only seniors.

The Prowlers are the only team to break Bemidji's domination of the league baseball chase, winning two titles and tying the Lumberjacks for a third.

BEMIDJI—The Lumberjacks graduated only three seniors but they included a stellar battery of southpaw Jim Yost and catcher Brad Simenson. Five other letter winners failed to report out this spring but only one figures to start. There are nine lettermen on hand, six of them starters, and nine other graduates of a good B team and summer program. The mound staff will be headed by hard throwing Gary Sargent, Steve Donahue, Charlie Meyers and Jeff and Jim Traut, all righthanders. Jim Traut will replace Simenson behind the plate while the infield is solid with Sargent on first, Mike Mohler at second, Donahue at short and Meyers at third. Top outfield candidates include Dwight Degerman, Al Killian, Jeff Traut and Wally Tverstol, all lettermen, plus non-letter winner Earl Sargent. The Jacks should hit well, field well and go as far as their pitching carries them.

CROOKSTON—If the outfield and pitching develops, the Pirates should enjoy a good season. Crookston won the district 31 title last year and bowed to Bemidji in the regional. Graduation claimed its top hurler, Charles Reynolds, plus outfielders Jim Sellberg and Mauris Pearson. Jim Clauson heads the mound staff with help from Kyle Pearson, Scott Youngquist and Loren Faul, all right handers, and southpaw Kevin Tiedeman. Ron Muir should be a potent force behind the plate. The infield returns intact with Pearson at first, Clauson at second, Youngquist at short and Paul Hendrickson at third. Tiedeman will man one outfield spot with Faul and Scott Wheelhouse the others. Jim Lindell will replace whichever infielder is pitching. Hendrickson and Muir are the only seniors.

ROSEAU—The Rams return seven starters and five other lettermen and have eight seniors, the most in the conference. Leland Peterson and Sheldon Hedlund were the only graduation losses. The returning letter winners had a composite batting average of .296. Defensively, the Rams should be more than adequate. Their season will depend on a relatively inexperienced mound staff. Top chuckers are Mitch Brandt, Mike Broten, Tim Delmore and Larry Vatnsdal. Delmore will handle the catching with Dana Byfuglien at first, Tom Lund at short and Larry Vatnsdal at third. Brandt, Broten and Rick Vatnsdal will see outfield duties though one may move into second base. Other lettermen are outfielders Steve Brandt, Sheldon Espe, Roger Faldoe, Mike Hallio and Dave Swanson.

Bemidji was the first team to see action, hosting Grand Rapids in two games April 17. The Jacks also open the conference season April 20 at Crookston. Last year's final standings found Bemidji 5-1, Crookston 2-2, Thief River 2-4 and Roseau 1-3.

U of M Researchers Foresee Conflict In Pollution Controls

Current agreement among Minnesotans on the seriousness of environmental pollution may give way eventually to conflict between communities and individuals as specific courses of action to correct pollution are proposed.

Conflict is particularly possible if these courses of action would adversely affect the economic and social structures of communities, according to a recent report by University of Minnesota social scientists.

The report—"Environment and Public Opinion in Minnesota"—is based on a series of surveys on attitudes toward pollution in the state by Phillip Tichenor, University of Minnesota journalism professor; James Bowers, research assistant; and George Donohue and Clarice Olien, university sociologists. The surveys were conducted in a 50-mile-long area along the Minnesota river from Osseo to St. Cloud, and in four northeastern Minnesota communities—Ely, Grand Rapids, Silver Bay and Duluth.

Currently there is general public agreement on the importance of environmental quality, the report notes. This issue, which has reached public prominence in an atmosphere of general agreement about the seriousness of the problem, is something that no public spokesman is likely to oppose.

However, the consensus of public opinion about pollution may decline, if not disappear, as more pollution control measures are enacted which effect the economic self-interests of individuals, groups and communities.

Three possible sources of conflict over the environmental issue were identified in the report: Conflict between communities and regions; conflict between individuals and groups within a community; and ideological conflict between individuals and groups within a community; and ideological conflict between individuals and groups supporting pollution control in general and specific communities in which such control measures would affect the area's economy or social structure.

Evidence for potential conflict between communities was found by the social scientists in their 1970 survey in Ely, Grand Rapids, Silver Bay and Duluth. The majority of those interviewed in these communities expressed concern about mining in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area near Ely, air pollution by a Duluth steel plant, and dumping taconite tailings into Lake Superior near Silver Bay. However those interviewed could not agree on measures to control pollution from these sources.

In Grand Rapids, for example, 88 per cent of those interviewed would support measures on preventing the discharge of taconite tailings into Lake Superior even if some economic hardships would result from the control measures. By comparison, only a fourth of those interviewed in Silver Bay, where the taconite plant is located, would agree with such action.

Conflict between individuals and groups within a specific community also is possible as some individuals actively support pollution control measures regardless of the consequences, while other oppose such measures because of the consequences.

It is probable that conflict within a community over pollution control may occur along socioeconomic and educational lines. The report notes that consequences of social change are frequently accepted more rapidly and advocated more persistently by Americans who are higher on the socioeconomic status scale. This difference tends to become wider if the issue is controversial. In the report, the researchers state that they "would expect social call differences in opinions to become much sharper as specific environmental control proposals are brought forth."

"The results of our studies indicate that militants in the environmental control movement probably will be disappointed if they interpret public concern over the environment as an indication that the public accepts the environmentalist ideology and all that it implies," authors of the report state.

The report describes environmentalist ideology as intense concern with the environmental issue and advocacy of specific pollution control measures regardless of consequences.

"If the pattern reflected in these studies is representative of the general public," the report notes, "it is likely that general public support for environmental measures may decrease as people learn more about the specific nature of the issues involved and as they interpret the proposals for pollution control as possibly harmful to local community interests."

If this occurs, individuals and communities who want to protect their self-interests may come into conflict with militants who want specific pollution control measures regardless of the consequences.

Operation Rain Gauge Is Project For FFA Chapter

Weather forecasters, rainmakers, flood forecasters, conservationists and agriculturists are expected to benefit from work being done by the Future Farmers of America (FFA) and their rain gauges.

FFA "Operation Rain Gauge", as the project to determine rainfall patterns in Minnesota is called, is scheduled to begin May 1. FFA'ers from Thief River Falls and each of Minnesota's 268 FFA chapters are expected to participate. The rainfall locations will supplement the 240 official rain gauges now in operation. "This network of FFA gauges will give a real display of the total rainfall picture," predicted Joseph H. Strub, hydrologist with the national weather service.

In addition to Strub, who is in charge of the Minneapolis office of the U. S. weather bureau, consultants for the project are climatologist Earl L. Kuehnast, University of Minnesota, and Donald G. Baker, professor, soil science department, University of Minnesota.

"The Minnesota FFA'ers are to be commended on their foresight in developing a program to help Minnesotans learn more about their environment," Kuehnast said. "They are the first FFA'ers to set up a state-wide weather program and, above all, they are the first in the nation to have such a 'concentrated rainfall network' over an entire state."

According to Baker, "All agriculturists and professional engineers will be interested in the results obtained from the precipitation records. Longer range benefits from the data gathered are to be found in the planning of various soil and water conservation practices and engineering structures."

W. J. Kortesmaki, state FFA executive secretary, predicted that over 6,000 of the 14,000 Minnesota FFA members are expected to become involved in the project this summer and over 12,000 in 1972.

"FFA Operation Rain Gauge will help us forecast weather extremes that will cause damage to life or property," said Strub. "Ground observations are needed to help us interpret what we see on radar. Rainfall and its intensity are an indicator of how severe a thunderstorm may be.

"Not only do we have to forecast the thunderstorms," Strub said, "but after the rainfall hits we must forecast surface runoff for flash flooding, general flooding or high water." The FFA data, said Strub, "will be used to help produce better forecast schemes."

Preliminary precipitation studies conducted last summer revealed extreme and unexpected differences in rainfall from one township to another. Rainfall strips or alleys are believed to exist, but their cause is a mystery.

According to Kuehnast, Baker and Strub, variations in precipitation from one site to another will be of special interest when attempting to explain crop differences between farms. Knowledge of variations in precipitation will also help in the planning of various soil and water conservation practices.

"A single precipitation report seems simple," Strub said. "But as it continues day to day and builds into years, its value will become impossible to put a price tag on. You can't go back and get this information. It must be done in the present and in the future."

Glamor Lacking

The following editorial appeared recently in the Rock County Star Herald at Luverne:

You couldn't give away a pair of tickets here, even though they were two of the best seats to the grand finale of the Minnesota state basketball tournament. Even the most avid fans said, "No, we'll watch it on TV."

The Class A and Class AA system adopted this year for the first time didn't stimulate a great deal of enthusiasm here. True, it did bring 16 teams to the state tournament instead of eight as in the past, some of whom may never have made it to the state under the old system. But the glamor of the one-class system just wasn't there.

We bet Melrose would rather have met Duluth Central in the finals the first week, than wait a whole week to play for the overall state championship. Duluth, we'll venture to say, felt the same way. The excitement that the final game has generated in the past over the state just wasn't there. For most, the season ended the week before.

Many were disappointed that there were no consolation games played this year. Maybe consolation games are anti-climactic, and the players feel a letdown after dropping the first game. But boys who really love basketball still have a chance to prove themselves in consolation rounds and have the fun of competing with more than just one of the state's top teams.

The two-class system is a two-year experiment, with one more year to go. We don't look for a return to the one-class system, but we can expect some changes to be made. If there were some way to get all the games played and the championship determined in one week, the final would generate more interest than it did this year.

Bending Over Backward

Official response of the United States to the first friendly-sounding overtures by Communist China in more than two decades has been almost amusing. China reaps a bountiful harvest of propaganda by opening the iron curtain just wide enough to admit a few table tennis players and several newsmen, and the United States responds like a playful puppy.

Perhaps it is good that an inter-play between the two countries seems to be developing. Certainly it is better for the nations to meet in combat across the table tennis net than on the battlefield. But we are suspicious of communistic advances, because that ideology leaves little room for social amenities. There is usually a sinister purpose lurking behind the scenes and we should beware of expecting too much from following the bouncing ball.

The United States has made attempts on many occasions in the past to establish some sort of favorable relationship with the Red Chinese. All of our attempts were met with ridicule and rejection by the Chinese government and our officials were heaped with verbal abuse. We should not be too anxious to shorten our memories regarding these rebuffs.

Red China did nothing but allow some outsiders into the nation to bat a tiny ball back and forth across a table. In return, President Nixon has announced a five-point easing of the American embargo on trade with China. He has indicated there would be full American cooperation in establishing wider relations with Communist China. All of that is offered in exchange for a few games of table tennis.

An editorial in the Grand Rapids Herald-Review summarizes possible reasons for the so-called softening of Chinese policy as follows:

There is a great deal of speculation on why Chinese leaders have decided to improve relationships with the United States at this time. The most reasonable and optimistic view would be that the Chinese leaders have come to the realization that China cannot become a great power without achieving much greater economic growth, and that improving trade and other relationships with the United States will help in this regard.

The change in Chinese policy may also be attributed to the desire of the Chinese communists to create more friendly relations with other countries of the world in the face of continued hostility toward China displayed by the Soviet Union. That is the only country which China need fear now, and the fear is real that the Soviets might decide to attack China while it could do so with chances of success.

Perhaps the Chinese communists are setting the stage for their next bid for a seat in the United Nations. If they appear to be more friendly and less sinister, the United States may be more willing to allow it to gain membership in the international body. If the communist leaders are in fact prepared to alter their stand so that nationalist China would not be expelled from the United Nations, there are good possibilities that the communists may be seated.

It is also possible that the Chinese communists may wish to appear more friendly so that the American people will be less hesitant about a rapid pull-out of American troops from Vietnam. It could be that Peking leaders have concluded that the fastest way to get American forces out of Asia is to appear to be friendly instead of hostile.

The big question is whether the present warming attitude of communist China is the reflection of permanent changes in policy or whether it is a temporary mask. Apparently the Nixon administration will accept the overtures as genuine and to seek to improve relationships with China in all feasible ways. But the administration will wish to see more concrete evidence of a friendly attitude before depending upon a full about-face in Chinese policy.

It is too early to tell whether the thaw in communist Chinese attitude is like a warm spell in January in Minnesota which is followed by big storms in succeeding months, or whether it is a genuine warming like the coming of spring and summer.

To the Herald-Review's views we would add one more thought of our own. The United States is willing to bend over backward to establish a better peaceful relationship with Communist China, and China knows it. It's a lot easier to be knocked off your feet when you are bending over backward.

Profit Is Vital

The following information on profits was published by the American Economic foundation:

Ever since the days of Karl Marx there has been a theory that profit—some way or another—is against the public interest. The economists and accountants unwittingly supported this fallacy by calling profit "the amount left over after all costs have been paid." They did not mean that profit was not necessary, but it did sound that way and many still believe it. The purpose of this article is to briefly describe the nature of profit and who gets it in the United States.

Before money came into common usage the word profit meant progress—progress in building one's stock of productive wealth. In earliest times this wealth was usually livestock—sheep, goats, camels, cattle, etc. The progress (profit) was counted in the increased number of "heads." From the Latin word for head, capita, came our present word capital, meaning productive wealth. Today profit is measured in dollars, but the principle is unchanged. It means that productive wealth has been added to the economy.

America was built on profit. Under its economic freedom, men could invest their savings in tools of production, try to make a profit, and, if successful, could keep it. This was not true in many other parts of the world, and huge amounts of capital flowed in from Europe.

Without this foreign investment, our infant economy would never have grown so prodigiously. So, the desire for profit built America. It also made the American people the richest in the world. Some investors got rich enough to arouse resentment. But to make a million-dollar profit, one must pay out about $10 million in wages and salaries and spend at least another $10 million for other peoples' goods and services. So, be they "good" or "bad," profit makers are always benefactors.

The next question is, "how many Americans are sharing in these profits?" The latest answer was published July 7th of this year by the New York Stock Exchange. The number of shareholders has grown from 8,600,000 in 1956 to 30,800,000 in 1970. And this includes only direct ownership. To this number must be added the many millions of life insurance and savings accounts holders and participants in pension plans. Indirectly, they have an enormous stake in profits because, in large part, the security of these assets depend upon them.

Last, but not least, are people who own nothing and must depend upon public relief. Much of the money they get comes from the taxes produced by profits.

It seems fair, therefore, to say that profit is vital to the public interest.

BUICK BARGAIN DAYS ARE HERE

Buick Bargain Days are saving days.

A bargain price on a stripped down car is no bargain
But a Buick or Opel at a bargain is something else again.
Because we're not selling some special stripped down model
We're selling Buicks and Opels, the same great cars we've sold all year

With one difference. The deals have never been better
Which means that you can move out in a new Buick or Opel at a price that's hard to believe
When Buick talks about a bargain, we give you something to believe in

Opel 1900 Sport Coupe. With a 1.9 liter engine that operates efficiently on low lead or no lead gasolines, hydraulic valve lifters for quiet engine operation, power front disc brakes and more

Skylark Custom. With Buick's exclusive nickel plated engine exhaust valves for smoother operation on today's cleaner fuels. Comfort Flo ventilation system and more

Your Buick-Opel dealer will give you better reasons to buy a new car now than anybody else.

The business of auto-safety.

Auto safety is everyone's concern. But it's our business.

And we think the attention that's being paid to auto safety now is a good thing. Because it will result in better driving for everyone.

And frankly, better driving for everyone means better business for us.

We say Buick is something to believe in. That's why we're trying to make it easy to be safe by putting in safety features that work by themselves. You don't have to do anything to make them work.

Like side guard beams. And the energy absorbing steering column. And the cargo guard between the trunk and back seat. They start "working" even before you get in the car.

But two safety features, two of the most vital, are worthless unless you do something first.

Seat and shoulder belts.

Unfastened they do nothing. And you've seen enough statistics to know what a difference they can make. So use them.

But that's not all you can do. Because the most effective safety feature of all can't be added to our cars or anybody else's.

That feature is you. And the way you drive.

Which should be defensively. And rested. And sober.

We're all in this together. And together we can solve the auto safety problem once and for all.

And the time is now.

YOUR SAVINGS BONDS NEST EGG

By SYLVIA PORTER

The Treasury is now in the midst of its most aggressive, hard-hitting drive in 15 years to coax you into starting to buy or increasing your buying of its old, familiar U. S. Savings Bond.

With interest rates across the board way down from their historic mid-1970 peaks, but with the interest rate on Savings Bonds sticking at an all-time high, the Treasury has a fighting chance to reach its ambitious though attainable goals for 1971.

And with the 5½-percent return to maturity you can earn on the Bond now comparatively fair, you again can consider whether the Bond's other advantages warrant an investment of at least part of your nest egg in this absolutely safe savings security.

The success of this little nonmarketable Bond is truly astounding, and its staying power is even more so—for on May 1st of this year, the "E" Bond will be 30 years old. In this span, the Bond has taught a whole generation the discipline of regular savings. In this period, Americans have voluntarily purchased vast numbers of the Bonds worth $182 billion. In these years, the Treasury has built up a "staff" of 40,000 corporations and 30,000 financial institutions to market the Bonds as a public service.

Even more specifically, despite the fact that the return you could earn on the Bond fell abysmally out of line during the 1967-70 upsurge in interest rates, the small saver held on. The turnover rate since 1945 has averaged a mere 11.20 percent annually, less than half that of any other savings medium. A record $52 billion of the Bonds are now outstanding, representing 23 percent of the privately held portion of the public debt.

A fantastic 10,000,000 regularly buy the Bonds through Payroll Savings Plans. Therefore, the Treasury's goal of signing up 2,200,000 employees as new or bigger savers in '71 is not unreasonable.

How then, should you respond to the Treasury's campaign?

The central, even overwhelming, advantage of these Bonds is that you can buy them via periodic, small deductions from your paycheck. The saving is painless, automatic, done before you even touch your pay. This discipline is the secret of creating a nest egg. And even if 5½ percent over almost six years turns out low, 5½ percent on something is a lot better than twice 5½ on nothing. Here's how the Savings Bond rate compares to maximum rates on similar forms of savings—

- 6 percent on two-year deposits in savings banks and savings associations;
- 5 percent on passbook accounts in savings institutions;
- 4.5 percent on regular savings accounts in commercial banks;
- 5.5 percent on one to two-year deposits in commercial banks;
- 5.75 percent on two-year deposits in commercial banks;
- 5.5 percent on Series E Savings Bonds you hold to maturity in 5 years, 10 months.

Other advantages of Savings Bonds are: You can defer paying any Federal income tax on the Bonds until you redeem them—a real plus if you'll be retired and in a lower tax bracket when you cash in. The Bonds are exempt from state and local income and personal property taxes, too. They are free from probate proceedings. And the Treasury will replace any Bond lost, stolen, or destroyed as of your original issue date.

This is the first time in years I've been able to write about U. S. Savings Bonds in a favorable way. But 5½ percent is worth considering today, particularly if you earn it on a nest egg built up for you via automatic payroll deductions, and you realize you wouldn't even have the nest egg otherwise.

Researchers Study Use Of Drugs For School Children

by Bill Hafling
University of Minnesota
Science Writer

Billy usually finishes his schoolwork ahead of the class—or doesn't even do it at all. With time on his hands he sits in his chair. But only for a moment. He makes a "spit-wad" and zings it at Doug. Doug, who wants to be a hockey player some day, is frustrated by a math assignment he finds "tough." He throws a book at Billy. Soon they are both out of their seats. Before the teacher can stop them the boys have disrupted the class with their fighting. It's not the first time they've caused trouble.

After a time the boys may be labelled "hyperkinetic."

They seem to be "in constant motion." With parental consent they are given pills to "slow them down."

The question is: Does the boys' behavior change for the better enough to risk the side effects of the drugs? Perhaps more importantly, did the drugs alone produce the change in behavior?

Two University of Minnesota researchers in psychopharmacology—Donald Kodluboy and Don Cherek—have their doubts. The two recently completed a critical survey of more than 20 of the latest research studies on the effects of the pills, usually amphetamines, "on classroom behavior." These studies included several other complete reviews of clinical results and series reports from research in other countries.

Inadequate Research Cited

"It has not been shown that the marked improvement in behavior seen clinically following treatment of hyperkinetic children is due solely to the drug itself," Cherek said, pointing out that the added attention such children receive is a major, but often overlooked, factor.

"The lack of adequate controls in the studies reviewed makes it impossible to critically evaluate the usefulness of these drugs in treating hyperkinesia," he said.

Many of the studies, as well as school programs now in progress, do not even have "placebo groups" for comparison of results. A placebo is a capsule which looks just like the drug capsule but contains nothing more than a neutral substance.

"The wholesale dispensing of potent stimulant drugs to young children with behavior problems in the absence of conclusive research findings is unwise and perhaps unnecessary," Kodluboy advised.

"The need for well designed, highly controlled studies on hyperkinesia itself and on the effects of drugs on hyperkinesics is apparent," he said.

Labels Don't Help

Most researchers and literature reviews on hyperkinesia conclude that the syndrome is a mixed class of behavior disorders not characterized by any one physical or behavioral manifestation. The use of such terms as "minimal brain damage" or "minimal cerebral dysfunction" add nothing to the management of what is usually a behavior problem, the University researchers said.

"There is little evidence," they found, "that a significant number of children labelled 'hyperkinetic' exhibit definite physical abnormalities." (Figures vary from 7 per cent definite to 50 per cent "possible history of injury.")

"The hypothesis that behaviorally active drugs such as stimulants modify hyperkinetic behavior by acting upon some brain disorder is speculative and as yet not clearly substantiated," they said.

Behavior Modification

On the other hand, there is definite evidence that behavior modification, a system of establishing precise behavior change and development, can dramatically alter hyperkinetic behavior. Large-scale projects using behavior modification techniques to control hyperkinetic, aggressive behavior in both young and old residents of state hospitals have been extremely effective.

With the "notable exception of behavior modification" Kodluboy felt that the failure of professional services to manage behavior problems, the extreme difficulty of conducting good research on the problem, and urgent requests from distressed parents and teachers have placed irrational demands on physicians to come up with solutions to the problem.

"It must be asked," he said, "if it is reasonable to expect the general physician, though highly skilled in dealing with physical problems, to manage severe behavior problems such as those labelled here as 'hyperkinesia,' which are primarily behavioral or psychological.

"The plea is for high quality research, rigorous, well designed and easily evaluated in unambiguous terms. These drugs may indeed have the reported 'paradoxical calming effect' claimed for them and there may be cases where they are indeed useful as a result."

Drug Side Effects

Meanwhile the kids on pills are stuck with something else—the side effects of the drugs. Amphetamine and methylphenidate, sold under a wide variety of trade names, can cause loss of appetite, delusions, hallucinations, and toxic psychosis when given in sufficiently high doses.

Amphetamines have a long history of use as "diet pills." The pills have a direct effect on the central nervous system and are often used to counteract fatigue and elevate mood. There is no evidence that they have much effect on intellectual performance in problem solving or intelligence tests.

Though the "paradoxical calming effect" attributed to these drugs is not conclusively proven, there is some research which would explain this effect. Why should "stimulant drugs" have a "calming effect"?

A drug researcher, Peter Dews, noticed this calming effect with animals in 1958. He first measured the rate at which the animals were performing a given activity, then gave them the drug. Behaviors which the animals had been performing at a low rate increased in rate, as would be expected. However, behaviors already taking place at a high rate were decreased. Thus the drug effect may not be "paradoxical" at all but merely an effect dependent on the ongoing rate of behavior before the drug is given.

No one knows precisely what effect the drugs have on developing organisms—children or animals.

"On the street" where drug abuse is a well known problem today, these same drugs are known as "bennies," "dexies," "pep pills" and "speed."

Note: Some readers may have further questions about drugs and hyperkinetic children. Others may wish a list of the research references on which this article is based. Over 35 Booths Slated For Scout Exposition

ART OBJECTS of various types will be entered in the Lincoln senior high school art show Saturday and Sunday afternoons. In the above photo, Jon Anton and Renae Nelson inspect a ceramic pitcher.

WATERCOLORS to be entered in the annual Lincoln high school art show are being prepared by Geno Wells and Dwight Donarski in the school art department. One of the still life oil paintings is shown in the background.

More Than 200 Items Exhibited At HS Art Show

Between 200 and 300 items will be on display Saturday and Sunday in the Lincoln senior high school cafeteria when the fourth annual Lincoln art show is opened to the public. Hours for the show will be from 1 to 5 p.m. each day.

"Creativity by the student is the essential ingredient of the exhibit, accomplished through the use of a wide array of media," stated Donald Lerud, art instructor at the school. "Emphasis in this year's show will be on tie dyes and batiks."

Noting a wide interest in art by Lincoln high school students, Lerud is impressed with the quality of the work to be put on display.

"I feel again, as I do each year, that this exhibit is the best ever," he said. "Not only will there be more items on display, but the general quality of the show seems to have advanced."

"Items on display come from courses in painting and drawing, graphics, posters and lettering, design, sculpture and ceramics and advanced painting," the instructor added.

The meeting will be the second in a series designed to focus interest on local history during the 75th anniversary year commemorating the incorporation of Thief River Falls as a city.

90 Per Cent Of Farmers Sign Up In Farm Programs

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county ASC committee, states that a record number of farmers have signed up to participate in the wheat and feed grain program. Ninety per cent of the eligible farmers in the county have signed up in 1971.

"This indicates in my opinion that farm programs are very popular and very necessary," Knutson said.

By participating in these programs, the farmers agree to set aside a certain percentage of their cropland and maintain these acres in an approved conserving use. In doing this they will assist in creating a more favorable supply and demand situation for farm products.

Two More File For 3 Positions On School Board

Three filings have now been made for the three terms expiring on the Thief River Falls board of education, according to Kenneth Murphy, clerk of the board. Filings close at midnight Tuesday.

Roger Worth and Robert Flynn filed for the board late last week, joining incumbent Charles Samuelson on the official ballot for the election May 11. Mervin Prestebak, present board chairman, has announced that he will not seek reelection. Dr. George Martin, a former board chairman, made a similar announcement earlier.

Flynn is a long-time resident of Thief River Falls and an officer of the Union State bank. Worth is a corporate attorney for Arctic Enterprises and a relative newcomer to the city. Both have been in attendance at a number of recent school board meetings.

Murphy reminded interested residents of the district that filing will continue through Tuesday night and that there is no filing fee. He may be contacted at Northwestern Bell Telephone company (681-4160) during the day or at 703 Duluth av. N. (681-3366) after working hours. This evening, Monday, he will be at the regular school board meeting beginning at 8 p.m. in Lincoln senior high school.

Eligible to hold office on the school board are any qualified voters of the district who are of legal voting age.

Hard Red Spring Wheat Added To Extended Reseal

Farm-stored 1968-crop hard red spring wheat has been added to the list of wheat which may be extended under reseal loan through the end of the 1971-72 storage period—May 31, 1972, in Minnesota.

The loan extension, or reseal, is being made available because analysis shows a larger carryover of hard red spring wheat than was previously estimated, according to Marcel Dahl, chairman of the Marshall agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee. Producers wanting loan extensions are asked to check with their county ASCS office.

When it became apparent that larger quantities of hard red spring were on hand than had been estimated, a two-month extension of the loan on farm-stored 1968 crop hard red spring wheat was first granted, and now the extension is through the 1971-72 storage period.

With the addition of hard red spring, loans on all 1968, 1969 and 1970 crop farm-stored wheat, and on 1970-crop wheat in commercial storage, may be extended through May 31, 1972.

BY TRADITION, Indian crafts have been handed down from one generation to the next with added knowledge being incorporated into the instruction. With current emphasis on educating the Indian to compete in the white man's world, however, much of the Indian culture is in danger of being lost forever. At the Red Lake high school at Redlake, craft instruction by the older generation is being preserved on video tape for future classes. In the above photo, Dan Needham instructs in the art of making bow and arrows. For more on this merger of the old and the new, read the feature article to be published in the Wednesday edition.

Board Seeks Law To Combine Court In Three Counties

At a special meeting last week, the Pennington county board decided to ask the Minnesota legislature to pass legislation establishing a permanent probate court for Marshall, Red Lake and Pennington counties.

Under terms of the legislation the board wants passed, the incumbent judge of probate court in Red Lake county would preside in the three counties of the district until the expiration of his present term of office, and a new candidate would be elected by voters in the counties in the November, 1976, election.

Marshall and Pennington counties would each pay 40 per cent of the judge's salary and expenses, and Red Lake county would pay 20 per cent. The probate court judge would also be the chief municipal judge in each of the three counties.

As chief municipal judge he would be allowed to appoint such assistant municipal judges as he thought necessary, with the approval of each county board in which the assistant judge would serve.

No assistant municipal judge would be appointed to serve without the involved county boards first adopting a resolution approving the appointment and setting the salary or portion of salary that the county would pay.

WCTU Units Oppose Drinking In Mess Halls

At a joint meeting of the Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union and the Alice Mae Stewart Union of Hazel, members voiced their disapproval of the decision of the United States Army and Navy of making beer available in the mess halls.

Information on these decisions was given by Mrs. Alfred Haugan. She based her report on an article in the Minnesota White Ribbon, the state WCTU publication. According to the report, Army Chief of Staff General William E. Westmoreland has authorized army commanders that beer be made available for evening meals in mess halls. Commanders may at their discretion, also permit the installation of beer vending machines in the barracks.

Mrs. Haugen stated that at present, the Navy is permitting the use of beer only at one naval station. This is only on a trial basis for a period of six months. Involved in this testing period are the senior enlisted personnel with a rating of E-6 and above. However, the Naval department has adopted the policy of permitting enlisted personnel the right to consume beer in their quarters if they reside in the bachelor enlisted quarters.

Both the Thief River Falls and Hazel units of the WCTU went on record as opposing these decisions. Letters voicing disapproval will be sent to President Richard M. Nixon, commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces; Melvin R. Laird, secretary of defense; General William E. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff; Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of Naval operations; Senators Hubert H. Humphrey and Walter Mondale and Representative Robert Bergland.

The joint meeting was held at the United Methodist church with Mrs. Olga Larson in charge of devotions. She based her meditation on Ecclesiastes 12:1, "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth." She asked all members to pray for today's youth, that they, like Salomon, may early in life dedicate themselves to the service of God.

Also participating on the program were Mrs. Clarice Sherva, Mrs. Walter Peterson and Mrs. Nthe Larson. Mrs. Sherva gave the report on the White House conference on children featuring President Nixon as guest speaker. He stated that accidents are the nation's number one killer of children under 15 years of age. He also noted that children from homes with alcoholic parents are handicapped, not only emotionally and spiritually but often times physically. Alcoholism not only affects the individual but also the family. In its waste of human resources, it affects the whole society.

Mrs. Peterson gave a resume of the life story of the late Mary Frances Cook. A former teacher in the Thief River Falls elementary schools, Miss Cook came to this city in 1923 and taught here for 17 years. After her retirement, she became a full-time worker for the WCTU. She attended a national workshop at Evanston, Ill., became district president and later traveled extensively organizing units throughout the states.

The harmful effects of television on children was given by Mrs. Nthe Larson. She stated that the glamorization of drinking did not show the true effects of alcoholic beverages.

An announcement of the World Youth Night to be held in conjunction with the National Convention in Chicago, Ill., was given by Mrs. Mons Engelstad. She stated that all youths attending the Youth Temperance camp in June will be eligible to attend. Travel will be by bus, beginning at Duluth. The convention opens July 30.

The meeting began with the singing of two gospel hymns, "Leaning On the Everlasting Arms" and "The Great Physician Now is Near." During the social hour, lunch was served by Mrs. Earle Ripley.

Mrs. Kenneth Lindberg
918 Main Avenue North

Striving to preserve the area's history is the objective of the Pennington County Historical society. This group is composed of individuals constantly looking for items to be added to the collection of memorabilia. Since this is a county organization, articles from the whole area are welcome.

Members of the organization state that although a large number of articles have already been lost, now is the time to save articles for the future. Now, during housecleaning time, if any items are found that you would like to donate to the society, notify one of the officers.

Today's recipe comes from Mrs. Kenneth Lindberg of this city. She is secretary-treasurer of the historical society and is finding this new experience one of challenge and enjoyment.

In submitting the recipe, she stated, "A collection of recipes becomes a collection of memories. This recipe for an "ice-box" cookie, was given to my mother in 1922 by a neighbor. I always have it on hand. It's especially good using walnuts that come regularly as a Christmas gift from a sister in California."

Butterscotch Overnight Cookie

1 cup brown sugar
1 scant cup butter or part substitute
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon soda
2¼ cups flour
1 cup walnuts, unbroken

Method: Cream sugar and butter, add eggs and vanilla and beat well. Add the sifted dry ingredients and lastly, the nut meats. Form into rolls and let stand overnight. In the morning slice and bake. Makes about 100 cookies.

Mrs. Lindberg has four children: Mrs. Don (Janice) McAllum of Seattle, Wash.; Evonne, attending the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis; Ronald, who works as surveyor with Stewart and Walker, and Nancy, a 10th grader at Lincoln high school. She also has three grandchildren.

Mr. Lindberg died 15 years ago when the youngest child was 13 months old.

Mrs. Lindberg stated that she is a real native of Thief River Falls. Her great-grandparents the Nels Lillegards and grandparents the Nels Rhodegards homesteaded just west of this city, in the Norden area. Her mother, the former Hilda Ecklund, and her father, Halvor Rhodegard, attended schools in the country and when they married in 1909, they moved into their new home on Horace avenue, still occupied by one of their daughters.

Mrs. Lindberg's father clerked in grocery stores and later was part owner of the Home Grocery. She recalls helping in the store on Saturdays (at the age of 15 years) working from 8 a.m., until 11 p.m., for $3.00. She remembers with fondness the customers' charge account books, labeled in her father's artistic handwriting and kept on display near the counter. One of her most disliked duties of clerking, was selling bananas. She was afraid of cutting her hand on the sharp curved knife needed to separate the bananas from the large bunch hanging in the window. Other recollections of the store include: farmers exchanging home-made butter (Brought in their own special crock) for items of groceries, plug tobacco and pultost; peanut butter and pickles having been packed in large containers and was sold in paper boats or cartons; and the cereal boxes placed high on top shelves. When needed these boxes were flipped, hopefully, into the arms of the clerk by a long-handled fork. She also remembers that dried fruit which was good for munching but made fingers sticky, was stored in large bins or a drawer with a glass window.

At present, Mrs. Lindberg teaches 30 piano students here and at Middle River. She is a member of Trinity Lutheran church and serves as treasurer of Trinity Lutheran Church Women.

USDA To Seek Uniformity In Milk Marketing

U.S. department of agriculture has decided to amend all 62 federal milk marketing orders to provide uniform terminology for some provisions, and will poll dairy cooperatives to see if the required two-thirds of farmers affected (three-fourths in a few markets) approve.

USDA's consumer and marketing service said the decision would establish a common set of administrative provisions for all federal milk orders and delete corresponding provisions from the individual orders. The provisions cover certain definitions and USDA instructions, and serve the same purpose in every order. The amendments, officials said, would eliminate confusion over language differences and unnecessary repetition in each order.

The proposed amendments are based on a public hearing held at Washington, D. C., last September. Copies of the final decision containing them are available from the market administrators of the various orders, or from the Dairy Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, USDA, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Wayne Gilbert Considered For Student Regent

Wayne E. Gilbert, 22, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Gilbert of Thief River Falls, is one of three University of Minnesota students endorsed as candidates for the university board of regents by the student senate.

Gilbert is a first year law student at the university and has been active in the Minnesota coalition to lower the voting age.

The other two candidates are Scott W. Erickson, a graduate student in Latin-American history, and Gerald R. McKay, a second-year law student who has been active in university governing bodies.

All three candidates meet the Committee for Student Regents' guidelines of being a state resident who meets requirements for voting, is under 30, in good academic standing and with intention to stay in school after appointment to the post.

The names of all three men will now be submitted to the state legislature, the body that appoints regents.

The legislature has before it six bills dealing with student representation on the board of regents. The bills range from adding a student to the board in an advisory capacity to amending the state constitution to increase the board's membership.

MPCA Clean-up Deadlines Given To Communities

Dischargers in nine municipalities were issued cleanup deadlines at the April meeting of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA), but orders were stayed on an additional 65 dischargers until a committee of MPCA members can review the list.

That list includes 30 dischargers who will need tertiary wastewater treatment and includes Warroad. The remaining 35 dischargers on the list (all needing additional treatment works but not tertiary treatment) includes Blue Earth Rendering Company in Brainerd. Roseau was given a cleanup deadline for wastewater treatment works of October, 1972.

Money is a major problem in building pollution control works, and, knowing this, the MPCA board received and endorsed the final report on a state-financed construction grant program for municipal sewage treatment plants.

The report proposes $160 million in state aids over the next 20 years.

This proposal has been introduced into the legislature as House File 180 (now in the House appropriations committee) and Senate File 576 (now in the Senate finance committee).

A report presented to the board indicated that about $9 million has been paid, and an equal amount remains to be paid in the federal grant program for municipal sewage treatment plant construction over the last three years.

Lawsuits, court orders, or stipulations are pending on Dalbo creamery and locker company of Isanti County, Detroit Lakes, Glen-Lake warehouse of Eden Prairie, Litchfield, Reilly tar and chemical corporation of St. Louis Park, and Western dairy of Clarkfield.

The board heard a report on a bill, Senate File 1404, which would place a tax of $1-per-pound-of-phosphorus in detergents. There are an estimated 35 million pounds of phosphorus in detergents sold in Minnesota. The money would be used for phosphorus control in rivers and lakes.

The Board reconvened, took testimony, and adjourned the hearing on the proposed "open water" standards for Lake Superior, WPC-33.

Concerning solid waste, the board heard a report that 53 of Minnesota's 87 county boards endorse an MPCA-supported bill which would give counties bonding authority in solid waste management.

The MPCA's feedlot regulations have been filed with the secretary of state with an amendment defining "potential pollution hazard" as a condition which may in the reasonably foreseeable future cause pollution of land, air, or waters of the state.

The board also received a report indicating that nearly a million acres of Minnesota farmland was sprayed by cropdusters in 1970. About one-third of that land was sprayed with pesticides and two-thirds with herbicides.

The air quality, the board announced an April 30th hearing in the state office building auditorium in St. Paul on amendments to regulations concerning open burning, odors, smoke stacks, cars, trucks, buses, and airplanes.

The Board also held to May 10 approval of about nine miles of sewer lines for: Breckenridge, Benson, Chanhassen, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Hinckley, Isle, Lewiston, New Ulm, Nora, Mankato, Red Wing, Rochester, Rush City, Slayton, Waite Park, and Winona.

Handi-Ham Plan Sponsors Program For Handicapped

In May, physically and visually handicapped persons throughout Minnesota will again have opportunity to hear how they can broaden their horizons through amateur radio.

A week-end orientation program, called the "May Convocation" will be presented at Camp Courage, Maple Lake, by the Handi-Ham system of Minnesota and the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. (MISCCA), a United Fund agency.

The program will feature talks on amateur radio by licensed radio amateurs who are handicapped, panel discussions, movies, a tour of the ham radio shack, recreation and entertainment.

The convocation will begin at 4 p.m. Friday, May 21, and continue through 2 p.m. Sunday, May 23. Food and lodging will be provided to all handicapped persons for the $15 registration fee. All handicapped persons interested in learning about amateur radio are encouraged to attend. Registrations and inquiries should be sent to: The Handi-Ham System, P. O. Box 532, Rochester, Minnesota 55901.

The first May convocation, held last year, drew more than 90 persons to Camp Courage to attend some or all of the sessions. Several handicapped persons went on to receive their FCC radio amateur licenses by the end of the year. One handicapped couple, Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Fingarson, Staples, met there, and married in November.

The Handi-Ham system is a group of handicapped and interested non-handicapped radio amateurs organized to promote an interest in amateur radio among the handicapped and to help provide encouragement, equipment and training. The Handi-Ham system is a non-profit organization, affiliated with MISCCA, which operates Camp Courage and plans to build Courage Center to expand rehabilitation and recreation activities for handicapped Minnesotans.

Cost Of Driving Car Rises To 15 Cents Per Mile

Cost of owning and operating an automobile is now 15.5 cents per mile, based on driving your car 10,000 miles in a year's time, according to the Minnesota State Automobile association. The cost is based on owning and operating a 1971 standard automobile in the medium price range.

Car operation costs are divided between fixed costs and variable costs, the motoring organization reports. Fixed costs—which include insurance, registration fees and depreciation—are entailed even if the car never leaves your garage. These costs total an average of $1,125 per year, or $3.08 per day.

Variable costs, in direct relation to the number of miles driven, amount to 4.25 cents per mile, and they include gasoline and oil, tires and maintenance.

Minnesota AAA says the average motorist drives his car 10,000 miles per year. At 4.25 cents per mile, this totals $425. Adding the fixed costs of $1,125, the motorist pays out a total of $1,550 per year, or 15½ cents per mile. This cost is up a full penny since the last AAA driving cost survey taken in 1969.

In its report, AAA emphasized that its figures are only averages and are prepared as a guide for car owners who do not wish to keep detailed records.

Included in the AAA study on car operating costs is a suggested daily vacation budget for two people traveling by automobile. Although vacation expenditures depend on personal preferences, regions traveled, and the motorist's pocketbook...a couple should plan on allowing at least $16 per day for meals and snacks, $17 for lodging, $4 for tips and miscellaneous and $9 for every 300 miles of travel based on a car averaging 14 miles per gallon of gas.

In addition, the motoring organization points out, there also will be expenditures for souvenirs, amusements, admissions, retail purchases and parking fees and turnpike tolls, should they arise. AAA also cautions that it's wise to include an emergency fund in every vacation budget should unexpected trouble arise.

Private Pension Plans Subject To Annual Report

Administrators of private welfare and pension plans in Minnesota were reminded today that those with plan years ending December 31 must file annual financial reports with the U S Department of Labor by May 31.

John W. Beaty, area administrator of the labor department's labor-management services administration, said that the welfare and pension plans disclosure act requires administrators to file reports on Form D-2 for all covered plans within 150 days of the end of their plan years.

Most of the state's private welfare and pension plans close their books for the year December 31. These are the ones which must file reports no later than May 31, according to Beaty.

Form D-2 is used for plans covering 100 or more persons. Plans with 99 or fewer members are not required to file annual financial reports.

Forms are sent out by the U S department of labor, Washington, D.C. Further information may be obtained from the area office, Labor-Management Services Administration, U S Department of Labor, Room 110, Federal Building, 110 South Fourth St, Minneapolis, Minn., phone (612) 725-2591.

In addition to filing annual reports, plans covered by the welfare and pension plans disclosure act must file original plan descriptions on Form D-1 with the U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. These descriptions must be filed within 90 days after a plan becomes subject to the act. Amendments to plans are to be filed within 60 days on either Form D-1 or a simplified Form D-1A.

Expect Severe Insect Problems For Farm Crops

Estimating the 1970 corn crop loss at $45,680,423 due to corn borers and corn rootworms, the Minnesota department of agriculture today warned state farmers to prepare for even more severe insect problems this year.

Dr Rollin M Dennistoun, the department's administrator for plant and environmental concerns, reported a survey conducted by the plant industry division revealed that "Minnesota has the highest overwintering corn borer population in 10 years."

Robert Flaskerd, the survey entomologist, warned that the increased infestation and damage potential from corn borers and corn rootworms is greatest for the entire southern part of the state and in the west central region.

"Weather conditions in June will determine the intensity of the infestation. If conditions are near normal, we can expect a higher first generation population of corn borers this summer," Dr. Dennistoun stated.

Surveys conducted by department personnel have confirmed sharp increases, ranging up to 455 per cent for south central Minnesota, in the destructive corn borers, and increases in the corn rootworm population of up to 1,207 per cent in the east central district.

Compounding Minnesota's resident corn borer population problem is a U S department of agriculture survey report revealing corn borer carryovers in abutting districts of neighboring Iowa and South Dakota are up to three times the high Minnesota counts. Strong prevailing southwest winds during the moth stage of the corn borer life cycle could multiply the damage threat in southern and western Minnesota.

Actual corn borer damage to the Minnesota corn crop last year was estimated at 20,691,263 bushels, valued at $28,553,942. Corn rootworm damage was assessed at $17,052,840, in crop loss and control costs.

Failure to treat infested corn with approved insecticides last year was responsible for the loss of 10,206,000 bushels of corn valued at $14,084,280, according to Flaskerd's report. He said the survey identified 1,134,000 acres of corn land that received no insecticide treatment.

Use of approved pesticides on an estimated 1,116,000 acres of corn land was credited with saving 10,044,000 bushels of corn—an average of nine bushels per acre—valued at $13,860,720. This chemical control of insect problems cost an estimated $2,968,560, or about $2.66 per acre on the average.

Dr. Dennistoun said the 1970 corn crop loss and insect control cost was over 15 times as great as the economic loss for all other Minnesota field crops combined last year. The loss on other crops, due to insect problems, was estimated at $2,934,158.

Other crop losses, due to a variety of insect and disease problems, were estimated as follows: potatoes, $964,352; sweet corn for processing, $862,685; apples, $480,000; hay, alfalfa and grass crops, $399,641; green peas, $141,180; small grains, $38,000; soybeans, $25,500; sugar beets, $2,600.

Corn borer and corn rootworm threats to the 1971 agricultural production in Minnesota are by far the most serious of the more than 95 insect and disease problems detailed in the 1970 consolidated insect survey report just released by the plant industry division of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

117,000 Vets In State Insured For $846 Million

Director of the Veterans Administration center at Fort Snelling today reported that 117,000 Minnesota veterans were insured for over $840.5 million under five government life insurance programs in 1970.

Minnesota veterans also received over $6 million in dividends during the year, according to center director John R Murphy.

The V A official's statewide statistics were based on the agency's recently released annual report on insurance operations.

Nationally, Murphy noted, more than five million veterans were insured for about $33 billion last year, and income from all five insurance programs totalled just over $1 billion.

The report showed that VA paid nearly $301 million in death claims, and another $180 million as monthly incomes based on earlier claims. Other VA insurance transactions included payment of $30 million in disability benefits to one group of policy-holders, and $52 million to another group whose endowment policies matured.

In addition, the VA authorized a record $275 million in dividends to be paid this year to veterans holding World War I United States government life insurance and World War II national service life insurance policies, Murphy said. Veterans chose to leave about $52 million in dividends with VA to draw interest in 1970. Also during the year, VA placed $105 million in policy reserve accounts.

The agency's annual insurance report took note of the enactment of public law 91-291 last June which liberalized some aspects of the agency's insurance operations. For example, he said, one provision increased coverage of servicemen on active military duty under servicemen's group life insurance (SGLI) from a maximum of $10,000 to $15,000.

The law also extended coverage to reservists, members of the National Guard, and the Reserve Officers Training Corps while these groups participate in specific training exercises, and while travelling to and from such training.

Although the VA supervises SGLI, the program is operated by about 600 private insurance firms under a group contract with a primary insurer. The VA director said the annual insurance report is being distributed to members of Congress, service organizations, insurance firms and associations, state libraries and other public organizations.

AAA Offers Tips On Visiting At National Parks

A record number of visitors are expected this summer at the nation's 36 national parks—including many first-time visitors.

For experienced visitors, as well as first-timers, the Minnesota State Automobile association (AAA) offers the following tips for national park visitors:

Make your first stop within a park at the visitor center, especially if it's your first visit. Become acquainted with the park, its terrain, facilities, unusual weather and camp area conditions, wildlife and other features.

Drive carefully. Go slowly and be prepared to stop for animals. Be alert for natural hazards such as loose rocks. Guard against becoming captivated by the scenery when at the wheel. And give large vehicles such as logging trucks, travel trailers and motor homes plenty of passing room.

Be extremely careful with fire. Do not build any type of fire in an unventilated or poorly ventilated space. Always make certain a fire is out by throwing dirt, water, or both, on it before leaving the area.

Let park headquarters know if you plan a trip away from populated areas of the park by leaving word of your destination and intended length of stay. Take ample water, a good map, compass, first aid kit, spare rations and extra clothing.

Watch children closely so they do not venture into dangerous areas or become lost.

Do not attempt to hand-feed or pet any wild animals. "Cute" bears and other animals are highly unpredictable, and close contact should be avoided.

Never swim alone, and avoid fast-running and other dangerous water areas. Ask a ranger's advice before attempting to boat on any park water area.

Do not over-exert yourself. Take frequent rest periods and enjoy the natural beauty about you. Wear proper clothing and low-heeled shoes for walking.

The motoring organization adds that first-aid facilities are available at every national park, and that rangers are trained to meet virtually any emergency visitors might encounter.

Three TRW engineers have been honored by the American Astronautical Society and the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics for developing an oil water separator to help fight pollution in national waterways. The device can skim oil from spillage in harbors and remove and reclaim oil from industrial waste water before it enters waterways. The concept was developed by aerospace engineers to separate gasses from liquids in rocket propellant tanks and life support fluid reservoirs.

Spring Safety Is Theme For Car Care

Spring is when a young man's fancy turns ... and car owners turn their thoughts toward a spring tune-up and safety check.

Bob Kline, director of service for a major automobile manufacturer, gives his suggestions on spring tune-ups.

"You know, I've been in this business since 1936 when I started off as an automobile mechanic in Sandusky, Ohio, so I've always been impressed with the many wise motorists who, year-in-year-out, make it a practice of getting a spring tune-up.

"They know that it's a matter of spending a few bucks to save a bundle. They have a big investment in their cars and they are protecting that investment. It's something like cleaning up the yard. It's something that has to be done, and the smart ones start early.

"[illegible] and the spring check-up is one way of finding out just how much damage has been done and making corrections before the problems get worse," Kline said.

"Let's start with brakes. If your car pulls to one side when you brake, it's very possible that you have a leaky wheel cylinder, or you've got some foreign matter on the brake linings. A low brake pedal can indicate brake problems too. These are just two of the warnings, but even if you don't encounter these, get the brakes checked out thoroughly.

"Now let's talk about engine tune-up. There are two selfish reasons for a tune-up: IT will help improve your gasoline mileage, and it will lessen the emissions which are discharged from your car.

"During the winter you drive less, and make shorter trips. As a result, the plugs get fouled, and the engine builds up a lot of carbon deposits.

"Strangely enough, the travelling salesman's car is usually in lots better shape than the old maid schoolteacher's. He gets his car out on the highway and runs at 50-70 miles an hour and the engine has a chance to clean itself out."

What is the rule for when spark plugs should be replaced?

"There really isn't any single rule", Kline replied, "because it varies on the type of driving you do, and the miles you drive. As a rule of thumb, plugs should be replaced once a year for those who do most of their driving on a local basis."

We were curious about what other things could and should be checked as the weather gets better, and we take the car out on trips.

"You may not remember the last time you hit a pot-hole in the road", said Kline, "but the car does. Hit one of those big holes at even a moderate speed and you've probably nudged the wheels out of alignment.

"Getting the wheels lined up can save you money. It will save on tire wear, reduce the steering effort, and make your car a lot safer to drive. And while you're at it, rotate all the tires including the spare. This will help extend tire life.

"If you encounter a bit of vibration at higher cruising speeds, your tires or wheels may be out of balance. I recommend that you have each wheel and tire balanced when it's rotated.

"Another thing which will make your car handle poorly is a broken, or leaking, shock absorber. The warning you get on this is when you hit a bump and the car keeps bouncing.

"Really, shock absorbers don't absorb shock, they just dampen it a bit by snubbing the springs. But if the shock is broken, or leaking, there is too much rebound. It's hard, sometimes impossible, to drive safely in a car with poor shocks."

There are some things that car owners could do themselves to get the car ready for spring and save a dollar here and there.

"Start with the spring cleaning," said the ever practical Kline. "You can clean it up inside-and-out as well as almost anyone, and after a long winter there's lots to be done.

"Personally, I'd start with a [illegible]. Let their high-powered sprays do the real dirty work. Then do the finishing touches, and add a good polish job, too. While you're at it, don't forget to give the engine compartment and trunk a good cleaning.

"Then, get your wife, or child, or friend, to help you. While you operate each of the lights (parking, tail, stop and low and high beam headlights) have your helper check them out.

"In winter you get extra loads of sludge and dirt, and salt, that grind the rubber off your windshield wipers. Put on new wiper blades, and you'll be surprised at how much brighter everything will look. And while you're on wipers, make sure your windshield-washer is filled up with water and solvent.

"Last, but not least, make sure that you have your oil changed. An oil change is really one of the least costly things you can do to help prolong the life of your engine. And, that's the best time to have the oil filter replaced.

"The spring tune-up involves spending a little money to protect a big investment. That investment includes both the cost of your car, and the safety of your family. I'd call it special, spring life insurance."

'U' M Professor Urges Changes In Government

Increasing public awareness of environmental problems and convincing the legislature to restructure state government to deal with these problems were called for Monday by a University of Minnesota political science assistant professor.

Robert E. Crew Jr., also a staff assistant to Gov. Wendell Anderson, made these suggestions during an Earth Week open forum at the university's St. Paul campus.

Control of environmental problems in Minnesota and many other states suffers from a lack of coordination among various state agencies which results in a lack of overall planning, he said. State agencies are unprepared to deal with current environmental concerns due to lack of information and technical expertise, Crew added. Also, the public lacks formal channels through which it can be brought into decisions concerning the environment.

The citizens league of Minnesota has recommended a reorganization of state agencies that deal with environmental control and having an arm of the governor's office provide coordination for these agencies.

Nuclear Reactor Safety Backups Protect Public

The chance of serious injury from an accident at a nuclear power plant as determined by random failures is considerably less than one in a million per year, a University of Minnesota scientist said Monday at Earth Week activities at the university's St. Paul campus.

Herbert S Isbin, professor of chemical engineering and material sciences and a member of the Atomic Energy Commission's Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards, spoke during an open forum on electrical power production.

Although there are "no zeroes on the scale for unloading releases from a nuclear reactor," it is possible to provide reasonable assurance that nuclear reactors can operate with regard to public safety, he said.

Nuclear reactors are designed to withstand natural onslaughts such as earthquakes and hurricanes by providing safety backups. Also, designers are required to investigate the possibilities of failures in reactor components and safety backups engineered to contain radioactivity in the event of a reactor accident, Isbin added.

Controls are adequate so that nuclear reactor accidents can be coped with to minimize the consequences, he said.

Although the amount of electricity now provided by nuclear power plants is only a small per cent of the total amount of electric power, by 1980 nuclear capacity will be almost 25 per cent of the total generating capacity in the United States, Isbin said.

Indian Week Proclaimed By Gov. Anderson

Governor Wendell Anderson Friday signed an "Indian Week" proclamation in the state capitol marking May 8-10 as Indian Week and emphasizing May 10 as Indian Day.

Several Indian organizations including the American Indian Movement and Urban Indian Federation are planning festivities throughout the week, as well as celebrations in honor of well-known chiefs such as Little Crow, Hole In Day, Crazy Horse, Geronimo, Tecumseh, and others.

Indian Weeks is designed as an exchange of cultural values with the non-Indian for a better comprehension and recognition of the contributions Indians made during the development of Minnesota.

Saddle Club Elects Leaders

First meeting of the year of the Goodridge bridle club took place at the Merle Lundeen home April 18, and Bob Prestebok was elected president of the club.

Other officers elected were Roy Jorgenson, first vice president, Norma Hanson, second vice president, Merle Lundeen, secretary, Marcia Radniecki, treasurer, and Noreen Henrickson, reporter.

A planned trail ride was canceled because of rainy weather, but a ride is planned for the meeting to be held at the Howard Henrickson home May 16. Anyone interested in the saddle club is welcome to join.

2 Demonstration Farms Urged By Lt. Governor

Lieutenent Governor Rudy Perpich has urged the legislature to enact a bill to require the university to operate two demonstration farms. "I believe these farms would perform a useful function," Perpich stated.

Perpich cited statements by a committee of farmers. A committee member, Howard Hovde of Odessa, testified, "The university should be required to operate demonstration farms, paying all of the same expenses as does the operating farmer to provide a model for economic efficiency which might be studied by farmers."

Charles McLaughlin of Ortonville criticized university studies of potential farm profitability in agriculture. McLaughlin cited a report on beef cattle housing and feeding.

"This report is most [illegible]," [illegible]. "It purports to show that beef cattle feeding is highly profitable, but these reports were obtained by deleting actual cost items such as trucking, taxes and insurance. At the same time, manure was counted as income. Manure is not accepted as legal tender for repayment of bank notes."

"We were shocked," added Albert Knutson of Ortonville, "to hear university testimony that the plan is not workable because they would be required to pay a minimum wage to each farm operator of $8,400 per year. Is that unreasonable for a farmer, with his seven-day work week? We believe that we detect a bias that farmers are supposed to be second-class citizens."

"In reviewing the research report," said Larry Taffe of Barry, "we note that the university has been the recipient of grants from various companies selling feeds and farm buildings. We wonder if the scientific objectivity of the professors has been influenced by these grants?"

"I think the statements by the members of this committee suggest good reasons for the passage of this bill," concluded Lt. Gov. Perpich.

Indians Fight Mound Dig At Winnibigoshish

David Munnell, chairman of the Leech Lake reservation at Cass Lake has enlisted the aid of the Minnesota Indian Affairs commission to prevent Indian grave mounds from being dug up.

The department of archeology at Bemidji state college has received a grant of $4,000 to perform this study.

Indian graves have long been of particular interest for departments of archeology in their studies of the American Indian. However, no consent has been sought from the reservation leaders to begin the scheduled excavation.

The mounds are located in the vicinity of the Winnibigoshish dam area. Eldon Johnson, state archeologist from the University of Minnesota apparently contends that since the mounds are over 1,000 years old, they could not possibly belong to the Indians anymore.

He also contends that since the corps of engineers now controls the site the mounds are no longer part of the reservation. The Indian Affairs commission would question if Indians could use the same premise to initiate studies of non Indian cemeteries.

The Minnesota Indian Education committee unanimously opposed the action at a meeting held April 16. Several other organizations are picking up the momentum and threaten open demonstrations against the scheduled excavation of the Indian graves in the event an injunction stopping this action cannot be obtained by the Indian Affairs commission.

Vigness To Take Part In Session On Heart Care

Lester Vigness, a member of the Northwestern hospital services staff here, will participate in a conference on coronary care for medical electronics technicians Friday in Minneapolis.

Sponsored by the Minnesota Heart association's intensive coronary care unit project and Northlands regional medical program, the conference will feature presentations by knowledgeable personnel on hospital electronic equipment and its correct use.

According to the heart association, coronary care units are using more and more sophisticated heart monitoring and recording equipment, and this has increased the need for programs of information on operating such equipment safely.

Guarantee On Bonded Fabrics Is Important

To be sure of satisfaction when you buy a bonded fabric, look for a guarantee or certification label.

That suggestion comes from Thelma Baierl, extension clothing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Although many of the bonded fabrics on the market have been satisfactory, some have peeled, puckered or bubbled or caused other problems. However, during the last two years the industry has been making improvements in the quality of bonding.

A guarantee on bonded fabric means that it will not shrink more than three per cent, the fabric will not discolor or stiffen and the two layers will not separate.

Check the hangtag, Miss Baierl advises, to see if the garment must be dry cleaned or if it can be washed. If the label says "dry clean only," be sure to follow those instructions. However, when a guaranteed bonded fabric carries a label saying it is washable, it may also be dry cleaned.

Gilbert Attends Eye Meeting

Dr. Edward Gilbert, Thief River Falls optometrist, attended the recent three day 71st annual meeting of the Minnesota Optometric association in Minneapolis.

Speakers at the seminar included Dr. John Kennedy of St. Paul. Dr. Kennedy spoke on fitting techniques for the new soft contact lens which recently received approval by the Food and Drug administration.

Leo Keskinen, Director of instruction at Itasca state junior college in Grand Rapids, spoke on the new optometric assistant training program started last year. The course is eleven months in length and the first class will graduate in June, 1971.

Any high school graduate interested in an optometric assistant's career can receive further information by writing the Dean of Instruction, Itasca State Junior College, Grand Rapids, Minnesota 55744.

Evan Armstrong Named To Direct Activity Center

Evan Armstrong

Evan Armstrong has been hired to serve as director of the Falls day activity center, starting on July 1, according to Art Heinze, chairman of the Falls day activity center board.

Armstrong will replace Lon Miller who has resigned effective June 30. Miller has served as director for nearly two and one-half years and plans to continue working in the mental retardation field.

Evan Armstrong received a B.S. degree in education with a major in mental retardation and elementary education and a minor in psychology from Minot state college, Minot, N.D. He has had two years of teaching experience with the trainable mentally retarded children in Thief River Falls.

Armstrong had two and one-half years' training as a student psychiatric nurse in the institute for mental diseases in Manitoba before entering college. He also had three years experience as a psychiatric orderly in Minot and three months as a counselor to juvenile offenders while attending Minot state college.

The Falls day activity center is presently serving 18 retarded adults in a program consisting of training in activities of daily living, limited academic skills, arts and crafts, recreation, household skills, summer camp, community activity and pre-job training.

Bankers Ass'n. Contributes To Economic Group

Member banks of the Minnesota Bankers association recently contributed over $10,000 to the Minnesota state council on economic education. This was the 2nd year that the state's banking industry has supported the work of the council through the association.

Now in its tenth year of operation, the Minnesota state council on economic education is a non-profit educational organization formed to finance and coordinate economic education programs in Minnesota. Financial support of the council is a joint effort between the educationst, business, labor and financial sectors of the state.

The association members, by resolution at their annual convention last year, committed themselves to continuing financial support of the council to insure "indepth knowledge of our economic system".

Minnesota Bankers association President Marvin R. Campbell, Crookston, said, "The funds were collected from most of the 730 banks in the state. However, the figure does not reflect the individual contributions made by many institutions in addition to the MBA campaign."

"Means and end are controvertible terms in my philosophy of life....There is no wall of separation between means and end. Indeed the Creator has given us control over means, none over the end. Realization of the goal is in exact proportion to that of the means....The means may be likened to a seed, the end to a tree; and there is just the same inviolable connection between the means and the end as there is between the seed and the tree." —Gandhi

Still Time To File

There will be opportunity through tomorrow (Tuesday) to file for a position on the Thief River Falls board of education. Three members' terms expire this year and as of this writing only one has filed for reelection.

It is a little surprising, considering the number of people willing to give counsel and advice, that there have been no other filings for the board. Board service is an opportunity to help accomplish some of those things which have been suggested at public meetings and in private conversation. Talk is cheap but service has high value.

Without advance filings, the board posts will be wide open to write-in campaigns, with the best organized and largest number groups having the greatest chance of success in electing their candidates. It is entirely possible that such a group could elect all three members whose terms are up this year on the seven-member board. Election is for a three-year term.

There is still time to file. Actions speak louder than words.

Matter Of Priorities

The following opinion by Lou Husmann was reprinted in the Minnesota Education News from "The Reporter", published by the NEA in West St. Paul. Our comments follow that opinion.

Check around—How many of the people now complaining about their $400-$800 real estate taxes also bought a new snowmobile, a pickup camper, installed a basement barroom, or joined the country club?

It's an interesting phenomenon that this generation—The Establishment—is not willing to pay the cost of an education for their children that they themselves were privileged to get.

In the past, Americans have regarded the concept of an education for all children as an article of faith. Parents vowed that their children deserved a better education than they had and often made sacrifices to uphold that ideal.

Now voters and taxpayers are rejecting bond issues and beating down tax increases for education, even though it must be evident that this will result in rapid deterioration of the educational program.

In all of this frustration, the teacher is the popular whipping boy. While building costs and the costs of teaching materials and supplies are skyrocketing, demands are being made to hold the line on teachers' salaries. Citizens retaliate against the current rate of inflation by voting against necessary school support and the cost of living increases asked by teachers this year.

The crucial question arises: If our schools and programs continue to deteriorate and if professional salaries lose pace with those of other vocations, what is the future for education? One need only travel to visit, or need read about the schools of Mississippi, Alabama, or Kentucky to see the answer. These and other states will never recover from the legacy of a populace that was unwilling to pay the cost of a good education.

Husmann is repeating the old line about priorities that isn't all as cut and dried in application as it may seem. There are others who use the same logic on a variety of subjects. If we stop the war in Vietnam we can use the funds for education. If we junk the SST program we can channel the money saved into welfare programs. If we spend less money on defense we can spend more on civil rights. If we abandon the space program we can save millions for fighting crime in the streets.

Always, however, the talk is of using the money for something else, rather than letting the taxpayer keep it for his own use. Government officials don't seem to realize it, but money spent by individuals stimulates the economy equally as much as the same amount spent by the government.

It is unfair to be critical of taxpayers for complaint about rapidly increasing taxes because they prefer to spend their earnings on themselves and their families. How many people now complaining about their $200 to $1,200 real estate taxes were unable to buy a snowmobile, camper, basement barroom or join the country club? Isn't that just as relevant a question?

Indeed, how many teachers were unable, because of inadequate salaries, to do at least one of the particular things mentioned? Perhaps that isn't a fair question, but it seems relevant. Is it more unreasonable for an ordinary taxpayer to want to retain more of his income for his personal use than it is for a public employee to demand a wage increase to provide more income for his or her personal use?

It seems the matter of priorities depends upon which side of the line the dollar lies.

Husmann states that The Establishment is not willing to pay the cost of an education for their children that they themselves were privileged to get. We contend that this is not true. If the education being provided today is the same as for the prior generation, then education has meant precious little to educators. If higher costs mean a better education, then education should be better now. And maybe Mom and Dad are satisfied that the education their youngsters are receiving is good enough right now.

Mississippi, Alabama and Kentucky are not Minnesota, and the situation that exists in those states is not at all the same as the situation here. If our schools and programs have been deteriorating—as the writer indicates—in the face of higher salaries and higher costs, then a closer look at the return on the investment is indicated. Perhaps we are not getting our dollar's worth of learnin' like we always thought we were.

Worth The Cost

Comment on individual involvement in political campaign financing was provided as follows recently in the Morris Sun:

For a number of years Minnesota tax law has permitted taxpayers to deduct as an expense up to $100 in political contributions. Presumably the purpose of the act is to encourage people to take an active interest in government and in the political party or candidates of their choice.

At the present time the federal government is considering the same kind of a proposal. It might cost the federal government a few dollars in income tax receipts, but if it stimulated widespread public interest in elections and government, it would appear to be well worth the small loss of tax receipts.

Interest in such a program has been heightened in recent years, partly because of the increasing costs of political campaigns. It is not unusual for two or three times as much money to be spent on a campaign as the job pays to the person who is elected. Obviously, the successful candidates are likely to be limited to people with large financial resources of their own or people who can attract large donations from other people. Those who make such large contributions are likely to expect to be remembered when legislation of interest to them is being considered.

It makes more sense to have some kind of a program under which large numbers of average persons can make small political contributions, expecting primarily in return to receive better government for all rather than special consideration.

Only One Way

There is only one way to cut taxes and that is to reduce spending.

We are being given a "snow" job in Minnesota and some people believe that by shifting the tax burden from one group to another we are reducing taxes.

The Governor isn't inclined to reduce spending. Fact is he told the legislators to raise their salaries. He probably wouldn't object much to a salary increase for himself.

When he told the legislators to reduce their numbers it might be construed as a move to reduce state spending. But, he knew, as well as everyone else does, that legislators are not going to vote themselves out of office. That was a safe admonition.

Where is the money to come from to reduce our real estate taxes? An increase in the income tax isn't logical in Minnesota which already has the highest income tax of any state in the nation. Next are the liquor drinkers, the cigarette smokers and the sales tax contributors.

All these substitute taxes are collected in small daily, weekly or bi-weekly driblets. They lull the people into thinking someone else is paying the taxes.

Borrowed Nonsense

Things to Do Today
1. Get organized.
2. Talk to wife.
3. Get reorganized.
4. Talk to wife.
5. Abandon entire idea.
6. Talk to self.

On clothes she spends her legal tender;
Because this truth she's found—
A dress can make a girl look slender,
And a hundred men look 'round.

It isn't buying on time that's difficult; it's paying on time.

To the Editor,

With all the interest in hockey around the area it's funny you can't find the North Star Hockey games on the radio dial. The Twins and the Vikings are carried but not our other Minnesota team. After a long search the other night we ended up listening to the Boston, Montreal game over a Canadian station.

notes from the governor

One of the most disturbing experiences of my short tenure as governor occurred a few weeks ago when I invited a group of Vietnam veterans into my office.

The men had been picketing outside the State Capitol in support of the bill (now law) which challenges the President's right to send Minnesota servicemen to fight in undeclared wars.

Inside the office, the group was cordial. We traded small talk. They spoke briefly of their experiences in Indochina, but more about what is happening to them at home.

In vivid, personal terms, they expressed their concern about the lack of jobs for Vietnam returnees.

They were not begging for anything; they simply said the job market is very tight for veterans, and is getting tighter.

More than 101,000 Minnesotans were out of work in March, the highest total since 1961.

We're now seeing something we haven't seen in 30 years—people standing in long lines waiting for jobs—jobs which in most cases just aren't there.

Jerry Christenson, our state planning director, advised me last week that employment experts are saying job prospects for young people in the coming summer will be the worst since Depression days.

For younger Vietnam veterans, the jobless rate has already risen to nearly 14 per cent, compared with just 8.2 per cent a year ago.

State government can provide some help, and we are taking several steps in an attempt to open up jobs for our unemployed. We have urged business and labor leaders to do the same.

Last week I established a 24-member governor's jobs-for-veterans committee to help meet the particularly urgent needs of the Vietnam returnees.

I do not expect these efforts to solve the unemployment problem in Minnesota, but I do believe we must make every legitimate effort that we can. I would hope the readers of this column do likewise.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

For several weeks a subcommittee of the tax committee has been working on a proposal for senior citizen tax relief. Those people on fixed income are more affected by the recent real estate tax increases and desperately need some relief. The committee considered some twenty bills to lower real estate taxes for the elderly. The plan they have agreed to after weeks of study and hearings will provide $9.2 million tax relief during the next two years. This is approximately $700,000 more than recommended by the governor in his program.

The proposal that is being considered includes the following modifications in the current law:

1. Extended relief to more persons over 65 years old by permitting them to file for relief during the year they become 65. This simplifies the law and conforms the relief to the income tax legislation.

2. Increasing the maximum real estate property taxes from $600 to $800 for which relief may be obtained.

3. Substantially simplifying the form to reduce confusion and misunderstanding.

4. Increases relief to all eligible persons over 65.

5. Increases income eligibility limits from $3,500 to $5,000.

6. Provide notice to all real estate taxpayers that they may be eligible for relief under the law.

The major change in providing a simpler, more understandable program for senior citizens requires switching from a percentage rate to a table. By using this simplified procedure, I believe more people will take advantage of the benefits they are entitled to.

Under the present law the average relief for the next biennium would be $82 and $89 respectively. Under this proposal, that relief will be increased to $134 and $35.00 respectively.

It is my belief that if this proposal becomes law, we will have a simpler and less confusing program which provides relief for senior citizens. This bill does not contain a retroactive feature. It is my opinion that the retroactive laws create too many inequities.

I believe this approach to improve the law shows a more sincere concern for the senior citizens than those who have been using it for political expediency. This program will provide approximately $18 million relief to senior citizens in the next biennium. This is approximately a $9 million increase. This basically doubles the relief to senior citizens, or provides twice the relief to senior citizens that the present system would provide.

Join the Walk for Development

On May 8 and 9, more than one million young men and women will walk — some as many as 30 miles — to raise money to help those in underdeveloped areas both in this country and abroad.

Their hike is called the International Walk for Development. Their goal: to raise $5 million.

It works this way. In each of the 350 communities where walks are scheduled this year, each walker enlists a sponsor who agrees to pay a certain sum — $10 a mile, $20 a mile — for each mile walked.

The money is then contributed to local or international development projects chosen by the communities themselves.

Fifteen percent of the funds raised go to educational programs of the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, which coordinates the walks through its Young World Development arm.

Of the rest, 42½ percent goes to a local development project — nutrition education in North Dakota, a day care center in Kansas — and 42½ percent to an international project - CARE, perhaps, or scholarships for agricultural study in South Korea.

The walks dramatize the underlying goals of development — alleviating the despair and suffering caused by starvation, poverty and overpopulation, reversing the degradation of the environment and reducing military spending.

To find out more about starting or joining a walk, write to the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, 1717 H Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C. or call (202) 382-6727.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Many men and women today have never heard of emphysema. Perhaps some never will.

Until recently, not much was said or written about emphysema. Now many people, particularly elderly men, are very conscious of this distressing ailment. Some have become so incapacitated by cough and shortness of breath they can scarcely leave their beds or chairs.

Emphysema is by far the most common chronic lung disease, according to the Minnesota State Medical association. In emphysema, the air sacs of the lungs dilate and lose their elasticity because of irritation. The patient cannot properly exhale. Therefore, there is little room for fresh air to enter the air sacs when he inhales. Excessive carbon dioxide accumulates in his lungs and blood stream and affects his brain. His tissues may become water-logged or, due to the increased work load, his heart may fail.

Emphysema has no single cause. Many irritants in the air one breathes injure the bronchial tubing system as do some diseases. But, cigarette smoke is the most common irritant and causes 90-95 per cent of the cases of emphysema.

Emphysema doesn't develop suddenly and the disease may be severe before symptoms appear. Over half of the lung tissue must be diseased or destroyed before the first symptoms show up.

Physicians do not know how to prevent emphysema but they do know how to help patients live more comfortably with it. A victim's physician knows best which treatment most benefits his patient.

Soft contact lenses have been developed by researchers and have now been approved for public distribution by the Food and Drug Administration, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

Experimentally, the soft lenses have been successfully used for a limited number of patients with various eye diseases to relieve pain and control or improve their eye conditions according to researchers.

They report that the lenses act as a bandage across the surface of the cornea relieving pain. The lenses are particularly useful in patients who need large refractive corrections and for patients following cataract surgery as well as in those who require special treatment because of corneal or conjunctival disease (diseases of the epithelium lining the front of the eyes and inside of the eyelids). Soft lenses improve vision of normal myopic and hyperopic patients and are more costly tolerated than firm lenses.

According to clinicians, the soft lenses differ from hard contact lenses in several ways: 1) they absorb fluid, 2) they are soft and pliable, and 3) they resume their original shape even after gross deformation. In addition, the soft lenses fit the cornea more closely than the hard lenses but are just as transparent.

The committee on ophthalmology, Minnesota State Medical association, which maintains a constant vigil over all types of eye care, including many aspects of contact lenses, has followed the development of the soft lenses carefully and commends the progress. It encourages even further study of these eye care methods and recommends the use of the soft contact lenses on those patients approved by the ophthalmologist.

Some people think that diabetes is "catching". It is not, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

Medical scientists believe it is an inherited condition, however, they have had difficulty defining the precise pattern of inheritance. In addition, they know that diabetes runs in families and may begin at nearly any age in a family member without respect to the age at which it develops in other members of the family.

Most likely, diabetes will be found in the following persons who are high risk individuals and should watch carefully for diabetes: (1) Those over 40, (2) those who are obese; (3) blood relatives of diabetics; (4) mothers who have given birth to babies that weighed nine pounds or more at birth, (5) women who have shown carbohydrate intolerance during pregnancy; (6) anyone who has demonstrated an excess amount of blood sugar, hyperglycemia, on previous testing; and (7) persons with other related chronic diseases.

Here are the common major symptoms everyone, particularly high risk persons should watch for: Excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, easy tiring, changes in vision and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

It is possible to have diabetes without experiencing any of the usual symptoms. Today approximately 68,000 Minnesotans have undiscovered diabetes. These are people who have the disorder but do not know about it, probably because recognizable symptoms are not yet present. Frequent testing for diabetes is a wise precaution.

A U. S.-French combine has developed a giant energy absorbing net to prevent end of runway airliner crashes by any commercial air transport. Now in final testing at Edwards AFB, Calif., the system, according to its developers, could be available at airports within a year at a cost of $500,000 to $600,000.

The 'Shot' That Saves

The injection that this serious ten year old is about to administer to herself is, in a true sense, a life saving shot. For she is filling up the syringe with synthesized insulin.

Insulin, a hormone that the pancreas gland produces naturally, is needed to change sugary and starchy foods, the body's main sources of energy, into a form of sugar for the body to burn as fuel. Human energy, essentially, derives from these foods.

But when the body no longer does so, diabetes, a condition of too much sugar in the blood and in the urine, results. As with the child here, in approximately five per cent of all diabetes cases, the condition occurs before age 15.

Just 50 years ago, a diabetic lived, at most, not more than 10 years from the start of his affliction. Today, he lives practically as long as anyone else does — and as usefully too — provided he follows a regimen prescribed especially for his condition by a physician.

The regimen comprises insulin in combination with diet, to control the sugar and starch he consumes, and exercise. In theory, the more a person eats, the more insulin he needs to help put the food to work. But by playing and working, he lessens his dependency on insulin.

Better living standards, a part of which means richer foods on tables, coupled with longer life spans have resulted in an increase of diabetes world wide, according to the World Health Organization.

Types of persons susceptible to diabetes have long been identified. Women, in general, are more likely than men to become afflicted. But also prone to diabetes are those past 40, those from families where there is a history of diabetes, and those overweight.

According to Dr. Abraham Horwitz, director of WHO's regional office for the Americas, 85 per cent of all diabetics are obese or tend towards obesity. Indeed, diabetes is most prevalent in the better fed nations. U.S. morbidity and mortality from diabetes, for instance, is the world's highest. Thus, if obesity is reduced, there's every chance the incidence of diabetes will be too.

A newly detected diabetic is likely to think of his career as ended. It is true that diabetes, as of now, cannot be cured. But diabetes can be managed — and when it is, a diabetic can go as far in his calling as his physical, mental, and educational potential takes him.

A well-known success story is that of William F. Talbert, the tennis star, who is winner of 25 U.S. titles and 25 world championships, and, as well, a former captain of his country's Davis Cup team. He has been a diabetic since age 10.

Today, the greatest single hazard of diabetes is not the condition itself, but ignorance of self-care. To make the point that diabetics are capable of living ordinary and useful lives, provided the condition is detected early, WHO has selected as its theme for 1971 "A Full Life Despite Diabetes."

It follows, naturally, that the sooner the condition is detected, the sooner the sufferer is able to receive the training that leads to his mastering of the techniques of self-care. Learning how to live with diabetes is vital to a diabetic living a full life.

As part of an education and information program during 1971, the World Health Organization is highlighting the theme "A Full Life Despite Diabetes."

Fêting Mom

Lucky families that have several mothers to honor on Mother's Day — Mom, two Grandmas, maybe even great-Grandmas — can find taking them all out for the day an expensive proposition.

Yet every one wants all the mothers in the family to be honored on this day dedicated to them.

An easy, inexpensive and yet charming way to please the whole family is a Mother's Day Four O'Clock. On a pretty spring Sunday it gives the guests time to gather together and allows the host to invite a longer list of relatives and friends.

A while back this sort of party would have been called a 'tea', but today, since coffee and lightly alcoholic beverages are often served the name is somewhat misleading. So 'Four O'Clock' has become popular in many areas. An added advantage of the Four O'Clock is that a four to six time schedule is taken seriously and guests don't linger on and on.

What to serve? A sandwich assortment including, thin cucumber slices with dill on buttered white bread; minced chicken, cream cheese and date-nut bread; liver pate pinwheels, chopped egg and olive triangles. Chocolate brownies, cookies, tiny tarts, and minature Danish will please the sweets eaters, along with chocolate mints.

To drink, serve freshly brewed tea and coffee, both hot and iced if the day is warm. For those who prefer a more sprightly pickup have a chilled aperitif handy, such as the European favorite, Campari. A smartly refreshing, garnet-colored Campari and soda looks festive in the glass and gives Grandma (who knows?) and all the adults a low proof alternative to the other beverages.

Provide a guest book for each Mother you are honoring and ask each guest just to write a small thought in each. These make lovely, sentimental mementos for Mom. A Four O'Clock is neither too early or too late to bring out the charm and friendliness in everyone — just the right formula for a happy Mother's Day.

Abortion Proposal Dies In Committee

An active letter writing campaign together with growing public awareness of the barbarity of abortion was credited this week with the defeat of proposed abortion legislation in the Minnesota state legislature. The defeat came on a 20-9 vote by the Minnesota House of Representatives health, welfare and corrections committee last Friday.

The vote was on a motion to table the report of a special subcommittee which had earlier been set up to consider several permissive abortion bills. Although the subcommittee had not recommended passage of the legislation, it did recommend that the bills be "returned to their authors," thus opening the way for a possible pro-abortion attempt to get floor consideration for their proposals. Acceptance of the motion to table, almost certainly precludes such a possibility and is tantamount to killing permissive abortion legislation in the 1971 session of the legislature.

In killing the proposed bills, Minnesota became the 20th state in 1971 to turn down such legislation. Others have included Illinois, Iowa, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Mississippi, Indiana, Maryland, Nevada, Colorado, Florida, Connecticut, New Jersey, Georgia, North Carolina, Massachusetts, Arizona, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

"It is obvious that the pro-abortionist's attempt to stampede the United States into abortion on demand is faltering," according to Dr. Fred Mecklenburg, president of Minnesota Citizens concerned for Life. "People are beginning to realize what abortion is all about—it is the taking of innocent human life," he stated. Dr. Mecklenburg expressed thanks to the tens of thousands of Minnesota citizens who assisted in defeat of the proposed legislation by writing to their state senators and representatives.

"Without this effort—this spontaneous expression of public opinion—our victory would not have been possible. The people who have participated in this effort can be proud of what they have done. They have affirmed the dignity and sanctity of human life in an age when life is being increasingly assaulted."

During the rest of the legislative session, the MCCL will lobby for positive solutions to the abortion problem, Dr. Mecklenburg added. "It isn't enough to be against abortion," he said. "We must do something about alleviating the underlying social problems which create pressure for permissive abortion."

Legislation to be supported by the MCCL includes mandatory vaccination against German measles and health insurance for unwed mothers.

"The pro-abortionists have relied heavily on irrational arguments about German measles babies and the plight of the unwed mother," Dr. Mecklenburg said. "What they don't seem to realize is that there are positive solutions to these problems. We think that the proposals which we are now supporting will go a long way toward such solutions. A mandatory Rubella immunization program could practically eliminate the possibility of German measles deformities at a low cost to society," he said. "If the pro-abortionists are interested in doing something worthwhile they will join with us in supporting such legislation."

Last Friday's vote by the full health, welfare and corrections committee culminated several months of hearings on two abortion bills. One of these, the Bell-McMillan-Ulland-Ojala bill called for abortion on demand. A second bill authored by Rep. Vern Sommerdorf, a St. Paul legislator, and S. Adams, O. Bang, R. North and S. Enebo, provided for abortion on demand up to 90 days with approval of a three-member panel to be appointed by the state board of medical examiners for any abortions performed in pregnancies beyond the 90-day term. A 72-hour waiting period was provided, along with counseling by county welfare departments.

Army Offers Assignments In Europe Area

U. S. Army now has a special assignment option open to all men who are entering service for the first time that guarantees an eligible applicant a minimum period of 16 months in Europe after completing basic and advanced individual training, according to the Thief River Falls recruiter.

Staff Sgt. Ron Anderson added that terms of the enlistment contract vary from three to six years. The Army guarantees an assignment with the Army in Europe for a minimum period of 16 months upon completing training in the infantry, armor, or artillery specialties.

The enlistee will be trained in his chosen Army career group or in a military occupational specialty selected by the Army in line with the man's qualifications.

The option also guarantees qualified applicants enlistment, on a limited basis and subject to existing vacancies, in such European Army units as the 3rd Armored division, 4th Armored division, 3rd Infantry division, 8th infantry division, 2nd Armored cavalry regiment, and 3rd Brigade, 1st Infantry division.

For full information on this new option, interested young men in the area should contact Staff Sgts. Ron Anderson or James Long at the U. S. Army recruiting office at 109 E. Second St. in Thief River Falls, or call them at 681-1154. Collect calls will be accepted.

Farmers Advised To Stop Social Security Checks

Grain farmers getting social security benefits and expecting a net farm profit of more than $1,680 in 1971 should ask their social security office to stop their social security checks, according to Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security.

This year, most farmers have started field work in April. Before that they have been making advance preparations. These include getting equipment in order, getting seed, fertilizer and fuel, contacting ASC, keeping records and numerous other similar activities.

In figuring when to stop payments, the farmer must count the time he spends in preparatory activities before he actually starts field work, Kittelson pointed out.

Any farmer on the Thief River Falls telephone exchange may stop his benefits by telephoning the Grand Forks office. He may call toll-free by dialing the operator and asking for Zenith 8450. If he prefers, he may stop payments by letter.

Anyone 72 in January of 1971 or earlier need not stop his payments, regardless of earnings.

Livestock Ditch Wastes May Be Harmful To Man

Infection of man and animals is possible from the sludge, effluents and manure of an oxidation ditch used for livestock waste handling, University of Minnesota researchers said today.

Reports on University of Minnesota research were presented April 20 and 21 at the International symposium on livestock wastes at Ohio state university.

The U. S. public health service granted the University of Minnesota $90,000 in July of 1968 to determine the life expectancy of infectious agents in the wastes from an oxidation ditch.

Conducting the research under this grant were Doctors Stanley L. Diesch and Benjamin S. Pomeroy, both of the department of veterinary microbiology and public health, and Professor E. R. Allred of the department of agricultural engineering.

A public health problem is created when livestock wastes contaminated by leptospira, a pathogen capable of infecting man and animals, are handled in the oxidation ditch. In stimulated winter conditions, leptospires survived in the aerated manure for up to 18 days and for shorter time periods in effluent and sludge, they reported.

For the past three years, university researchers have been evaluating the treatment of beef cattle wastes under below-zero winter temperatures at a pilot-size field installation-ditch at the Minnesota Rosemount experiment station.

Russell E. Larson, an engineer with the U.S. department of agriculture, and James A. Moore, an agricultural engineer at the University of Minnesota, reported on the oxidation ditch at the symposium.

Trial tests show that in some below-zero climates an oxidation ditch can be operated successfully for a 150-day batch period. Additional research is needed, such as a study of ditch operation at waste depths of five to six feet, which may be required by closer confinement of beef cattle. The interrelation between ventilation system design and efficient operation of the ditch also needs to be investigated, they said.

Solids handling, especially with high roughage and whole grain rations, presents some unsolved problems. Recovering and recycling unused feed may provide the means to reduce treatment cost by lowering feed costs and reducing the solid waste load, Larson and Moore said.

Most Highway Deaths Happen During Darkness

In an analysis of the 54 highway fatalities which occurred during March, it was found that most of them, particularly pedestrians, happened during the hours of darkness, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

Of the 11 pedestrians who were killed during March, eight were struck between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Second to pedestrians in night time deaths were single car accidents in which the driver "ran off the road"—nine of the 14 occurred at night.

The highest number of deaths, 26, were caused by collisions of two or more vehicles. These were evenly divided between the day and nighttime hours.

"We also know from coroners' reports on driver and pedestrians that there is a definite connection between many of these deaths and the use of alcohol," Hoaglund said, "and the heaviest drinking occurs between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m."

"For example, three pedestrians were killed during the late night hours—one at 11:30 p.m. and two at 1:30 a.m. Three of the single car accident victims crashed between midnight and 2 a.m., and of the six, five occurred on weekends.

"The preponderance of nighttime crashes is not peculiar to the month of March—they overshadow the daylight crashes the year round.

"From this experience all drivers should exercise greater caution during these hours and particularly on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. These are the times when danger is greatest for the driver and for the pedestrian."

Household Help Tax Due Apr. 30

April 30 is an important tax deadline for individuals who employ household help, according to George Lethert, IRS district director.

That is the last day to file Form 942, and pay social security taxes on wages paid for the three-month period ending March 31.

The tax must be reported for any household employee who earns $50 or more in cash wages during the quarterly period, Lethert stated.

Taxpayers who have filed previously receive tax forms from IRS. Other home owners, liable for the tax, are not relieved from filing because forms are not mailed to them. They may secure forms from any local IRS office.

If you are a home owner who employed household help, and are required to file a return and pay the tax, be sure to file by April 30.

Northern Marine Given Franchise On Car Finish

Northern Marine and Ming center of Thief River Falls has been granted the franchise for this city by Mid American Ming of Denver, Colo., according to officers of the company.

The Ming process is a chemical glazing process which is applied to car finishes to put a permanent glossy finish on the paint. Northern Marine is equipped to apply the chemical while the owner waits or will give car owners rides while their car is being treated.

"It is not a waxing job and you do not have to do this again," Art Forsberg said of the process. "All that is necessary is to wash the car with water and it will look like new."

He also added that Northern Marine has been named representative for Coleman sports items.

Corn Leaf Blight Less Prevalent In South States

Southern corn leaf blight is less prevalent in southern states now that it was at this time a year ago, according to Herbert G. Johnson, University of Minnesota extension plant pathologist.

Johnson says there are several reasons for the reduced blight levels.

Southern areas have planted less susceptible T cytoplasm corn compared to last year.

A frost in southern Texas damaged or killed some very early planted corn. This reduced the amount of plant material for disease build-up in that area.

The dry weather in Florida and Texas is expected to reduce spore formation and new infection.

"However, the southern leaf blight has the potential for very rapid build-up when conditions are favorable so our present advantage could be lost in the future," Johnson says.

Infection of the new crop from local sources concerns many farmers, and both corn crop refuse and corn in cribs may be a source of the fungus, Johnson points out. The southern blight fungus has been found on corn crop refuse in all corn belt states. However, the fungus has deteriorated since last winter and is now more difficult to find.

The 1970 corn crop that is being moved away from cribs may also be a source of the fungus when it's handled, Johnson explains. However, its significance is hard to estimate. Tests on last year's corn have shown the fungus is present in the kernels, but spores on the surface are uncommon and difficult to find.

The significance of the few spores found on last year's corn crop must be considered in relation to weather conditions, Johnson says. He says we can expect some traces of southern corn leaf blight earlier in the season this year because of local spore sources. But with normal temperature and weather conditions the disease is not likely to build up until middle or late summer.

The over-all severity of the blight will be determined by a combination of local fungus sources, wind-blown spores from the south and weather conditions. High temperatures and moist conditions favor the blight and are most common the last half of July. This is also about the time when spores are apt to move in from the south. This means the mid-July to early August period will probably be the telling period in Minnesota for southern corn leaf blight, Johnson concludes.

Eight-cent American Flag stamp printed on the nine-color Huck press in sheet and coil form will be first placed on sale at Washington, D.C., on May 10.

The stamp was designed by Stevan Dohanos of Westport, Conn., chairman of the Citizens' Stamp Advisory committee. It depicts a bird's-eye view of the White House from the Pennsylvania Avenue side, with the Washington monument and the Jefferson memorial visible in the distance.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. 20013.

A close-fitting enclosure of postal card thickness should be placed in each envelope and the flap either turned in or sealed. The envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 8 cent Flag Stamp."

Scientists Study Meat Substitutes

How good are the new substitutes for meat—imitation bacon, chicken, ground beef and pork—now being served by many institutions and in some cases appearing on grocery shelves?

Scientists at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, are trying to devise methods for detecting nutritional losses that can occur during processing and storage of substitute foods made from oilseeds such as soybeans.

Rats are being fed soybean products to determine the effect of heat processing on the nutritive value of the product, according to Peter Manning, assistant professor of food science at the university. Rats provide a sensitive index to protein quality loss in foods for human consumption.

Foods often lose vitamins, proteins, flavor and color during processing and storage. Substitute foods should supply at least the nutrients present in significant amounts in the foods they are designed to replace, according to a report from the International Working group, concerned with food nutrition.

Soy protein, used to make substitute foods, appears to compare favorably in nutritional value with meat, Manning said. Although soybeans provide high quality protein, they lack adequate levels of sulfur-containing amino acids. But soybean products could be fortified, he added.

The value of fortifying vegetable proteins with essential amino acids has been demonstrated with animal feeds. This knowledge is being put to use in human foods with considerable success in India where a few pounds of lysine, an amino acid, are added to a ton of wheat to increase the protein quality of bread to that of milk.

Soy protein preparations have presented flavor problems, particularly in imitation milk. A University of Minnesota report stated that "purification of the protein reduces flavor intensity, but it has not been completely eliminated in the best preparations." Flavor is also a problem when using other cereal proteins. Production of a sufficiently bland cereal protein is technically possible, but substantial research will be required, University food scientists said.

Recent research has shown that soybeans can be kept from developing their characteristic "painty" flavor and odor by inactivating the enzyme lipoxidase in the whole bean before it can cause the off-flavor. University of Illinois scientists have developed a number of food products to demonstrate the usefulness and acceptability of the treated whole soybeans including canned pork and beans, several types of vegetarian soyproducts, soy with chicken, lamb or pork, soy soup and soy vegetable salad. About two dozen dry products also have been developed by the scientists at the Urbana, Ill., campus.

The increasing importance of substitute foods in American diets was emphasized in a recent talk by a U.S. department of agriculture economist William C. Manley, director of the USDA's marketing economic division (MED), said the MED has concluded that at least 15 to 20 per cent of all meat used in food preparations at institutional and retail markets, particularly in the form of processed foods, will be displaced by substitutes by 1980.

Consumers have responded "favorably" to a substitute strip-like bacon product test marketed in Fort Wayne, Ind. Sales obtained during a period of heavy promotion indicate that a segment of the public will accept a bacon substitute if it is of good quality and is reasonably priced, the USDA reported.

The substitute gained a four per-cent share of the bacon market during the heaviest promotional phase of the test. The bacon substitute may find a large share of its customers among people who are not now using bacon for dieting or health reasons. But if the price of the substitute remains lower than the price of bacon during a regional or national introduction of the product, the substitute is likely to acquire a share of the bacon market similar to that established in the market test, the USDA concluded.

Minnesota Ranks High In Tonnage Of Vegetables

Minnesota's agriculture industry has added a 37th honor to its impressive list of production rankings among the nation's top 10 states, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald announced.

A report issued by the crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture ranks Minnesota fourth in the nation for total tonnage of vegetables produced in 1970 for processing into canned and frozen foods.

California ranks first, producing 38.3 per cent of the nation's vegetables for convenience packaging. Wisconsin is second, with 9.4 per cent. Ohio is third, at 6.6 per cent, and Minnesota produced 6.4 per cent of all processed vegetables last year.

Minnesota is the nation's top producer of sweet corn for processing and is third—bidding for second—in production of green peas. Cabbage, onions, carrots, cucumbers and snap beans helped swell Minnesota's total 1970 vegetable tonnage.

Last year, Minnesota growers harvested 15,200,000 pounds of cabbage from 800 acres, nearly a nine per cent increase over 1969 production. Income was estimated at $541,120.

Carrot production in 1970 was up 16 per cent, totaling 38,300,000 pounds and yielding an estimated $693,230 to Minnesota growers.

Minnesota onion production declined last year because of weather conditions that cut yields by 12 per cent on six per cent fewer acres than the 1969 harvest. But, the crop still totaled 18,700,000 pounds, worth an estimated $428,000 to growers.

Field Offices Of U.S. Food Stamp Program Change

Reorganization of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's food stamp field offices in Minnesota became effective April 16.

Reduction in the number of offices, establishment of new offices, and consolidation of areas of jurisdiction will result in increased efficiency and economy of operation, said Dennis M. Doyle, midwest regional director of USDA's food and nutrition service.

The move results in the closing of field offices in five cities — Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Mankato and St. Cloud. New food stamp offices have been opened in Fergus Falls and Rochester. Original field offices remain open in Duluth, St. Paul and Willmar.

The focal point for the five food stamp field offices is St. Paul, where a new district office directs and coordinates Minnesota program activities. A satellite managerial office is in Bemidji. USDA's food stamp program is administered through the Minnesota department of public assistance.

The St. Paul office is one of 28 district offices which have been or will be set up across the nation. Also, the newly established position of district manager in the St. Paul office provides a level of management between the field offices and the regional office. James Sheldon, formerly officer-in-charge of the St. Cloud field office, has assumed the new position.

"By setting up the new managerial position in St. Paul, we hope to strengthen our line of supervision to field offices and improve services to food stamp recipients," says Doyle. "The same personal contact with grocery stores participating in the food stamp program will be maintained, however."

Field office personnel will now be able to make more and better evaluations of how grocery stores are handling food stamps, and will have more time to make contact with potential food stamp recipients, thereby increasing participation.

License Renewal For Chauffeurs Requires Care

People filling out applications for chauffeurs license renewals should be sure to use their complete first, middle and last names, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund warned today.

Effective immediately, the names on the chauffeurs license must correspond exactly with the name on the driver license. This is important because, although the chauffeurs license will continue to be hand filed, the driver's history on both licenses will be kept in the driver license section.

The driver's license record is stored in the computer using the individual's complete name and date of birth. If the chauffeurs license application is not completed in the same manner, it will be necessary to return it to the applicant for completion. The extra delay could cause the loss of his driving privilege.

"It is especially important that people filling out the applications at this time of year complete them properly," Commissioner Hoaglund stated, "because there is a notable increase in the number of applications now when many college students renew their licenses in anticipation of summer jobs."

Peace Corps Applications Boom

A dramatic upsurge in applications means the Peace Corps will reverse a four-year downtrend. Peace Corps Director Joseph H. Blatchford points out that the March total of 5,195 applications was 107 percent higher than in March 1970 and the best single month since November 1966. The recruiting campaign directed by William Inglis (left) already has brought in more than 16,000 applications, with a total of 26,000 projected by August. Last year's total of 19,022 marked a four-year low. The Peace Corps is seeking people with specific skills and background in agriculture, in math and science teaching and in the vocational trades. Some 8,000 volunteers and trainees are now serving in approximately 60 nations in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Higher Pay But Fewer Jobs Is Grads' Outlook

Spring graduates in midwest colleges of agriculture can look forward to higher salaries but a small reduction in employment opportunities compared to 1970 graduates.

The annual survey of 14 colleges of agriculture in the midwest reveals a 3.2 per cent increase in estimated starting salaries as compared to a year earlier.

Estimated starting salaries for Minnesota B.S. graduates is $8,700 compared to $8,600 for 1970 graduates, according to placement director Duane Turner of University of Minnesota's college of agriculture. M.S. graduates are expected to receive $9,500 and Ph. D. graduates, $12,600 compared to $9,300 and $12,400 for 1970 M.S. and Ph.D. graduates respectively.

Job opportunities are expected to be slightly less this year. Although the number of individuals or firms interviewing this year has dropped about 25 per cent, this has been substantially offset by the greater number of firms and individuals contacting university's college of agriculture placement office for hiring this year's B.S. graduates, Turner said.

The strongest demand for graduates this year is in teaching vocational agriculture, food science and industries and jobs in sales offered by a broad range of agri-industry firms.

Currently there is a surplus of D.S. graduates in animal science and agricultural business administration and a surplus of M.S. and Ph.D. graduates in all fields except food science, Turner said.

For 1970, the highest starting salaries were offered in food science and industries and the lowest in fisheries and wildlife management. Despite the low salaries, fisheries and wildlife management was the one of the more popular branches of agriculture with 1970 graduates. Other branches of agriculture popular with 1970 graduates were animal science, agricultural education, agricultural economics and business administration, plant science, food science and horticultural science.

The branches of agriculture that are expected to attract the largest numbers of graduates during the next 5-10 year period include agricultural education, food science, horticultural science and graduates majoring in fields of study relating to resource development and environment.

Advanced degrees are necessary or advisable in all areas in which ultimate employment objectives are research and administration.

Pedestrian Death Total In State Is All-Time High

Pedestrian fatalities hit an all time high last year with 159 recorded for the 12-month period, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today. Previously, 1966 was high with 141.

The old and the young again were the main victims, comprising two thirds of the total deaths. Of the 159 fatalities 53 with 65 or over, and 54 were 19 and under.

Darkness and poor visibility were prime factors in well over half of the fatalities, with the greatest number occurring during the darker months of December, January and February. The low winter sun was also cited as a factor in reports where the pedestrian was not seen by the driver.

Incorrect pedestrian actions were a major factor, with nearly 50 per cent of the accidents happening to victims who were jaywalking or walking on the roadway with their backs to the traffic.

"Each year our department expends thousands of man-hours and dollars informing people how to survive on foot. Safety education officers in the highway patrol present programs and show films to most elementary schools in the state every year, and these officers and safety field representatives are available for presentations to older groups.

"Like most automobile accidents and fatalities, nearly 100 per cent of all pedestrian deaths could be avoided if a simple set of rules were followed:

When walking on a street or highway without sidewalks, walk on the extreme edge facing the traffic.

During the hours of dawn, dusk and darkness, wear light colored clothing with reflectorized soles of the shoes and accessories.

Cross streets only at intersections or at marked crosswalks.

Seat Belts Help Driver Maintain Control Of Car

"The person who is buckled up can maintain much better control in panic stop situations than can the person who is not secure in the seat," according to Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund.

"Tests by automotive engineers show what happens in both situations. When the driver is not buckled up hits the brakes suddenly, the unrestrained, forward motion of his body can cause him to exert too much pressure on the brake pedal, locking the wheels and throwing the car into a skid or lurching movement.

"He is also thrust forward into the steering wheel, reducing or voiding his chance for controlled steering or evasive action.

"On the other hand, if he is buckled up, the trunk of his body remains firmly in the seat, and he is able to steer and brake to minimize the hazard.

"We still say that the main value of using safety belts is to reduce injury and death in crashes. But remaining in control to avoid a crash can sometimes be even more important."

Prowler Thinclads Finish Seventh At Sioux Outdoor

Thief River Falls placed in six events Saturday in the 25th annual Sioux Outdoor Relays at the UND Memorial stadium to gain a seventh-place tie with Wahpeton with 19½ points as Grand Forks Red River ran away with the team title with 47½ points.

The Prowlers were paced by captain Paul Buttleson and Mike Fitzgerald, who each captured a first in their event. Bottleson raced to a 2:05.7 in the 880-yard run to finish ahead of second-place Dale Axtman of Devils Lake who was clocked at 2:06.1. Fitzgerald placed first in the 440-yard dash with a time of 54.3, just ahead of Hillsboro's Tom Mueller with a 54.6.

Sophomore sprinter Markoe Hanson placed fourth in the 220-yard dash and fifth in the 100-yard dash as Wahpeton's Brian Ulrich won both events to finish as the meet's high-point man with 12 points. Hanson ran his 220 in 23.5 with Ulrich winning the event with a 23.1 and the Prowler was clocked at 10.5 in the 100-yard dash, just one-tenth of a second behind Ulrich, but still only good for fifth place.

The Prowler 880-yard relay team tied with Frazee for a second in the event with a 1:39.3 as Red River ran a 1:38.8. Moorhead also won the sprint medley relay with a 3:45.6 as the Thief River Falls troop finished fifth with a time of 3:57.5.

Eventual champion Red River trailed Fergus Falls 30-28½ with five events remaining before the Riders went on to win the 880 relay and the discus for their 47½ points. Fergus Falls ended with 30 while Grand Forks Central was third with 28 and Devils Lake was fourth with 24½. A powerful Moorhead track squad finished the meet in fifth place with 24 points but the Spuds, the defending Sioux champions, sent most of its top performers to compete in a meet at Burnsville.

Two meet records were set this year with Grand Forks Central star Gene Patch setting a pole vault record with a height of 13-6. That broke the old mark of 13-4¼ set by Rick Hofstrand of Fargo South in 1968.

Another record was set in the 180-yard low hurdles when Larry Ferguson of Red River ran a 20.1 to eclipse the mark of 20.2 set by Scott Leigh of Central in 1968.

Top performances turned in by other district 31 competitors included Crookston's Todd Peterson who ran a 4:45.8 mile, good for first place in the event. Al Mathurs of East Grand Forks placed second in the high jump and the 120-yard high hurdles. Mathues went out at 5-10 in the high jump, just one inch behind the winning jump. Mathues also was just a shade behind the winner in the high's with a time of 15.4 as the winner was clocked at 15.3.

Jeff Larson of Roseau was third in the two-mile run with a 10:35.4, behind the winning time of 10:32.9. The Crookston sprint medley relay team finished second to Moorhead's 3:54.6 with a 3:56.2.

The Prowlers will compete in the Crookston Invitational indoor meet tomorrow (Tuesday) beginning at 6:30 before hosting the Bemidji Lumberjacks on the Prowler track field Wednesday afternoon beginning at 4 p.m.

The Prowlers will host their Prowler-Jaycee Invitational Saturday, May 1, beginning at 10 a.m. Buttons, which will serve as an entrance ticket, are being sold by members of the track squad and by the Jaycees for 50 cents.

Prowlers Rap Ten Hits In 8-1 Win

Lincoln high school pitching staff, thought to be a problem spot on the Prowler baseball squad in the pre-season reports, came through with flying colors Saturday as the Prowlers dumped Fertile 8-1 to open their 1971 baseball season.

The Prowler pitchers limited the Falcons to just one hit, a second-inning single while striking out ten batters in the seven-inning game played at Fertile.

Senior righthander Dale Hanson started on the mound for the Prowlers and struck out five while walking four batters in the first three innings. Sophomore lefthander Pete Sullivan pitched the next three frames and hurled near perfect ball while walking just one, striking out five and giving up no hits. Sophomore Rob Almquist pitched the seventh inning for the Prowlers and walked just one batter.

Scott Stevens was the starting pitcher for the Fertile nine and he was relieved in the third inning by Tim Thuseth before a parade of hurlers climbed on the hill for the Falcons.

Sophomores Oedean Peterson and Gary Burstad handled the catching job for the Prowlers who are without their number one backstop, Tom Wurst, due to an injury.

The Falcons scored their lone run in the second inning off Hanson on a single and a throwing error with two out. The Prowlers scored one run in the second and third innings before erupting for three runs in both the sixth and seventh innings.

Hanson led the Prowler hitters with a two-hit performance out of four trips to the plate as the Prowlers collected ten hits.

"Any time you can get ten hits in a high school game, you're not doing too bad, especially for the first game of the year," said head coach Ralph Skay. "I thought the game was well played and I thought we performed quite well for the opener," the coach said.

Skay was able to use 17 different players in the line-up for the Prowlers who will host Goodridge tomorrow afternoon (Tuesday) at the fairground diamond beginning at 5 p.m. The local club will also see action at home Friday at 5 p.m. against Red Lake Falls and Saturday at 4 p.m. against Newfolden.

License Increase For Snowmobiles

While much of Minnesota citizenry seem to be in an uproar about increased fees and assessments, the snowmobilers are happy about a proposed 50 per cent increase in their registration fees.

In a letter made public today to Natural Resource Commissioner Herbst, Robert Rygg, former assistant commissioner, now Executive Director of S.L.E.D., a snowmobile distributor association, complimented the Commissioner and endorsed the department's recommendation of increasing the snowmobile registration fee by 50 per cent to $12.00 for three years.

Rygg said, "You are to be commended for your recognition of the need for accommodation in the form of an expanded trail system. Accomplishing this with revenues from the fee structure is fair, continues to regard the snowmobiler as self supporting, and represents no burden on the taxpayer. Providing a place to use the machine is, after all, the best assistance to enforcement."

Brooklyn suffered an NFL record 22 penalties in one game during their 1944 NFL season while the 1937 Lions were called for just 19 penalties the entire season.

11th Annual Mid-American Canoe Race Set For May 2nd

John A. Lippold, superintendent of Recreation for Fox River Valley Pleasure Driveway and Park District sent the following information regarding the annual Mid-American Canoe Race.

"The Eleventh Annual Mid-American Canoe Race, one of Illinois' top invitational amateur sporting events is well on its way to establishing a record turnout for the 1971 contest.

More than 400 canoes were tabulated in the heat roster, three weeks in advance of the race, scheduled to run—rain or shine—Sunday, May 2nd on the Fox River 40 miles west of Chicago.

The spring racing classic sponsored by the Fox River Valley Park District, Aurora, Illinois, is expected to attract more than 1,000 canoeists this year from 10 to 15 states in the Union.

Canoeists had to get their entry blanks before Wednesday, April 21st deadline.

The challenging amateur race will include five portages at St. Charles, Geneva, Batavia (2) and North Aurora.

Racing hulls will continue to compete in a separate grouping for timing as one division (14 and over).

Cruising hulls compete in five (5) divisions: — Men (18 and Over); Man and Boy (man must be over 21); Boys (14-17); Mixed Couples (14 and over); and Women (14 and over).

Competitors in each classification will be required to fall within specified age brackets.

Minimum age requirement is 14 at race time.

Trophy awards for the first three places in each of the five cruising canoe divisions and in the racing hull class will be earned by teams with the best elapsed time in their division.

A major Mid-American trophy will also be awarded in addition, to the canoe team from any division with the best race time in the annual event.

The first canoes will arrive at about 11:30 a.m. at the Aurora, Illinois Avenue Park finish line.

The 1971 races call for canoes with no covering. Kayaks will not compete or race.

The annual Fox River races from a small turnout of 57 canoes in 1960 has grown tenfold in the past decade with its estimated 500 plus canoes this year.

The Mid-American Canoe Race is a product of cooperative volunteer individual and community effort in the Fox River Valley of northern Illinois annually.

Current standing race records (winners and dates) are: Men, 2:25:25 ('66) — Lynn Tuttle, St. Charles, Illinois and Gus Carlson, Tallmoon, Minnesota.

Man and Boy, 2:42:38 ('66) — Donald Ellison, North Aurora, Illinois and John Nelson, Batavia, Illinois.

Boys Division, 2:46:55 ('66) — Robert Engelbrecht, Cincinnati, Ohio and John Sanker, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mixed Couples, 2:51:20, ('68) — Helen and Gene Denzel, Fenton, Missouri.

Women, 3:14:56 ('66) — Jean Tuerck, Bloomington, Indiana and Emma Freeman, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Racing Hull Division, 2:46:51 ('70) — Pat Faul, Ann Arbor, Michigan and Dennis Fitzgerald, Miami, Florida.

LHS Tennis Squad Gains Two Triumphs

Lincoln high school tennis team began their 1971 season in grand fashion last week as the Prowlers knocked off Ada and Crookston Tuesday and Thursday afternoon on foreign courts.

The Prowler doubles team of Mark Thyren and Stuart Waltonen came back to defeat Pat Shanahan and Mark LaPlante 6-1 and 6-2 to gain the meet's deciding points.

The Prowlers made a clean sweep against Ada Tuesday afternoon with Liden defeating Mark Johnson 6-1 and 6-4 in the number one singles. The number two singles competition found Gordy Prichard of the Prowlers dropping Rodney Ogard 6-3, 6-2 while Craig Knutson took the number three singles, 6-0, 6-1 over Chuck Krogstad.

Thyren and Waltonen teamed up for the doubles win for the Prowlers, 6-2, 6-3 over Ron and Paul Johnson of Ada.

The Prowlers will be hosting East Grand Forks on the Lincoln courts in a 3 p.m. match today (Monday) to begin a busy week as they travel to Bemidji on Wednesday before hosting Mahnomen and Fertile on Thursday and Friday. All the meets will have a 3 p.m. starting time.

Technology And Tradition Merge At Red Lake School

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Dark, inquiring eyes watch from the circle of figures crowded around the man as his fingers trace a pattern on the raw wood. Under his craftsmanship it will become a bow, strung with sinew in the Indian fashion, just as bows have been made for generations. The younger boys watch, awaiting their turn to fashion their own bows in the manner being shown them.

Through the years the setting verbally depicted above has been repeated many, many times. From one generation to the next the crafts necessary to making a living—in actuality, to simply staying alive—were passed along with the knowledge gained by the Indian craftsman in his own experience.

But the historic scene mentioned above no longer takes place in the forest around the campfire. It is re-created in the classroom of the Red Lake high school at Redlake where an Indian culture curriculum has been originated this year. And while instruction is being supplemented by Indian craftsmen who learned from prior generations, video cameras record the lessons for future classes.

Thus is the ancient, time-honored tradition merged with the advances of modern technology. Two worlds are brought closer together in an attempt to keep them separate. Loss of a culture developed through the years and worthy of retaining is the fear of those who developed the program.

Help Is Offered

Helping prepare the Indian student to make his way successfully in a white man's world is much of the objective of the Red Lake high school. But sacrificing skills and history and tradition developed and accumulated over the years is not a part of that objective. Rather the goal is to preserve the best of the original culture while developing the practicality of the modern day. It is a delicate road to travel, but a challenging one.

The program at Red Lake high school is in its infancy, but experience this year has been good and an expanded program is a distinct possibility. So far, four instructors are involved in a 12-week program, developing their own curriculum and drawing on the residents of the reservation—both adults and students—for resource material.

DeFloren Rude, principal at the high school, has been in the school system there as an instructor or administrator for 15 years. He has an intense interest in the Red Lake reservation and its people, and the fledgling Indian culture program is an outgrowth of his initiative.

Curriculum Develops

Development of the program for ninth grade students was accomplished by the four-member team of instructors. They include Paul Hokuf and Robert Odegard of the industrial arts department and Mrs. Jane Smith and Mrs. Nola Scherer of the home economics department.

"Ninth graders not in the band program are in home economics or shop during that period of the school day," Mrs. Smith explained over a hurried dinner in the school cafeteria. "There are 48 students in the program, four groups with 12 in each group and the groups rotate from one department to the next every three weeks."

In the woodworking shop Hokuf instructs such crafts as making bows and arrows, some bead work, decorating completed articles and some other crafts. In another shop area, Mrs. Scherer instructs in making clothing and Odegaard supervises construction of roaches (Chippewa headdress), small beadwork, making drums, feathered war bonnets, moccasins and other items.

Home economics students—both boys and girls—learn about Indian foods and their place in Indian tradition. Much of this is being lost—just as the art of making lefse is being lost among Scandinavians—because it's just as easy to open a can or heat a TV dinner on the reservation as it is in Suburbia, USA.

"We have cooked fish," Mrs. Smith said about her home economics program, "and we had an excellent film on tapping trees and making maple syrup. Some of the dialect of the film

MAKING A DRUM in the Indian fashion requires the proper materials. Terry Wind, center, a student at the Red Lake high school, is receiving assistance from instructor Robert Odegard and crafts specialist Dan Needham. They are marking one side of the drum to be cut from a fleshed deer hide. When the piece has been cut, it will be soaked and then laced tightly to the wood ring.

WINDING A ROACH used as a head ornament by Chippewa Indians during festive occasions is Jack Hart, student at the Red Lake high school. Giving expert advice is Paul Smith, who assisted in instruction in the fast-disappearing skill. At right is shop instructor Robert Odegard. The roach was originally made of porcupine and deer hair, but artificial materials are now used.

SQUAW CORN raised on the Red Lake Indian reservation is the best kind to use for making hominy. Bill Dudley, 85, shows several ears of the corn and a grinding box which he made from a green birch log. Hominy was the chief food of the early Red Lake Indians, Dudley said.

A one dollar family ticket will admit the entire family to the show. Tickets are available from local scouts and at the door.

Friday Is Final Day To Apply For CCC Grain Loan

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county ASCS committee, stated today that this Friday, April 30, is the final date to apply for a Commodity Credit corporation grain loan on the 1970 crop of oats, wheat, barley and flax.

If anyone is intending to secure a loan, he should contact the ASCS office on or before Friday.

May 31 is the final date to request a purchase agreement on oats, wheat, barley or flax. A purchase agreement gives the producer price support protection based on the county loan rates if they should decide to deliver the grain to Commodity Credit corporation after maturity, according to Winton Knutson.

Street Problems Plague Council

Discussion of costs and problems of street maintenance and repair and developing of new streets and sewers in Thief River Falls city additions dominated the city council chambers Tuesday night.

The city aldermen mentioned numerous complaints from citizens in their respective wards, with many of the residents demanding improved streets, excavation, and curbs and gutters.

The city council instructed to get a concerted spring maintenance program underway to deal with the problems and asked the tax assessment committee to make recommendations on storm sewer financing, since many property owners in the areas affected have already paid their storm sewer assessments.

A hearing to determine street improvement progress for 1971 was set for 7 p.m. May 4. Current costs of improvements are set at $286,760.

The council's agenda also called for the reading of an ordinance prohibiting the riding of horses within the city, but it was tabled to next Tuesday night when a group of nine young women protested the ordinance as "unfair, undemocratic and discriminatory".

Alderman Robert Carlson told the dissident group that he had talked to leaders of the local saddle clubs and had been told that routes of access for horses previously worked out were acceptable to saddle club members who "said they could live with it".

Carlson went on to explain the routes in detail and said that the ordinance was not aimed at saddle club members, but offenders who rent horses at local stables and ride the horses in the city heedless of safety and the rights of property owners.

The council was also scheduled to accept bids for vehicles for the street, park and recreation, and power and light departments, but decided to table action on all bids until next Tuesday night.

Mayor Jacobson asked the council to meet tomorrow night (Thursday) with a Fargo developer who has plans for a large development in the extreme southeast area of Thief River Falls.

Council members were also presented with a letter from Frank W. Philips, business representative of the Teamster's municipal drivers, helpers, and public employees union concerning negotiations.

The letter, dated April 22, said in part, "At a meeting of the membership on November 10, 1970, the membership requested the union to return to the city council to further negotiate a better settlement...

"A letter was sent to the council president...on November 18, 1970, from this office asking for a reply. However, as of this date no such reply has been

Six Seek Offices On School Board

Three filings for the Thief River Falls board of education on Tuesday—the last day to file for election—have resulted in a six-way race for the three positions open on the board this year. Only one incumbent is seeking reelection among the six candidates.

Filing for the positions on Tuesday were Curtis L. Charlson, attorney, John E. Goulet, owner of Len's Tire service; and Rev. Paul Biegner, pastor of St. John Lutheran church.

Those who had already filed are Charles Samuelson, instructor at Northland state junior college; Roger P. Worth, corporate attorney for Arctic Enterprises; and Robert Flynn, an officer of the Union State bank. Samuelson is an incumbent and has served one term after being elected as a write-in candidate in 1968.

Currently serving on the board but declining to seek reelection are Dr. George Martin and Mervin Prestebak. Prestebak is the present board chairman and Dr. Martin is a previous board chairman. Other existing board members are Kenneth Murphy and Maynard Wedul, elected in 1969, and E. C. Olson and Wallace Sparby, elected last year.

Annual school election will be held Tuesday, May 16. Previous Times reports that the election would be held May 11 were in error. Polling place and voting hours will be announced later.

The Times is contacting the candidates and inviting them to prepare a background summary and statement of philosophy for publication in the Monday, May 10 issue of the Times. This will give voters a week before the school election to compare candidates before going to the polls.

School Board Holds Active Meet Monday

WAX SCULPTURE is created by creating a framework and dripping candle wax of various colors on the structure. Judy Newkirk is shown with her creation while Karen Overbye watches. Lincoln senior high school art students will show between 200 and 300 of their works Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria. Coffee will be served during the show.

Acceptance of two resignations, granting of two contracts, opening of bids on portable classroom buildings, setting of date for bid opening on conversion of heating systems and hearing of reports took place at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening at the Lincoln senior high school library.

Resignations were accepted from Evangelyn Bjorkman, mathematics teacher at Franklin junior high school, and Paula Lee, English instructor at Lincoln senior high school.

New contracts were issued to Glen Peters, social studies in the junior high school, and Diane Hackett, physical education in the junior high school. Peters has been in the Goodridge school system for the past 10 years and has handled a number of coaching positions there, including head basketball coach. He will coach "B" team basketball here.

Bids were received from Lampert Lumber company, Home Lumber company, Peterson Lumber company and Robertson Lumber company, all of Thief River Falls, for two 32x64 and one 32x32 portable classroom units. Since only one of the bidders submitted a bid for monthly lease purchase payments, the bids were tabled and other bidders instructed to prepare bids on the same basis.

Bids on the conversion of heating units at Lincoln high school and the St. Hilaire elementary school will be opened on May 10 at the regular meeting of the board of education.

Items in the superintendent's report included information from the University of Minnesota bureau of field studies report and amendments made to the 1971-72 school calendar. Summer school was also reviewed as proposed.

It was also noted by Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson that the three member adjustment panel had been meeting but had as yet produced nothing definite. Johnson said that the third member of the panel, Jaroslav Kruta of Red Lake Falls, had requested some of the general salaries which are usually associated with negotiations. Last formal meeting of the panel was believed to be on Saturday.

The bureau of field studies report concerned a study of financial expenditures and reaction of parents, students and teachers on flexible scheduling. The analysis showed, according to the superintendent's report, "...that our expenditures for teacher aides and for teachers' unscheduled time is far too high for the size of our school system."

He said there were 305 parental responses in the junior and senior high school in regard to flexible

She now travels about the Crookston diocese as a Confraternity of Christian Doctrine instructor, speaking to a number of groups, and also teaches at Corbett college and the University of Minnesota technical institute at Crookston.

"My father worked in the woods about 14 years before settling down in the Red River valley to farm," she wrote in a letter to Mrs. Geving. "As children, we heard the tales told authentically by these French Canadian lumberjacks.

"In American literature class I received the assignment to speak on the Paul Bunyan legends. The present lecture combines the childhood memories with the

Claree Anelle Drangstveit Weds Duane W. Paulson

Marriage vows were exchanged at Zion Lutheran church in this city on Saturday, April 3, at 8 p.m., by Miss Claree Anelle Drangstveit and Pfc. Duane Willard Paulson of Roseau.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Caroline Drangstveit of Thief River Falls. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellord Paulson who lived at Greenbush, are deceased.

Rev. Alexander Stoffel officiated at the double-ring ceremony attended by approximately 250 relatives and friends. Mrs. James Dalager presided at the organ. She played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Mrs. Lester Vigness as she sang, "Because", "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, Merlin Drangstveit of Goodridge. For her wedding, she chose a gown of nylon organza over net. Styled in empire fashion, the gown was designed with an A-line skirt that flowed back into a chapel length train. Alencon lace enhanced the fitted bodice and Camelot sleeves. Matching scalloped lace flowed down the front of the A-line skirt in redingote effect and encircled the peacock train. Pearl and sequin embroidery trimmed the sabrina neckline. A lace petaled headpiece etched with sequins and pearls, held her bouffant veil of bridal illusion. She carried a semi-cascade of pink roses, white baby mums, stephanotis and pink and white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Arnold Gunderson of Thief River Falls was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Merlin Drangstveit of Goodridge. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. Robert Kuznia of this city, a friend of the bride, and Mrs. Carl Anderson, also of this city, a sister of the groom. They were attired in identical gowns of pink satin with an overlay of deeper pink enhancing the empire bodice and sleeves. Two bows of deep pink held their shoulder length veils and each carried a long-stemmed mum tipped in pink and tied with pink and white ribbon. Their necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Rodney Paulson of Roseau attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were John Bulow of Greenbush, a friend, and Carl Anderson of this city, a brother-in-law. Seating the guests were Norman Blackstad of this city, a cousin of the bride, and Mike Blummer of Greenbush, a friend of the groom. All the men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua two-piece walking suit complemented by a white blouse and gloves. Her corsage was composed of pink sweetheart roses.

A reception was hosted in the church parlors following the ceremony. The groom's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Skrutvold, served as reception host and hostess. Mrs. Sheldon Alteman, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book, as Mrs. Rodney Paulson, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. Norman Blackstad, cousin of the bride, served the punch.

The round, four-tiered wedding cake was iced in white with pink trim, and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Descending the candlelit stairs on the bottom tier were miniature members of the bridal party. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Mabel Aamodt, aunt of the groom. She cut and served it together with Mrs. Odwin Blackstad, aunt of the bride. Pouring were Mrs. Inga Geving, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. John Langaas, aunt of the groom.

Serving as waitresses were Mrs. Ronald Phillip, Miss Sheryl Sevre and Miss Jean Skrutvold, friends of the couple.

Following the reception the wedding party and their families gathered for a family party at the Thief River golf club.

For traveling on the wedding trip, the bride wore a red bonded knit dress complemented by a white collar.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Vancouver high school, Vancouver, Wash. She is presently residing in this city and is employed here by Arctic Enterprises while her husband is serving with the Armed Forces in Vietnam. He is a graduate of the Greenbush high school and the Thief River Falls area vocational technical school. Photo, Rude Photography

FHA FASHION SHOW, 8 P.M.

Lincoln high school Future Homemakers of America will hold a spring style show tomorrow (Thursday) night in the city auditorium. Four boys and 34 girls will participate in the show and there will be a bazaar later in the evening.

TRF Legion Aux. Represented At Spring Luncheon

Several members of the Ecklund-Holmstrom unit of the American Legion auxiliary attended the spring luncheon on Saturday at Barnesville. The event, sponsored by the Barnesville auxiliary, was in honor of the Ninth District president Mrs. Tom Glawe of that city.

Representing the Thief River Falls unit were president Mrs. Leo Nelson, secretary Mrs. Harold Johnson, chaplain Mrs. George Baken, and district second vice president Mrs. James Cuppett, together with Mrs. G. L. Biddick, Mrs. Robert Reeve, Mrs. T. E. Aasland and Mrs. M. R. Levarson.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was department president Mrs. James Starr of Cambridge. In commending the Ninth district for the years of service to the community, state and nation, Mrs. Starr asked for assistance in the Legion's new project. She stated that the Legion is building a lounge on the veterans hospital grounds at Fort Snelling. This will provide a place where patients may visit in privacy with their families. Included in the plans will be folding doors that will divide a large room into smaller units: a nursery for children who are unable to visit patients in the hospital, a recreation room, and a small kitchen for use by patients. Mrs. Starr stated that the Legion has requested assistance in furnishing the lodge. The amount requested is $4700.

Mrs. Starr also thanked the auxiliaries for a donation of $3200 for kitchen equipment for the Legionville school patrol camp, and for a contribution of $5270 for the Serviceman's Center at International airport. This serviceman's center has just been completed in co-operation with other organizations. It provides members of the Armed Forces with a place to stay during a layover period. Sleeping accommodations, food, lockers, comfortable furniture, games and television are provided. All the facilities are free to service personnel and are available night and day, seven days a week. Volunteer workers from both the Legion and auxiliary keep the center open.

Donations to both projects have been given by the Thief River Falls unit.

St. Anne's Court Hosts Foresters Spring Meeting

Ten courts were represented at the annual spring conference of the Red River Valley diocesan association of the National Catholic society of Foresters held on Sunday at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Approximately 70 guests were present, representing courts from Argyle, Barnesville, Bemidji, Crookston, Mahnomen, Moorhead, Park Rapids, Red Lake Falls, Tabor and Thief River Falls.

Hosting the event was St. Anne's Court of Thief River Falls.

The conference began with a Mass offered by Rev. Keough Patnode. Mrs. Paul Bedard, president of the local court, welcomed the guests and was in charge of the program presented during the noon luncheon. Special guest was Mrs. Deloros Rogers of Chicago, Ill., national secretary of the Catholic society of Foresters.

Mrs. Ellen Amburg of Mahnomen, president of the Red River Valley Diocesan association presided at the business session which included election of officers.

Officers elected for the coming year were Mrs. Robert Bakerville of Crookston, president; Mrs. Aurore Bedard of Argyle, vice president; Mrs. Winifred Laurent of Crookston, secretary, and Mrs. Mary Taus, also of Crookston, treasurer. National secretary Mrs. Rogers served as installing officer.

The program presented by the local court featured Miss Eleanore Reichardt of Winnipeg, Man., Canada, a former lay-missionary to Rhodesia, Africa, and a sister of Mrs. Paul Bedard. Miss Reichardt sang several selections, accompanied by guitarist Art Martin, also of Winnipeg. She told of the music transformation in the church and how the guitar had been accepted because of its wide range. She also expressed her appreciation to the local court for the donation sent to her while she was in Rhodesia. She said that some of the money had been used to purchase a guitar which she left at the mission. During the program, Miss Reichardt also led the group in singing some of the hymns set to folk music.

Other music included a duet, "Born Free" by Cindy and Renee Bedard, president and vice-president of the Thief River Falls Junior Foresters, and a number of patriotic selections by a group of fifth grade students at St. Bernard's. Included in the selections, directed by Sister Ireno, was the "Pledge of Allegiance". The group also presented a square dance performance.

Several gifts and prizes were given during the afternoon. Included were gifts to the out-going president and to the National secretary. Each one attending also received a gift packet from the merchants of Thief River Falls. The special door prize was donated by Mary Strom.

For the noon luncheon table decorations and floral centerpieces were in yellow and white, the Forester colors. In charge of decorations was Mrs. Glenn Bernstein, who also made the yellow and white aprons worn by the Junior Foresters who served as waitresses. They were Cindy and Renace Bedard, Bernadette Froehle, Chris Irvine, Mary Broeker, Patricia Protz and Sandra Schob, assisted by Mary Gilbert.

Mrs. Tom Carriere was dining room chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Kolaska and Mrs. Edward Fisher. Presiding at the registrations were Mrs. Orville Dahl and Mrs. O. Strain. Mrs. Raymond Vaudrin and Mrs. James Warmsbecker served the morning coffee and the afternoon punch, and Mrs. George Gall and Mrs. Sullivan Troska were in charge of the kitchen.

The fall conference will be held in Crookston.

NSJC Theatre Play Will Open On Monday Night

Northland theatre department announces the opening of its spring quarter theatre production May 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. in the student commons at the college. The play is one of two companion plays by Brian Friel, originally produced under the title, "Lovers". Tickets are on sale at $1 for adults, and 50 cents for students.

Roger M. Vaughan, director, is being assisted by Miss Jean Cooke as stage manager. Linda Lambert, Halloek, plays Mag, and Leonard Kotta, Roseau, plays Joe. Bunny Engelman and Paul Mortenson, both of Thief River Falls, are the narrators.

The play tells of two young people in the small town of Ballymore, and takes place in 1966. The young couple is on top of the hill of Ardnegeha, planning the future together while studying for final exams before high school graduation.

The playwright mixes humor and ironic tragedy, and the style of the play is similar to the traditional favorite "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder.

In addition to appearing Monday and Tuesday at the college, the cast performed at the Minnesota state junior college fine arts festival at Hibbing state junior college on April 22, 23 and 24. Miss Nina Vance, of the Houston, Texas, Alley Theatre, and Dr. Ted Paul of Mankato state college served as adjudicators at the festival, and the cast received a favorable critique.

Three of the cast members, Bunny Engelman, Linda Lambert and Paul Mortenson, have had experience in previous college productions this year at Northland, while this is Leonard Kotta's first appearance with the college theatre.

formed before a total audience of more than 600.

The plays and share the fun contest gives the club members an opportunity to display their talent in drama, music and dance, according to Terry Coueneya, county agricultural agent. Many of the acts are arranged so that any 4-H member who wants to participate can, whether his talent is great or limited. The program is scheduled each year, says Coueneya, "for the fun of it."

The program aids in the development of youth by giving each of them recognition for what he can do, according to Couneya. Also, each time a youngster performs before a group he gains self confidence, he says.

At the Friday night finals three acts are chosen as winners. Tape recordings of these three acts are sent to the state 4-H office where one of the acts is selected for participation in the district contest. One best play and the best actor and actress are chosen at the county contest.

All the guidance and coaching for these activities come from parents and junior leaders on a volunteer basis. It brings large numbers of young people together in their community under the guidance of adults whose only pay for their time and effort is the satisfaction of seeing youngsters mature and develop confidence.

college level assignment and is entitled "The Place of the Paul Bunyan Legends in Literature."

Sister Margaret Mary mentioned the Provenchers and the Evelyn hotel, the Borzens and their mill, and Andrew Knox who crashed in early army plane maneuvers and was given an elaborate military funeral in Thief River Falls.

She was in the small convent here when the Ku Klux Klan burned a cross on the grounds and the fire department put out the fire under orders from night watchman Sheedy. It was here she followed Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic and later was aware of his father's death at St. Vincent's hospital in Crookston.

The letter also mentions the late Judge H. O. Chommie, whose sons John and Robert were her students in school, and several other families and events.

The program is the second in a series designed to focus attention on the Diamond Jubilee year in Thief River Falls.

received.

"Therefore at this time we are requesting the council schedule a meeting with us in an effort to resolve the matter with a settlement agreeable to both parties."

The council decided to hold the matter over to next Tuesday, but it appeared to be the intent of the council that it would take as little action as possible and allow negotiations to be handled by a labor conciliator.

Alderman Gerald Wigness asked the council to keep in mind a possible ordinance on the use of mini bikes within the city limits, and alderman Rambeck mentioned that the county historical society wants the city to purchase land for a historical village somewhere on the Mickelson property.

scheduling. There were 27.2 per cent in favor of the 1970-71 scheduling practices, 40 per cent neutral and 27 per cent who disapproved.

In the poll of faculty members, 46 per cent approved, 23 per cent disapproved and 25 per cent were neutral. Female faculty members generally approved the program more than male faculty members.

Students were found to be 54 per cent in favor, 38 per cent neutral and only eight per cent opposed. "It is noted that the lower the grade level (seventh through 12th) the student was enrolled, the better the acceptance of flexible scheduling," the superintendent said. "The higher the grade received by subject the better flexible scheduling was received."

Proposal for summer school as prepared by William Desrocher and Robert Ostazeski was presented to the board. Elementary classes proposed were developmental reading, remedial and developmental math, community study, art and outdoor science, with a total of nine instructors proposed. Actual number needed would depend on enrollment.

It was noted that general summer school classes are supported by state aid funds of about $25 per student.

High school classes proposed for credit were English 10, 11 and 12, social studies, 12, American history 10, 11 and 12, psychology 11 and 12, field biology 10, 11 and 12, art seminar, 10, 11 and 12, basic mathematics, 10, 11 and 12, auto mechanics, 11 and 12, audio communications, 11 and 12, and typing, 10, 11 and 12.

Offered for no credit would be band, orchestra, chorus and behind-the-wheel driver education.

Junior high courses some for four hours and some for two hours, have been suggested as follows: Junior high English, grades 7, 8 and 9; field trip science, 7, 8 and 9; junior high math, 6, 7, 8 and 9; exploratory art, 6, 7, 8 and 9; current world affairs, 7, 8 and 9; junior high social, 7, 8 and 9; personal typing, 6, 7, 8 and 9, and band and orchestra.

Cost of staffing for the summer school program has been estimated at $8,193.80 for the junior high school, $10,388 for the senior high school and an undetermined amount for elementary. Summer school instructors are paid on the basis of two thirds the monthly salary they would receive in full-time teaching.

Announcement was made that the bureau of field studies will have an elementary school task force making a final evaluation of the elementary schools on Thursday and Friday. The group is composed of eight members from various parts of the state and includes elementary principals, supervisors and teachers.

R. H. Schmeihl of the program planning section of the vocational division, state department of education, is scheduled to be here today to discuss the problem of the expansion of the vocational facilities with the director and superintendent.

School calendar for 1971-72 was changed to provide in-service training for the staff August 30 and 31 with students to report for classes September 1 instead of September 7. In-service days for teachers will also be held January 31, February 21 and April 4, rather than several additional days before the opening of school.

NWCA Director Tells Programs For Public Aid

Northwest Community Action (NWCA) executive director Dwayne Otterson recently explained at a public hearing in the Badger village hall the new programs and priorities adopted by the council for its new year starting Sept. 1.

The senior citizen program, which has been directly under the NWCA, will be operated by each community after Sept. 1. NWCA will, however, continue to offer limited consultant services.

The health services program is a new one for NWCA and was established with a high priority by both advisory councils and the board of directors. It will, however, be limited in scope due to the limited funds available.

A registered nurse will be employed full time to administer the program, assisted by home health aides. The purpose of the program is to upgrade health services for the isolated poor by providing home nursing care, counseling and education.

The general services program will include many of the features of the present community organization effort, according to Otterson. It will strengthen the roll of the advisory councils, identify and refer resources to meet individual and community [illegible] planning and coordination to meet senior citizen needs, such as marketing outlets for craft items.

The community action management and administration program includes staffing of the central office and overall coordination of community action activities. The Head Start program will be continued at six centers during the coming operational year, and the Operation Mainstream program will continue and may expand, Otterson reported.

The total Office of Economic Opportunity funds available for these programs is $101,000.

Bill Authorizes More Funds For Public Works

A bill authorizing $2 billion to speed up public works projects in areas of high unemployment passed the U.S. House of Representatives this week. According to Congressman Bob Bergland, a co-sponsor of the measure, the bill is designed "to take people off welfare rolls and put them on payrolls."

Speaking on the House floor in support of the bill, Bergland said "It provides the dual function of meaningful employment in areas where jobs are most needed and the funding of public facilities for those who might otherwise have to go without badly needed services.

"My constituents," he continued, "suffer from under employment and a lack of job opportunities. At the same time they must [illegible] for adequate water and sewage plants, flood control projects and scores of other public facilities. They are being driven away from their homes and end up in our overcrowded cities or on our overburdened welfare rolls".

Bergland added, "We must have this legislation to provide the employment that allows a decent living and the facilities that allow a decent life."

Explaining the bill, Bergland said that local public works projects can receive up to 80 per cent of their costs and "in areas that have already reached the limit of their taxing and borrowing power 100 per cent funding can be received from the federal government."

To be eligible an area must have had an unemployment rate of six per cent for six of the last 12 months. After Senate passage of the bill, which Bergland described as "assured," the specific areas eligible for the aid [illegible] nounced. Areas now receiving EDA funds will be included, according to Bergland, as will additional counties and parts of counties which suffer severe unemployment problems.

BSC Withdraws From Excavating Burial Mounds

Bemidji state college is formally withdrawing from a contract with the U.S. Army corps of engineers to excavate [illegible] federal dam on Lake Winnibigoshish, according to archaeologist Allan Brew of BSC.

The college had originally signed the contract to excavate a site which includes the burial mounds and possible campsites on the federally-owned land.

"The Indian community's objection to the desecration of sacred burial areas must certainly be respected," Brew stated. "BSC has no wish to offend any of the Indian people and therefore will withdraw from the contract to do the excavation."

The BSC scientists had agreed to do the exploration for a con[illegible] be paid upon completion of the reports by Brew and his associates.

Wool Production Drops In State For 1970 Year

Minnesota wool production last year experienced a three per cent shrink, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald. Farmers sheared 3,043,000 pounds of wool from their sheep in 1970, down 94,000 pounds from the year before.

The wool crop was valued at $1,239,000, down $74,000 from the year before.

Shrinkage in production and income was attributed by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service to a reduction by 8,000 in the number of sheep shorn, 448,000 in 1970; a tenth of a pound lower yield per sheep; and a penny lower wool price at 34 cents per pound.

Minnesota ranked 14th among all states last year in number of sheep shorn, 12th in total wool production, and 13th in value of the wool crop. Minnesota ranks 10th in sheep and lamb marketings for 1970.

6,109 Stores Are Checked By State For Pesticide Sale

Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald today praised county agricultural inspectors as "a vital ally in Minnesota department of agriculture enforcement of our tough restrictions against persistent pesticides that are hazardous to the environment."

He said county personnel in the 87 counties have helped the department's 15 state inspectors make compliance checks in 6,109 retail establishments in Minnesota since January 1.

"The joint inspection team found restricted pesticides in less than 10 per cent of the establishments. Dealer cooperation was excellent. Restricted pesticides were immediately removed from display and tagged for return to wholesalers or manufacturers," Commissioner Wefald stated.

Last year, the [illegible] compliance check by state inspectors found restricted pesticides in over half of the retail establishments visited.

State personnel are currently conducting state-wide training meetings in cooperation with county and municipal counterparts, to gear for increased responsibilities of the first full year's test of the state regulations.

Commissioner Wefald said the bigger job is apparent from the sharp increase in permits, to 1,512 dealers and 3,897 users, [illegible] pesticides. Less than 600 dealer and a comparable number of user permits were issued last year, after regulations went into effect on July 1.

Permits are required for both dealers and users of DDT, DDD (TDE), aldrin, dieldrin endrin, heptachlor and lindane. Use, under permit, is restricted to 30 specific insect and disease problems. As no uses are listed for DDD(TDE) and endrin, these are technically banned.

According to Michael Fresvik, supervisor of the department's environmental concerns program, most of the user permits issued this spring were for pre-planting treatment of field crop seeds with restricted but recommended pesticides.

Fresvik said the department has denied or discouraged many applications for dealer permits for the restricted pesticides, primarily those from grocery and drug stores.

He explained that the aim is to limit the restricted pesticides to dealers in the agricultural areas of the state, because the permitted uses are limited to farming. Home and garden use of the restricted pesticides is virtually outlawed.

Commissioner Wefald noted that dealers are also required by regulations to maintain complete records and submit regular reports to the Minnesota department of agriculture, accounting for all restricted pesticides in inventory and full detailing all sales to individuals with proper user permits.

INSPECTING work being done by Bruce Stately on a feathered war bonnet is Dan Needham, who assisted with craft instruction at the Red Lake high school. Making the decorative headdress requires a good deal of intricate workmanship.

KIT PROJECTS are included in the crafts program at Red Lake high school at Redlake as a revival of Chippewa crafts is taking place in the ninth grade. Here David Ross works on a pair of moccasin-type boots.

was in Chippewa and it was very informative. Wild rice and hominy are other foods native to the reservation and which have been used for a number of generations."

Indians Teach Skills

One of the keys to the program, however, has been the cooperation of the no-longer-young residents of the reservation who have shared their memory and their experience with the students. Dan Needham of rural Goodridge, Bill Dudley of Redby and Paul Smith of Redlake have all spoken to classes and told of their experience in various activities.

Needham, who operates a craft shop during the summer and makes authentic Indian items during the winter months, instructed in making bows and arrows, carving pipestone, making Indian drums and feathered war bonnets.

Dudley told how to make hominy and prepare wild rice, recalling that hominy made from Indian corn was the chief food of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians. Paul Smith instructed in making roaches, the Chippewa ceremonial headdress originally made from porcupine guard hairs and deer hair. Artificial materials are now used.

The Old Way Explained

Now 83 years old, Dudley was at work in his shop, sharpening the blade of a circle saw, when we stopped at his home near Redby. We asked him about making hominy in the Indian way. He began by extolling the virtues of the "squaw corn" raised on the reservation.

"There is never a crop failure," he said of the multi-colored corn. "It is planted when the bud leaves show on the white oak. It will mature in any weather; there is no failure."

He explained that corn has two coats or outer layers. To make hominy, the outer coat must be removed without destroying the inner coat. This is done, he said, by shelling the corn and boiling it in water containing hardwood ash. The outer coat is dissolved and the water takes on the consistency of a starchy jelly.

In "the old days" the Indians would then dry the corn for later use through the winter months. With modern day methods, it is stored in the home freezer. Ten quarts of corn will expand to 14 quarts of hominy, Dudley said.

"Hominy is the heart of the corn," he emphasized. "Mister mouse is smart. He eats only the heart of the corn. Nothing else. Only the heart. That is where the food is."

Dudley also said that the corn could be parched and ground by crushing in a bowl hewn from a green birch log. A small amount of this ground corn provided great energy. "A man could take just a small bag tied around his neck," he said, "and he could follow a deer all day. He would just take a little of the corn in his mouth at a time."

Bill also parches rice—one of the few who still does so—and has built his own equipment for threshing and parching the crop. That, too, is getting to be a lost art.

"We hope to develop an interest in the young people in retaining some of the past," Hude explained. "Too much has already been lost as the older generation passes from the scene. If we can play some little part in the preservation of part of a vanishing culture, we feel we will have made a contribution which will be extremely satisfying."

COMPARING TONE quality of the drums they have made are Terry Wind, student at Red Lake high school, and Dan Needham, who assisted in teaching crafts at the school. Terry made the moccasin drum at left, which has deer skin stretched on only one side. Since the drums are laced with rawhide and can not be tuned, weather and humidity greatly affect the tonal quality.

BUCKSKIN FRINGE is being cut as these students at the Red Lake high school make leather vests as a craft project. Sharon Hardy wears one of the completed vests as she watches at left. Craft work is offered in the ninth grade curriculum at the school.

FINE POINTS of carving pipestone are pointed out by Dan Needham to the obvious glee of student George Head. After receiving instruction from Dan, George made the pipe which he is holding.

Turkey Growers In State Set Record

Minnesota turkey growers maintained their national production championship by setting production and income records for the third straight year in 1970, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald announced today.

He estimated Minnesota's turkey income last year at $69 million, an increase of nearly $8 million over the 1969 record.

The new production record was achieved when growers raised 18,266,000 turkeys in 1970. That topped the 1969 mark by 1,719,000.

Production figures are official, the income estimate is not, because of application of a federal ruling that Minnesota and Wisconsin turkey statistics must be combined to protect the confidentiality of Wisconsin's limited operations.

Minnesota department of agriculture and the turkey industry have appealed that ruling to the U.S. department of agriculture, and recommended that Wisconsin's figures be combined with the seven other states also treated confidentially.

Pending the outcome of that ruling, Commissioner Wefald agreed the new combination reporting does dramatize the significance of the Midwest, as well as Minnesota's established leadership role in bolstering both farm income and the nutritional fare for consumers via turkey production.

The new report revealed Minnesota-Wisconsin raised 2,030,000 more turkeys, sold 38,579,000 more pounds of turkey, and averaged one-tenth of a cent more per pound in 1970, than the two states did in 1969.

Ranked behind Minnesota and California in the top two spots for total turkey production, in order, are North Carolina, Missouri, Texas, Arkansas and Iowa. Adjoining states of North Dakota and South Dakota rank 18th and 20th, respectively.

Minnesota - Wisconsin marketed 369,996,000 pounds of turkey last year, realizing a record $83,348,000 or an increase of $8,992,000 income over the 1969 high mark. At an average of 17 pounds apiece, the sales represented 21,764,470 turkeys at 22.5 cents per pound.

The combined two-state production represents 17.3 per cent of the total U.S. poundage of turkey sold and 18.9 per cent of the total national income from turkeys last year. Iowa ranks seventh in national turkey production.

Adding Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota production, the five-state turkey output jumps to an even more imposing 24.3 per cent of the nation's total turkey supply and 24 per cent of the $492,156,000 income.

Minnesota has increased its lead over former national champion California in the turkey production sweepstakes, by 2,681,000 birds. However, the poundage crown, which California still tries to claim, hinges on the appeal and hoped for breakdown of combined Minnesota-Wisconsin statistics on turkeys sold and the income.

Unofficially, Minnesota sold 309,896,000 pounds of turkey last year, compared to California's official 304,551,000 pounds.

Flowers Provide $2,958,000 In State Ag Income

"Mum's the word" for a little publicized but important facet of specialized Minnesota agriculture, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

The "mums" in this case are chrysanthemums, the front-runner among five major flowers and foliage plants that produced $2,958,000 in agricultural income last year for Minnesota growers. It was an increase of $166,000 over 1969 floral income.

Chrysanthemums accounted for $1,450,000 of that income.

Commissioner Wefald observed, "chances are many Minnesotans still have a potted chrysanthemum prominently displayed in the house right now, purchased during the recent Easter season. These mums will soon be transplanted outdoors to renew their blooming beauty for several more months."

Minnesota is tied with California for fourth place in the nation for production of potted chrysanthemums. Last year 78 Minnesota growers produced 438,000 of these potted plants. This year they intend to boost production by another 50,000 plants.

According to the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture, roses are next in economic importance to chrysanthemums in the North Star state, yielding $1,121,000 income in 1970 from the sale of the blooms from 381,000 rose bushes.

Other Minnesota income from flowers last year included $169,000 from the sale of carnations, $179,000 from the sale of foliage plants and $39,000 from the sale of gladioli. Minnesota ranks 13th in wholesale production of roses and gladioli, 12th in wholesale production of foliage plants and 17th in production of carnations.

State Park Will Be Dedicated At Split Rock

Split Rock Lighthouse state park on Minnesota's North Shore will be formally dedicated at ceremonies scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, May 2, the Department of Natural Resources announced today.

The affair will culminate many years of effort on the part of the Department, congressional representatives, state legislators and concerned citizens to bring the lighthouse and surrounding lands into the state park system as recommended by the National Park Service.

Efforts to secure the property for the state began when the U.S. Coast Guard announced they were closing down the light. The advent of modern radar meant the light was no longer needed to warn ships away from the dangerous shoals in the area.

Robert Herbst, Commissioner of Natural Resources will act as master of ceremonies at the occasion and Lieutenant Governor Rudy Perpich will deliver the main address. Several other officials are expected to be present at the ceremony, including Rep. John Blatnik.

Provision has been made to hold the dedication regardless of prevailing weather conditions. If it is raining, the ceremony will be conducted in the fog horn building next to the lighthouse.

The dedication ceremony will include a symbolic changing of the flags by retiring the Coast Guard flag and raising the Minnesota state flag. The light will be lit in the lighthouse.

A representative of the General Services Administration will be on hand to present the deed to the property to state officials.

The park will be in charge of ranger Frank Wotring. It is planned to operate the light this summer, during the evening hours, and the gift shop will continue in operation.

A hiking trail has also been built but there will be no camping or picnicking in the area.

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremonies. Those who do will receive a copy of the "Volunteer", official Department magazine, containing a photo of the lighthouse and an article on the state park trails system.

They will also receive a sketch showing the layout of Split Rock State Park.

State Livestock Industry Sets Receipts Record

Minnesota's livestock industry set new records for cash receipts from all red meat animals and from cattle and calves sold for beef for the second straight year in 1970, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald announced today.

Total cash receipts from the sale of livestock last year were $780,285,000, an increase of $13,436,000 over the prior record set in 1969 for that major segment of Minnesota cash farm income.

Income from cattle and calves sold for beef hit a new all time high of $492,193,000, up $14,307,000 from the 1969 record.

Commissioner Wefald said the new records dramatize the economic significance of the beef industry in Minnesota, and underscores the recent proclamation by Governor Wendell R. Anderson, for the observance of "Beef Month in Minnesota" during May.

Higher beef cattle prices last year helped account for both of the new records. Cattle prices were a penny a pound higher, and calf prices were up 5.8 cents per pound.

Prices paid to farmers for all other livestock last year on the red meat market were lower than 1969. Hog prices were down 10 cents per hundredweight. Lamb prices were down $1.10 and sheep prices were down 40 cents per hundredweight.

Hogs provided the second largest block of the record livestock income for Minnesota farmers last year, $274,534,000. That was a drop of $776,000 from 1969, and $26,852,000 below the record $301,386,000 income set in 1967.

Commissioner Wefald pointed out that while a dime drop in the hog price does not sound significant, it did represent a $1,236,640 cut in income on the volume sold.

Sale of sheep and lambs in 1970 brought Minnesota farmers $13,538,000, down $105,000 from the year before, and $3,647,000 lower than the record set in 1958.

Livestock marketings last year actually were 43,000 animals less than in 1969. The 7,733,000 total included 5,204,000 hogs, 1,789,000 cattle, 196,000 calves, 483,000 lambs and 61,000 sheep.

However, statistics compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture revealed that 1970 livestock production actually increased by 178,218,000 pounds, for a grand total of 2,859,828,000 pounds of meat type animals.

Marketings were swelled by the sale of carryover animals from 1969 inventories, and by inshipments from other states, to a grand total of 3,208,850,000 pounds live weight sold on the hoof.

This included 1,915,530,000 pounds of cattle and calves sold for beef, 1,236,640,000 pounds of hogs, and 56,680,000 pounds of sheep and lambs.

Commissioner Wefald said the new statistics rank Minnesota tenth in the nation for production and cash receipts for cattle and calves; sixth in hog production and cash receipts; tenth in production and ninth in cash receipts for sheep and lambs.

Soil Conditioner Market Value Is Decided In Court

A jury verdict stipulating the reasonable market value of a soil conditioner as only $8 per ton has been hailed by the Minnesota department of agriculture as a possible "landmark decision."

Dr. Rollin M. Dennistoun, department administrator for plant and environmental concerns programs, stated that "the verdict should put to rest the long dispute over the true value of non-fertilizer soil conditioners".

He said the value of soil conditioners has had literally a price tag of "all the traffic will bear", and cited current quotations ranging from $70 to nearly $400 per ton.

Dr. Dennistoun, administrative and laboratory services director R. E. Bergman and agronomy services supervisor Leo Lehn of the Minnesota department of agriculture were among the key witnesses called in the two-day trial completed in district court at Worthington on April 8.

The verdict found for the defendants, Gerrit and Esther Brouwer of Edgerton, in the suit brought by Red River National Bank of Grand Forks as trustee for the trust estate of the late Lawrence Boushey, founder of the Upper Midwest Mineral company of East Grand Forks.

Testimony by Minnesota department of agriculture officials established that the "Life for the Soil Fertilizer" sold to the Brouwers in September of 1966, on contract at a wholesale dealer's price of $80 per ton was: (1) not a fertilizer but a soil conditioner, (2) that the Minnesota department of agriculture had refused the Brouwers permission to sell the product in Minnesota because it was improperly labeled; (3) that laboratory tests confirmed the total absence of any of the primary fertilizer nutrients, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, only a number of trace elements, primarily calcium; and (4) that the company was not licensed to do business in Minnesota, as required by laws and regulations.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA
APRIL 20, 1971

Pursuant to call for a Special meeting the board of Commissioners met in a Special Session in the Court house in Thief River Falls at 3:15 p.m., April 20, 1971.

All members of the board waived the 10 day Statutory notice required for a Special meeting.

Members present: Hanson, Anderson, Stenberg and Olson. Commissioner Tasa was unable to attend.

Letters were before the Board from Attorney Charlson and Secretary of the Bar Association Attorney Mysisr, relative to the lack of or absence of a Probate Judge and Juvenile Judge since the resignation of Stanley N. Mortenson.

It appears that cases are going unheard in both of the Courts and because the Probate Judge has Municipal Court jurisdiction and no Municipal Judge is presently in office in the City of Thief River Falls the Municipal Court cases are also not being heard.

A proposed bill is to be suggested to the Legislature was before the Board and after study of the problem Commissioner Olson introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

IT IS HEREBY RESOLVED That the Pennington County Board support the proposed bill drafted by Mr. Curtis Charlson and entitled "An Act Establishing a Probate Court District, Marshall, Red Lake and Pennington Counties".

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hanson and declared carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Hanson that meeting adjourn. Motion carried.

Prowlers Finish Second In Pirate Indoor Relays

Crookston out-scored Thief River Falls 20-2 in the field events to pull away from the Prowlers and capture their first Pirate Jaycee relay title during the eighth annual event last night in the Crookston Winter Sports Building.

The Pirates and Prowlers were almost dead even in scoring in the running events but the home towners rolled up the 18 point advantage in the field and went on to score 59 points to runner up Thief River Falls' 42½. Fosston finished third with 27½. Ada was fourth with 25½ and East Grand Forks edged Fertile 22 to 21 for fifth place in the 16-team field.

The Prowlers were supplied with three first place finishes, including a double winner in sophomore sprinter Markoe Hanson.

Hanson was clocked at 7 7 in the 70 yard dash and 24 8 in the 220 yard dash to claim both events. Captain Paul Battleson supplied the other first-place finish for the Prowlers in the 880-yard run with a time of 2 06 2.

Other place finishes for the Prowlers included second place finishes in the 760 relay and 1520 medley. The Prowlers picked up two thirds with Kim Murphy running the mile in 4 55 3 and Jon Wangberg's 9.0 in the 70-yard low hurdles. A pair of fourth place finishes were collected by Mike Fitzgerald (56 2) in the 440-yord dash and by Rande Smith (42 4½") in the shot put.

Fifth-place finishers were Steve Belch (7.9) in the 70-yard dash and Don Reierson (2 14 0) in the 880.

Prowler head coach Jim Sims was satisfied with his team's overall performance in the running events but was naturally a bit dismayed with the results in the field events. Sims did point out Ronde Smith's performance in the shot as encouraging.

Nordics Blast Badger Nine 25-1

Marshall County Central blasted Badger 25-1 Monday afternoon to open up their 1971 baseball season in grand style on the Rockets' home field.

The Nordics received no-hit pitching from senior right hander Marlin Bjornrud who went the distance and struck out 12 while walking three batters.

Gary Borg led the Nordic's 12-hit attack with a four for four performance which included six rbi's. Bruce Ueland also had a perfect day at the plate, going two for two with five runs-batted-in.

The Nordics collected six runs in the second inning and erupted for 12 markers in the third, five in the fourth frame and two runs in the final inning as Badger tried four different pitchers.

Nordic coach Ron Ueland was very pleased with his team's performance and is looking for a good year for Newfolden. "We have all nine starters back from last year's squad, including five seniors and four guys who have started together for the past four years," said Ueland. "We feel we have a good shot at the district although Roseau is real strong," Ueland stated.

The Nordics are back in action this afternoon (Wednesday) in a 4 p.m. game at Greenbush before coming to Thief River Falls Saturday afternoon.

The complete MCC baseball schedule is as follows:

May 1, at TRF; 3, at Middle River; 5, at Strandquist; 7, at Argyle; 8, at Roseau; 10, at Karlstad; 12, at Badger; 14, at Nevis; 15, at Akeley and Park Rapids; 17, at Greenbush; 18, at Middle River, and May 22, at Strandquist.

TRF-Goodridge Game Postponed; Twinbill Sat.

Trout Fishing Hits Peak May 1

Minnesota's trout season shifts into high gear Saturday, May 1, and prospects appear good if present weather conditions continue.

Warm dry weather should warm up water temperatures and keep streams within their banks. Access roads and trails should also be dried out making it easier for anglers to reach their favorite streams.

Whitey Olson will act as the clerk of course and the announcer with Bab Jury acting as the head starter for the meet.

The pole vault and discus competition will begin at 1 p.m. with the finals of the running events beginning at the same time with the 120-yard high's.

In order, it will be the 100-yard dash, mile, 880-yard relay, 440-yard dash, 120-yard low's, 880-yard run, sprint medley, 220-yard dash, two mile and the mile relay will finish the meet at 3 p.m.

"Labrador retrievers are the greatest hunting dogs and the easiest to train," a famous trainer and breeder of hunting dogs told me five years ago.

Since then, the popularity of these sturdily built, short-haired, medium-sized dogs, most black, some yellow, a few chocolate colored, has zoomed. Last year they became among the top 10 most popular breeds in the United States, and are in demand, not only as hunters, but as show dogs, watchdogs, guides for the blind and family pets.

In my suburban neighborhood alone, there are around half a dozen Labs. Most are black but one, a 5-month-old puppy named Teddy, is yellow. Actually his coat is reddish or golden, but regardless of shade, light Labs are called "yellow" — which saves confusion with golden retrievers which are an entirely different breed.

Since Teddy came to the neighborhood at 2 months of age, I've followed his progress with interest.

He belongs to a young couple, Leslie and Barbara Jay, who have two children, Davie, 4, and Katie, 9 months. "I bought Teddy because I knew Labs were good with children," Barbara told me. "They're short-haired, clean, and when I first saw Teddy I loved his color."

Now, half-grown, Teddy is muscular, strong, exuberant and loves everybody. He and Davie roughhouse together and each takes all kinds of punishment. Davie sometimes pulls Teddy's tail and mauls him; Teddy sometimes play-bites (but hard) and knocks Davie down.

Each makes the other cry occasionally. But they love each other and each is helping the other to learn to give and take and grow up strong and self-reliant.

But with Katie, Teddy is never rough. Sometimes he gets in the playpen with her, plays with her toys and jumps at her mobiles. But he seems to understand she's a baby and that he must be very gentle with her. Even so, Barbara doesn't leave him alone with her.

Teddy's retrieving instinct has already come out and the Jays expect to take him swimming soon. Meantime, he's learning simple commands — "sit!" "down!" "come!" — and at certain times to stay in the kitchen or on the deck. And even though Barbara, occasionally, is cross with him (He can be frustrating with two small children and an active puppy), Teddy never holds it against her and is always his good-natured, rollicking self — a characteristic of the breed.

Despite its name, the breed, believed brought to the new world by Basque and Portuguese sailors, has been traced, not to Labrador but to Newfoundland, where the dogs are said to have assisted fishermen by retrieving broken nets, tackle, etc., and on land, helped them hunt wild fowl for meat. And it was in that severe climate the dogs developed their ruggedness.

Some were later taken to England and bred with other types of hunters to improve their scenting ability (now phenomenal) while retaining Labrador characteristics.

Gradually the dogs vanished from Newfoundland and it was from England during the 1930s, that the Labradors we know today were imported to this country.

They're around 23 inches high at shoulder and may weigh up to 75 pounds. Coats are short, dense and water repellant. Head is clean-cut with ears hanging fairly close. Eyes, which may be brown, yellow or black, express great intelligence. But their most distinguishing feature is their tail. Of medium length it's thick at the base tapering gradually toward the tip.

Except for brushing, particularly in the spring and fall when they shed, they need practically no grooming.

Bumpers On 1971 Model Cars Give Less Protection

Failure of auto manufacturers to heed demands for better bumpers on their 1971 models can be expected to be a factor in personal injuries as well as property damage in this year's traffic accidents, according to W. R. Hoaglund, Minnesota commissioner of public safety.

He cited results of tests of 1971 models made by the insurance institute for highway safety with low-speed crashes, showing that the new models sustained greater damages than comparable 1970 models tested last year.

"Dr. William Haddon Jr., president of the institute, has likened today's bumper designs to weaponry design," he commented, "and charged that they are loaded with hard, pointed, hurtful and will aggravate human suffering."

Haddon formerly was director of the highway safety bureau in the U.S. department of transportation.

Hoaglund said that four standard sedans tested this year in five-mile-an-hour crashes into barriers sustained average front-end damages of $331 28 compared with $215 64 sustained by 1970 models, and rear-end damages of $329 28 compared with $218.66.

This represents a worsening of more than 50 per cent in terms of property damage alone, according to Dr. Haddon. "However," he points out, "traffic safety specialists are more concerned with the injury factor. For years traffic safety people have been urging Detroit to adopt functional bumper designs, with smooth surfaces and high energy absorption potential. Such designs could reduce the traffic accident toll not only in dollars, but in personal injuries and deaths.

The greatest progress in the treatment of breast cancer has come in recent decades. Surgery, radiation, hormone therapy, drug therapy, or combinations of these methods are used successfully, according to the American Cancer Society.

Manure Disposal Is Livestock Problem

Manure disposal plagues many livestock producers, especially dairymen, according to Wallace Sparby, Pennington county ASCS executive director.

Not only are their herds growing, but fewer cows are pastured and more are being kept under confinement. Manure, once naturally deposited on pasture, range and croplands, now has to be transported away.

In Wisconsin, our number one dairy states, about two-thirds of the cow manure, nearly 30 million tons a year, has to be transported.

But many Wisconsin dairymen are using a relatively new method of waste disposal—the liquid manure system.

Basically, the system consists of:

—Tanks to store raw manure to which water has been added.

—Machines to agitate the mixture.

—Pumps to draw it out when the time comes to apply it on cropland.

—Tractor and spreader.

Where farmers must confine livestock into small areas, the liquid manure system can be practical and economical. Hog farmers, for example, use the system successfully.

Economic feasibility depends on the value of the manure, farm operating costs and other variables, according to a survey made on Wisconsin farms by the University of Wisconsin in cooperation with USDA's economic research service.

In the Wisconsin study, the typical cow weighed 1,400 pounds, and produced 20 4 tons of manure a year. Some farms had the liquid system only, others used a combination of disposal methods.

Liquid systems generally require a higher investment in equipment (twice that for conventional systems), but they also result in greater savings on labor. And they salvage more of the nutrient value of the manure.

In the Wisconsin study, the conventional system was found to be cheaper to operate for dairy herds of fewer than 50 cows. And at the 50-cow level, costs over returns were the same for the two systems, taking into account the value of nutrients in the manure.

But for herds of more than 50 cows, liquid disposal became more economical, mainly due to the higher value of liquid manure. Its value averaged $32 annually per cow, or at least $12 more than a well operated conventional setup.

Liquid storage of a manure-water mixture actually improves the fertilizer quality of cattle excrement because a high proportion of the nutrients can be recovered from both the solid and liquid wastes.

The system conserves about 75 per cent of the original nitrogen and 90 per cent of the phosphates and potash. Comparable figures for conventional disposal methods are 40 and 65 per cent, respectively.

One ton of liquid manure has 1.0 times more nutrient value than the raw product.

In addition, liquid manure can be held for sustained period—with little reduction in nutritive value—until soil and temperature conditions are right for spreading on fields.

The Wisconsin study group recommends emptying the storage tanks twice yearly in April and October. If farms apply the manure to pasture and cropland then, they should get the optimum in fertilizer values, yet keep storage costs to a minimum.

The system is particularly advantageous in free stall barns where there is no bedding to absorb the liquid part of the excrement. The solid-liquid mixture is easily removed by scraping the wastes through slots in the barn floor and into storage tanks.

Sparby also stated that if you are interested in a liquid manure system, stop at the ASCS office and they will be happy to discuss the practice available with you.

Minnesota Dairy Industry Has Top Production

Minnesota's dairy industry paced the entire nation for production effeciency by setting a new February record average per cow of 880 pounds of milk, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

It was the 21st consecutive month Minnesota's dairy industry has set a new record for average monthly production per cow, over the same month the year before. However, February's average ranks sixth among the all-time monthly high yields. May 1970 was the highest in history, with Minnesota dairy cows averaging 1,000 pounds of milk each.

Commissioner Wefald said that although Minnesota had 2,000 fewer milk cows this February than in 1970, the 980,000 cows—third largest herd in the nation—produced 862 million pounds of milk, or 17 million more than in the same month last year.

The total was enough to move Minnesota into second place in the U.S. for milk production, ahead of New York, which has the second largest number of dairy cows. New York's 1,027,000 cows averaged 780 pounds for total production of 792 million pounds of milk.

Wisconsin, with the nation's largest dairy herd, 1,847,000 cows, held the total production crown for February with 1,422,000,000 pounds of milk, despite an average of only 770 pounds per cow.

Only California, among the major dairy states, joined Minnesota in averaging over 800 pounds of milk per cow in February. California cows averaged 875 pounds of milk.

Commissioner Wefald said a more graphic comparison of the increased efficiency of Minnesota's dairy industry is provided by comparing to February, 1969. "This February we had 50,000 less dairy cows than two years ago. But 1971 production is 55 pounds per cow higher, and the total yield topped February, 1969, by over 12 million pounds," he stated.

THAT WORRIED LOOK

With these young pups, that worried look isn't real. You might call it a physiological illusion. The whole problem is that their heads haven't grown enough to fill out the wrinkles in their brows.

But with people a worried look is usually real. It reflects the deep concerns that trouble our world and lives.

Yet worry isn't going to improve the world. Its only real value is that it encourages us to seek solutions where they can be found. The best thing to replace worry with is FAITH.

Through the centuries man has found hope and courage in the truths of religion. God never meant us to solve our problems alone. Perhaps our most perplexing problem today is that too many people have been trying to do just that!

This dying turkey has been hit by fowl cholera, branded as the number one disease in the turkey industry. Growers recently received a valuable aid to battle the disease.

Albamix Shown Effective In Fowl Cholera Control

"Cholera has become the number one killer of turkeys," charged Lloyd Peterson, president of the National Turkey Federation, at a recent research symposium on the problem. But growers now will have a valuable weapon to fight this vicious disease.

The weapon comes with the Food and Drug Administration clearance for the use of Albamix in the treatment of fowl cholera. Albamix was developed and is being marketed by TUCO, Division of The Upjohn Company.

The disease can strike a flock without warning and growers may see an epidemic rage through their birds. Many times fowl cholera attacks turkeys at near market age, after a sizable investment has been made in feed and management.

The active ingredient that makes Albamix so effective is the antibiotic novobiocin, well-known to turkey producers as a successful treatment for staphylococcal infections.

The government's okay was based in part on extensive experimental infection trials. In the trials, novobiocin, when fed at the rate of 350 grams per ton of feed, typically reduced death rates from an average of 82 percent in untreated, control birds, to an average of 36.8 percent among birds receiving the drug.

TUCO markets Albamix in 14-pound bags, containing 25 grams of novobiocin per pound. Albamix is formulated into rations by feed companies and marketed to growers.

Turkeys being treated should receive 350 grams of novobiocin (14 pounds of Albamix) in each ton of feed and should continue receiving this medication for seven days. "As an aid in the control of recurring fowl cholera mortality following that initial treatment, we're recommending reducing the novobiocin level to 200 grams per ton and feeding this ration for an additional seven days," says Dr. T. G. Schalk, manager of Animal Health Research and Development at TUCO.

"Always start feeding at the first signs of infection or recurrence of the disease," cautions Dr. Schalk. "Remember, however, that Albamix must be withdrawn four days before turkeys are to be slaughtered."

Cost of treatment will be about 10 cents per market-ready bird, if Albamix at the 350 gram per ton level is fed for seven days. If this is followed with the seven-day feeding at the rate of 200 grams of novobiocin per ton, costs will be about 15 cents. Said one area grower, "That's pretty cheap insurance when you consider that a market-ready turkey is worth something between four and five dollars."

"We rail at trade, but the historian of the world will see that it was the principle of liberty, that it settled America, and destroyed feudalism, and made peace and keeps peace; that it will abolish slavery." —Ralph Waldo Emerson

Loyalty Day

In reaction against the May day celebrations staged by communists in this country, the Veterans of Foreign Wars was instrumental in establishing May 1 as Loyalty day. The reaction has succeeded in pushing the demonstrations and parades by communists into the background.

The Loyalty day idea caught on rapidly—after its initial introduction. Thousands of men, women and young people representing organizations, groups, schools, churches, civilians and armed forces units actively promoted the cause of loyalty to the United States.

Congress then adopted Public Law 529 which designated May 1 as Loyalty day, making it a "special day for reaffirmation of loyalty to the United States of America and for recognition of the heritage of our American freedom". People of the country are urged to "fly the U. S. flag and observe Loyalty day in schools and other suitable places with appropriate ceremonies."

Support of Loyalty day now encompasses many millions of residents of the United States. It is observed from coast to coast by people of all walks of life who recognize that this county, whatever failings it may have in attempts to reach perfection, is still the greatest country in the world in which to live.

A bulletin from the Veterans of Foreign Wars notes: We've heard it said that the American people lack a "cause". That is supposed to mean we don't have any really outstanding reason to get patriotically "steamed up" about patriotism. Well, when we stop to consider who we are, where we live and what we have, it sounds rather silly to be crying for a "cause".

We are Americans. We live in the United States of America. We are the world's foremost nation of free peoples. So, actually, we have more cause than anyone else on earth to demonstrate our loyalties.

The fact is plainly self-evident today when more than half the world's population is enslaved under communist domination—and we are the recognized leaders of free peoples fighting communism. Our number one cause is freedom. That is certainly well worth shouting about—and for.

We agree with the VFW opinion. Patriotism is not old-fashioned nor outmoded. It is a very necessary part of citizenship. We salute our nation on Loyalty day, May 1.

Personal Choice

Call it cheering for the underdog or whatever you will, but we still like to see the individual have a personal choice in the conduct of his life and interests. Maybe that's why we cringe when impersonal government agencies play games with human beings.

It seems to be becoming more fashionable to push the individual aside for the "benefit" of the "people" in a number of ways. Not only is this popular with the various agencies of government, but increasingly large numbers of the citizens are adopting the same attitude.

Voyageurs National park is a case in point. Land owners in the area of the park are being largely ignored if not outrightly criticized when they attempt to voice their views on the park. The individual is being "put down" as an opponent of progress, a self-centered person who is not interested in preservation of the environment nor the overall economy of the state (however incompatible the latter two may be).

The federal government would purchase private land in the park area and receive a considerable amount of other land and water from the state of Minnesota without cost. Ownership and management would be transferred to the Washington agency and use of the area would be severely restricted.

We don't blame property owners in the area from objecting to the park. We don't blame taxpayers in those counties from being disturbed about the loss of real estate taxes, no matter the total. And we respect their fear and distrust of a federal take-over of lands for restricted public use. Their rights as individuals are being pushed around again.

What Purpose?

We are in receipt of a news release from Robert E. LaShomb, executive director of the Minnesota Jaycees, which says that state president Lowell D. Thompson encourages party designation in the Minnesota legislature. He has "expressed disappointment over the legislature's reluctance to enact legislation requiring party designation of legislative candidates."

"The Minnesota legislature," Thompson observed, "is not a non partisan body. Legislators under the title of 'Conservative' or 'Liberal' are actively involved in promoting their party's interests. Yet, under the present system, a legislator is not bound to tell his constituents which party or platform he supports. The voter has a right to know the political affiliation of his legislator."

And we ask what purpose party designation would serve and what difference it makes to what political party a legislator belongs?

Minnesota has been spared the misfortune of other states where party designation is required in the state legislative body. It is enough to have Conservative and Liberal as party designation. Must they be called Republicans or Democrats? Must they toe a national party line in order to try and accomplish what is best for Minnesota?

When we vote for a legislator to represent us and our district, do we want to look for an individual who acts in behalf of us and of our district, or do we want someone who carries a party flag and follows the party line? Do we want our representatives obligated to broad district support or to political party support? Do we want responsive and responsible representation or party pressure representation?

We want Minnesota to have the best possible government which is most accurately tuned to the will of the people in the home districts. To those who preach party designation we have only one question: "For what purpose?"

Semantic Dictionary

The following dictionary of terms common to the vocabulary of pro-abortion enthusiasts was written by Donna M. Steichen, chairman of the St. Cloud chapter of the Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life, Inc.:

ABORTION: Throwing the baby out with the bath water.

ABORTION ON REQUEST: Abortion on demand, only more polite.

ADOPTION: A cruel and archaic (see "archaic laws") procedure in which pregnant women whose personal situation makes motherhood difficult, allow their babies to be born and become the beloved children of people who want them, thus afflicting the natural mother with profound guilt feelings which she could have avoided by the humane and sanitary procedure of abortion (see "abortion").

ARCHAIC LAWS: Laws against abortion, unworthy of consideration because passed more than 80 years ago. Other archaic laws include the Ten Commandments and the laws against slavery.

BLOB OF VEGETABLE MATTER: What is growing in the womb from conception until the 6th month of pregnancy. Previously called "a baby".

CHEAP EMOTIONALISM: The arguments of those who, in an attempt to prevent the legalization of abortion, persist in ascribing human qualities to the product of conception (see product of conception). Arguments in favor of abortion are not cheap and may even be a prudent economic investment, hence are best described as Evidence of Warm and Tender Compassion.

CHILD WELFARE: Assuming for the unborn child that he would prefer suicide to the risk of later discovering some lack of perfection in his environment. Acting on that assumption.

LIBERALIZE: (1) Weaken or invalidate legal protection for defenseless life, in order to (2) cut welfare costs. Such proposals were formerly called (1) fascist and (2) reactionary.

POLLUTION: Human beings.

PRODUCT OF CONCEPTION: See "blob of vegetable matter."

PROGRESS: A change in social attitudes toward the right to life, establishing as a criterion "usefulness" or "wantedness." Since, in such a situation, it is advisable to be one of the judges rather than one of the judged, people will be motivated to resist the temptation to be physically or mentally handicapped, a member of a minority race or religion, poor, sick or old.

PSYCHIC TRAUMA: The emotional devastation experienced by women who are prevented by archaic laws (see archaic laws) from killing their unborn children. The emotional devastation experienced by women who have had abortions merely indicates a previously existing instability, has nothing whatever to do with the abortion, hence cannot be described as psychic trauma.

QUALITY OF LIFE: Quantity of material possessions.

RIGHTS OF WOMEN: Unrelated to employment opportunities or pay scales; it simply means that it is never too late for a woman to change her mind about a pregnancy. Why these rights do not extend beyond the child's birth to include infanticide is not logically clear and may be amended in the future.

RIGHTS OF MEN: Men (i.e. fathers) have no rights.

WANTED CHILDREN: The first two children of married white college graduates (ideally ZPG members) who have savings accounts, adequate pension plans, two bicycles and a completely biodegradable nursery.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

A bill was introduced recently that would provide for complete takeover by the state of all welfare programs. An interim committee did considerable work in the welfare field. It found that township, county, state, federal, private and voluntary agencies are all operating in the field of assisting fellow human beings.

They found that federal controls on all categorical aids and federal controls in other ways have greatly eliminated the local flexibility in providing assistance. They also found that abandoning residence requirements, which were required under a decision of the U.S. supreme court, tends to have negative local influence on forms and methods of assistance.

They found that computers will give advantages on a statewide basis. The legislature needs to grasp this problem, should demonstrate some interest, and must attempt to establish some order.

There are many reasons why a state-administered and state-financed welfare system would be of advantage to Minnesota.

We now have a separate township system in 13 counties where approximately 50 per cent of money spent is spent for administration rather than for assistance. There are many problems between counties when it comes to establishing the county of settlement and therefore a county responsible for the payment of the bills.

We have an entire system for personnel in the county welfare offices simply because of our Minnesota system. This separate system and the resultant paper work and administrative problems would be abolished and the employees placed in civil service.

There are legislative problems in establishing an equalization aid formula for counties with peculiar welfare problems.

There is special legislation to provide additional funds for Indian relief.

All of these problem areas from an administrative and legislative viewpoint would be abolished under this proposal.

Five weeks now remain in this legislative session. The time for introduction of bills has expired and committees are meeting at every available hour in order to complete this work.

There is a great desire among the members of the Legislature to reduce real estate taxes. In order to do this, they will have to be replaced by some other form of taxation, either expanded or increased sales tax or increased income tax or a combination. The only question to be answered is how much should real estate taxes be reduced and from what source shall it be done.

Interest rates on home loans guaranteed by the Veterans administration were reduced from 7.5 to 7 per cent on February 18, the third reduction in recent months.

THORP LOAN & THRIFT COMPANY THORP

How a minus on your paycheck can be a plus in your future.

Sound confusing? It isn't, really. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside automatically from each paycheck. That's the "minus."

That amount will then be invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. That's where the "plus" comes in. Because you're automatically saving for your future, with one of the safest investments there are: U.S. Savings Bonds.

And, by deducting a little at a time from each paycheck, you don't feel the pinch financially. Before you know it, you'll have quite a tidy sum tucked away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Put a little "plus" in your future. Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Hot Submarine Sandwiches Made In Covered Barbecue Kettle

The tasty submarine sandwich has gone under cover to become a not-so-secret agent in making summertime picnics much talked about affairs. Cooperating in this culinary coup is the covered barbecue kettle which bathes the sandwich in reflected heat to bake and bring out its hidden flavors. Here's how it's done.

Undercover Submarines

- 1 Loaf Vienna bread
- 12 Salami slices
- 6 Mozarella or Provolone cheese slices
- 6 Baked ham slices
- 6 American cheese slices
- 6 Thin slices tomato
- 1 Sweet green pepper, thinly sliced or chopped
- Butter or margarine

Cut loaf of bread in half and slice portions lengthwise. Spread halves with butter or margarine. On the bottom half of each place a layer of three salami slices, one of Mozarella or Provolone cheese, a second layer of salami, then three baked ham slices followed by three American cheese slices. Top with three slices of tomato and finally the sliced or chopped pepper.

Put the stacked halves of the sandwiches on sheets of aluminum foil and place them in the center of the covered kettle grill which has the coals stacked to the sides for indirect cooking. Bake for five minutes, then set the top halves of the sandwiches on the grill with the butter side up. Continue baking for seven minutes or until these halves are well toasted. Remove the sandwiches from the grill, put the two halves together and serve. Serves two hearty appetites.

How's Your Health

Does standing on your own two feet mean agony?

A healthy understanding is essential for the well-being of your whole body. Yet, most of us have some kind of foot trouble during our lives. Some of the more familiar foot faults are corns, bunions, in-grown toenails and athlete's foot, according to the Minnesota State Medical Association.

Corns are masses of dead skin cells with a sensitive core which are caused by excessive rubbing. Bunions are enlargements from chronic inflammation of the protective fluid sac over the joint in the toe. Ingrown toenails are curved nails which protrude into the nail beds on either side of the toe.

Corns, bunions and ingrown toenails can all be avoided by wearing only well-fitting shoes. Ingrown toenails may result from trimming the nail too short at the corners.

Athlete's foot is a fungous infection which can be avoided by extra attention to foot hygiene. Wash feet daily, dry thoroughly and use foot powder or talcum to keep them dry.

Never cut corns yourself and be wary of caustic corn removers because they also burn normal tissue. It is always dangerous to self-treat bunions and ingrown toenails. Serious cases may well need surgical care.

Your family physician is the first resource for foot troubles. Major problems may require the service of an orthopedic surgeon who is a specialist in the treatment of bones and joints.

You can stretch your family's medical care dollar. Despite the rising costs of medical care—like all living expenses—there are still ways in which you can get more for your medical dollar and get better protection for yourself and your family.

The Minnesota State Medical Association suggests the following ways to cut your doctor bills:

1. Have a family physician. Choose him now, before you need him. If you are new in a community, ask the local county medical society, the local hospital, a pharmacy or friends.
2. Emergencies are always more expensive. Don't try to put off seeing a physician until there is a serious illness. Preventive medicine is usually cheaper.
3. Have regular check-ups, particularly if you're over 35. Prevention begins with early detection and obviously a better chance to control and cure disease.
4. Go to the physician's office. House calls are more expensive and less efficient. A complete examination or treatment can best be performed in the physician's office.
5. Telephone—It not only saves money but makes good medical sense. Let the physician determine if an office visit is indicated.
6. Follow your physician's orders. If you fail to follow the expert advice you solicit, you are throwing money away.
7. Buy health insurance. If you must make a choice, skip the minor expenses you could pay for yourself. Insure against catastrophic expenses of serious illness.

First aid is the immediate and temporary care given to a victim of an accident or sudden illness. Knowing what to do in an emergency can help avert further injury, ease pain and possibly prevent disability and death.

The following is a multiple choice quiz which has been prepared by the Minnesota State Medical association as a refresher to help you recall what immediate first-aid steps to take while waiting for qualified medical help. The correct answers follow each question.

CONVULSIONS: A. Place patient on his back, turn head to side, or B. Keep patient warm, give him liquids.

Place victim on his back on a rug or bed where he cannot hurt himself, turn his head to the side and loosen his clothing. Raise and pull his lower jaw forward. If convulsions do not stop by themselves, sponge patient's head and neck with cool water and send for a physician.

ELECTRIC SHOCK: A. Give patient artificial respiration immediately, or B. Turn off electric power.

Turn off electric power. Do not touch a patient until his contact with electric power is broken. Pull him from contact using rope, wooden pole or loop of dry cloth. Start artificial respiration; send for a physician.

POISONING, SWALLOWING: A. Keep patient warm and lying down, or B. Call physician.

Check immediately with a physician. Administer antidote recommended on container. Induce vomiting if patient is conscious except for poisoning from corrosive substances such as lye or petroleum products. Give patient water or milk.

Car Owners Can Cut Pollution By Maintenance

Automobile Manufacturer's association, in a release to the Minnesota highway department, states that about four out of every five cars on the road have one or more systems to reduce the output of vehicle emissions which contribute to air pollution.

These controls have reduced substantially the emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, or unburned fuel vapors, from motor vehicles into the nation's air. Furthermore, as newer vehicles replace those without controls and as new generations of control systems are introduced, we can expect a cleaner environment.

But, car owners can also help to achieve cleaner air by the proper maintenance of their vehicles.

One study of representative cars in use in the Los Angeles area showed that relatively simple and inexpensive engine maintenance—setting of idle speed and air-fuel mixture to manufacturers' specifications—could lower the total atmospheric levels of automotive hydrocarbons by about 10 per cent and those of carbon monoxide by about 15 per cent.

Another series of tests found that a misfiring spark plug could double hydrocarbon emissions and that a carburetor set for too rich an air-fuel mixture could increase carbon monoxide by 50 per cent or more.

Newer vehicles have a label permanently attached under the hood listing proper engine settings to assist the trained mechanic in making the proper adjustment.

Owners of cars built prior to the 1968 models, when exhaust controls were first introduced nationwide, may elect to install special exhaust emission control kits, developed by auto manufacturers and other companies. No state has yet moved to require the installation of used car control systems, but several are considering laws requiring periodic inspection of all vehicular emission control systems to assure proper maintenance.

Changes in automotive fuels also are being investigated by petroleum companies and governmental agencies to speed the decline of vehicle emissions.

Many areas of research and engineering development are being explored to better understand and control air pollution. One example of efforts by the automotive industry to reduce its share of the problem is a $13 million research program being directed by the coordinating research council.

Funds for the research council are provided by the Automobile Manufacturers association and the American Petroleum Institute, with the federal government participating on a selected project basis. The 38 projects initiated thus far involve atmospheric and medical as well as engineering studies.

Vehicle manufacturers have made great strides thus far in terms of technology and the development of emission control systems in their individual efforts to eliminate the automobile as a source of air pollution. By following a periodic maintenance program, as outlined in the owner's manual, each owner can help assure that the maximum benefit of these efforts would be realized for the life of his vehicle.

Cleaner air is everyone's responsibility.

Motor Carrier Accidents Exact Toll Of Lives

Minnesota department of public safety has been informed of an analysis by the department of transportation of the most severe commercial vehicle accidents, Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

He commented on a study of 286 of the most critical accidents involving 631 vehicles, 367 fatalities and $8.4 million in property damage. The accidents were chosen for study, he said, because of either unusual severity or the probability of the motor carrier's faulty vehicle, improper cargo loading or driver error or negligence.

In many of the accidents studied, the driver had been drinking or was intoxicated. In others, he had been using medicines and drugs that impaired his driving ability. In still others, he had been driving beyond the time limit, in many cases with a falsified log, and was dozing or asleep when the accident happened.

In at least a dozen cases, a highway transport unit had been placed in the hands of an inexperienced driver, and in a dozen more in charge of a driver with a bad record of accidents or violations or both.

Thirty-six of the accidents studied involved tankers carrying flammable liquids, or vehicles carrying other hazardous materials, including bombs. In three cases, drivers let tankers overflow while loading, spilling gasoline and causing disastrous fires. One such fire destroyed four tankers and a fire truck at a cost of $200,000.

In one case, the driver of a truck loaded with ammunition plowed into another truck stopped for an accident, causing an explosion. In another, a driver in charge of a tanker full of gasoline ran a red light and collided with a car. Six people died in the collision and ensuing fire, and the property damage was $2 million. The driver was judged to have been "inattentive."

In one accident, the explosion of a cargo of magnesium, the driver had not been told he was carrying hazardous material; and the material had been improperly loaded.

Maintenance also shows up as a problem with these units. Faulty brakes were blamed in 11 accidents, defective or worn tires in 11, and various other defects in 16. Three accidents occurred because the trailer was improperly coupled to the tractor, or because of a faulty coupling device.

Six persons died in one accident when the drunken driver of a big tanker swung his truck across the median strip and collided with two cars.

"Indications are that Minnesota's record is better than average. Only three Minnesota accidents were selected for study on the basis of the criteria mentioned above. They involved five fatalities and $50,000 property damage. The number is a little more than half the average for the 50 states, fatalities less than one seventieth, and property damage less than one third.

"We like to think this is because Minnesota's professional drivers are well above average and our carriers are more careful about vehicle maintenance. Nevertheless the record shows that there is much to be done in Minnesota and nationally, to reduce this hazard," Hoaglund said.

READY FOR HANGING in an office, home or gallery is this oil painting by Gary Sorrels of Williams. The majestic moose is one of the North American big game animals on which Sorrels is concentrating his efforts. Sorrels is working to combine quality with speed to make his profession more profitable. He said this painting took six weeks of full-time effort.

Artist Finds Happiness In Paints And Solitude

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

No one would suspect from its unassuming appearance that the modest two-room trailer house in the woods northwest of Williams is actually the studio of a full-time artist. The subterfuge is virtually perfect.

To 28-year-old Gary Sorrels, however, the trailer is kitchen, living room, bedroom, studio, den, storage closet and gallery, all rolled into one. He hopes, of course, for better things to come, but for now it will suffice to fulfill his need for shelter and contain his all-consuming desire to become an accomplished and successful wildlife artist.

Undoubtedly like many aspiring artists today, Gary is rich in talent and not so rich in financial resources. So intense is his interest in his chosen profession that he has painted on one occasion for 24 hours straight. The quality of his work rivals that of well-known wildlife artists and, in our estimation, surpasses the work of several of them.

Needless to say, there is no large market in the Williams area for quality wildlife art. Gary's choice of that community and mode of living is for two very practical reasons—it's quiet and cheap.

"It may not be much but it's paid for," he said of his trailer home. "The land belongs to our family. About all I have to do is heat the place and eat a little once in awhile. Sure, I like to go out and mingle with people, but social life gets a little limited when the budget is tight."

Strives For Realism

But the realism that Gary has for his philosophy of life is secondary to the realism in his art. He achieves a depth in his paintings that makes them seem almost third dimensional. But he is entirely unsatisfied with his knowledge of his subject matter.

"I need a good camera and have to take the time to get some good photos," he said. "There is a field not far from here where at least 40 deer feed every day. I should be out there doing resource work. You have to have an intimate knowledge of the animals in their own world to make them lifelike when you paint. The real beauty of wildlife is in its natural surroundings. If you can't paint them as they are, why paint."

Sorrel's artistic ability began to show in the early elementary grades, and he always enjoyed drawing. When he was in eighth grade he won a $10 prize from a national hobby magazine for his drawings of a futuristic airplane and boat.

Gary was born in Baudette and is the second eldest of 11 children. He lived on several farms around Williams as his parents moved from one place to another and his first three grades were spent in rural school. He graduated from high school in 1960.

After working on the farm for two years, he went to California, returning in 1963. From April through August of 1965 he received active training in the National Guard, later belonging to units in Bemidji and Owatonna. He completed his military obligation this year. His most recent salaried job was at Josten's in Owatonna where he worked in the art department. He left there in March of this year, traveled in the Southwest for two months, and returned to the Williams area in May.

Learns By Mail

Gary credits most of his artistic ability to a correspondence course he took from an art instruction school in Minneapolis. It took him four and one-half years to complete the three-year course which cost $635 plus materials. The course fee has since been raised to $775. He now has a certificate of graduation from the school and has been helped by a vocational department there which refers art jobs to students or graduates.

While in National Guard training, Gary picked up some extra money by painting portraits. He always loved wildlife, however, and decided that he should specialize in order to become the most proficient possible in his art. Big game of North America will be his specialty, and about 15 animals will be his concentration of study.

"That maybe doesn't sound like a lot of subject matter," he said of his specialty. "But I feel I have to put in a good deal of time in the field to really get to know the animals I paint. Some of the species I have never seen in the wild, and I don't believe I can produce original paintings unless I can study the habitat and the animals."

Gary was fifth in the beginner's course at the school and in 1964 won first place in the student division of the school's art competition with a pencil

QUEST FOR REALISM is evident in the paintings by Gary Sorrels, young artist from the Williams area who is determined to become an established wildlife artist. Sorrels puts a depth into his paintings which makes them appear to have almost a third dimension.

Nearly 500 At Marshall County 'Share The Fun'

Nearly 500 people attended the Marshall county 4-H club share the fun programs presented by 36 4-H clubs at the Warren elementary school and Newfolden high school Monday night when five acts were selected for the district event to be held in June.

Audiences at both contests selected the winners, with three acts being chosen from the 15 clubs competing in Warren and two acts from the 20 clubs competing at Newfolden, Ray Thompson, assistant county agent, reported.

The winning acts selected at the Warren contest were a skit, "Mudge's Hats" by the Comstock Club members Cleo Sedlacek and Lona Potucek; a vocal number from the Vega club by Brian Demeyere with Lori Larson as accompanist; and a vocal number "Nostalgic Medley in Song" by the Plainview club with Colleen Hart, Jane Hart, Michela and Marietta Wolnarewicz comprising the quartet with Mary Sunsdahl as accompanist.

The acts selected at Newfolden include a vocal number by the New Maine club presented by Craig and Todd Swenson and a vocal solo by Don Lunka from the Holt club.

In Warren Jane Hart, Plainview club, and Gene Anderson, McCrea club, served as the masters of ceremonies, while at Newfolden, Kent Benson of East Augsburg was the master of ceremonies.

Committee in charge of the event in Warren included Jane Hart of Plainview as chairman with Mrs. Ralph Wilmer, Plainview; Sharon Watts, Oslo Meteors; Mary Kostrzewski, Florian Friskies and Cleo Sedlacek, Comstock, as members. The McCrea club served lunch following the program.

The Newfolden festival had Mrs. Earl Waterworth, Grove Valliants and Mrs. Eskil Sjoblom, East Augsburg, as co-chairman of the committee with Debra Lien, Cedar; Bruce Ueland, New Maine; Gary Borg, Holt; Sharon Verbout, Grygla Go-Getters, and Rebekah Haugen, Sunnyside, as members. The New Maine club served lunch.

Board Selected Thursday For Day Care Center

Nine committee members were present last Thursday evening for a third meeting on a child care center for the children of working mothers.

The board members selected were Mrs. G. F. Beito, Mrs. Jonathan Law, Rev. Lloyd Berger, Mrs. Neil McEwen, Mrs. David Bjorkman, Rev. Phil Lothrop, Mrs. Duane Walton and David Sorvig.

Board members will take up their duties at the next meeting scheduled for May 20. Advisors to the board are Roger Worth and Ronald Mooers.

The committee has made arrangements to obtain the supplies needed to operate the center. A list of local citizens was presented and from this list nine permanent board members were selected. One seat on the board was left vacant and will eventually be occupied by a parent of a child enrolled in the program.

The center will be open to anyone interested in having their children enrolled in a supervised program. Enrollment will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

Roseau Creamery Sold To LO'L

Stockholders of the Farmers Cooperative creamery at Roseau voted at a special stockholders meeting April 22 to accept a proposal by Land O'Lakes, Inc. to buy the assets of the Creamery. The effective date of the transaction was May 1, 1971.

The patrons of the creamery will become direct patrons of Land O'Lakes. Land O'Lakes will continue to operate the Roseau plant as a receiving station, as well as continue to operate the agricultural services department.

Stephen Given Grant For Water

A $215,000 development loan and $75,000 development grant to the village of Stephen has been approved by the Farmers Home administration, state director Gordon F. Klenk has announced. The proposed water system will serve 318 users in the village of Stephen.

Record Crowd At Scout Exposition

MISTER PRIDE, who will ride herd on the community clean-up campaign in Thief River Falls this month, visited all local public elementary schools Friday to seek support of youngsters in the clean-up, paint-up, fix-up effort. Here he shows two young Mark Twain students the bright yellow sticker which will be affixed to areas in the city needing attention. People responsible for the property marked will be encouraged to make the necessary clean-up, paint-up or fix-up required to stimulate community pride.

Another record crowd viewed the annual Penn-Ro-Shall Scout exposition and hobby show Sunday afternoon. An estimated 4,000 persons viewed the five hour show, according to Art Heinze, general chairman for the Thief River Falls Jaycees.

Attending from the Seven Oaks Boy Scout District in Winnipeg, Canada, were 80 Boy Scouts and 30 adults. There was a total of 35 booths at the exhibition, including 12 booths manned by participating hobbyists.

Over 1,000 advance family tickets were sold throughout the Penn-Ro-Shall district, according to general chairman Heinze and Jack Lemoureux, hobby show chairman.

Ribbons were awarded to the winning Boy Scout booths by a six man team of judges including Glen Porter, Yvonne Brennen, Dave Strong, Howard Thorson, Jay Borchert, and Ron Fitch.

Cub Scout Pack 57 of Thief River Falls won a blue ribbon and a red ribbon for its family fun and craftsmen activity booths. The pack is led by Oscar Elshaug. Packs 59, 60, and 199 won blue ribbons for their respective booths featuring a pine wood derby, Cub Scout trails, and ocean exploring.

Pack leaders for these three packs were Ward Aes, Wally Heaton, and Al Bellerud. Thief River Falls Pack 199's Webelos won a red ribbon for their geology booth. The pack is lead by Rick Contos. The Karlstad Pack 79, led by Louie Phann, received a red ribbon for its handicrafts booth. Pack 150 of Grygla, led by John Lillevole, received a blue ribbon for its pioneer days booth.

Boy Scout Troop 57, led by Dan Carlson, received a red ribbon for its tower building exhibit. Irving Swanson's Troop 60 received a blue ribbon for its safety exhibit, and Troop 79 of Karlstad, led by George Davis, received a red ribbon for its camping and pioneering booth.

Sixteen garden clubs were represented at the 13th District Horticultural Society spring workshop hosted at St. Hilaire on Saturday April 24, by the Sun-Brite garden club of Black River and the Forget-Me-Not garden club of Red Lake Falls.

During the business session, members voted to make a $25 donation to the Don Hoag Memorial fund. A decision was made to continue the junior pumpkin contest. Winners of the contest will be announced at the fall workshop. The premium list for the flower show at Roseau on August 19, was also distributed. Mrs. Harold Kagg of Viking, president of the 13th district, presided at the meeting. The welcome was extended by Mrs. William Kruse of the Sun-Brite club.

Lady Of Snows Court Is Given Recognition

Our Lady of the Snows court, 2023, of Thief River Falls received special recognition at the Catholic Daughters of America workshop held recently at Crookston.

The newly formed local court was cited for its many charitable activities. Included was the special recognition given to the senior citizens in the five nursing homes in this city. These homes are visited regularly by members of the court and each resident is remembered on his birthday with a card and a small remembrance. It was also mentioned that the local court had participated in the state project by selling over 300 cook books. Proceeds alloted to the local court will be used to buy needed materials for clothing such as hospital gowns and layettes, and for sending packages to the missions.

Representing the local court at the workshop were Dee Trudeau, regent; Vic Kalinoski, first vice regent, Evo Lendobeja, monitor; and Sophie Bernstein and Louise Fisher, trustees, together with Kay Jesch, Margie Mazurek, Mary Evans, Frances Oski and Mary Loeffler, members of the court.

Other courts represented were from Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Red Lake Falls, and Grand Forks, N.D.

Mrs. Noel Hastad, national director and state extension chairman, was the guest speaker. Her topic was "Drug Abuse." In her discussion, she recommended that parents read the book, "Narco Priest" by Roland Melody. A copy of this book will be donated by the Lady of the Snows court to the Thief River Falls public library, according to regent Dee Trudeau. Mrs. Hastad also reported on her trip to Houston, Tex. While there, on behalf of the Catholic Daughters of America, she presented a copy of the American Bible to astronaut James McDivitt.

Hosting the workshop were members of the Crookston court, the Good Sisters of St. Joseph.

Kathryn Ose-Lee Johnson Vows Said In Minneapolis

White chrysanthemums, pink [illegible] graced the altar of the First Lutheran church of Columbia Heights, Minneapolis, for the recent wedding of Miss Kathryn Louise Ose and Lee Duane Johnson.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Torkel Ose of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Piggott of Spring Branch, Texas, near San Antonio.

Rev. Roger Ose, brother of the bride, officiated at the ceremony. He based the devotional meditation on Col. 3:14, "And above all these put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony." He stated that although love is fragile when rooted in the love of God, it will stand the tests of time. Following the exchange of vows, as the couple knelt at the altar, Rev. Ose sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

For her wedding, the bride chose a Victorian, floor-length gown of egg shell hopsacking. Embroidered lace formed the rounded yoke and the fitted sleeve accented by a hopsacking puff. Around the bottom of the ankle-length skirt was a 12 inch ruffle of matching lace. At the high neckline, she wore an antique cameo. She carried a solitary, long-stemmed yellow rose, complemented by a white ribbon bow.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her college roommate, Miss Marie Gravdahl, a cousin of the best man. She was attired in a long sleeve yellow blouse and a floor-length skirt in a multi-colored floral print. Like the bride, she also carried a solitary, long stemmed yellow rose.

Best man was David Gravdahl, brother-in-law of the groom. Both the groom and his attendant wore yellow carnations pinned on their lapels.

The mother of the bride was attired in a coral dress complemented by a corsage of Jack-o-lantern roses and pink sweetheart roses. A similar corsage was worn by the mother of the groom, who wore an aqua [illegible].

Following the ceremony, the wedding party and the guests assembled at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Voltinson. There a three-course dinner was served by the bride's brothers and sisters. Centering the table was a tiered wedding cake decorated with pink candy roses and topped by a cluster of frosted wedding bells in pastel colored net, accented with white lilies of the valley.

Among the guests were the bride's mother, Mrs. Tarkel Ose, her brothers, Iven LeRoy, who attends the University of Minnesota, and Joseph and his wife and family; the groom's mother, Mrs. Ralph Pigott, his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Gravdahl, Danny and Carla of St. Louis Park, and his cousins, Bill and Jan Brekke of Pine City.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and California Lutheran Bible school, Los Angeles. She has studied music for three and one-half years at the University of Minnesota. The groom is a graduate of Pequot Lakes high school. He received his bachelors degree in business administration and psychology at Bemidji State college. He is presently employed in a branch of his father's real estate business.

The newly-weds are now at home at 705 Seventh street southeast, Minneapolis.

Child Restraints Can Save Lives

Thousands of young children could be saved from injury or death every year on Minnesota highways if parents would insure that they are buckled up every time they ride in the family car, Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund advised.

"Safety restraints for children which meet U.S. department of transportation standards are now on the market and available at all dealers selling U.S. made cars."

Hoaglund stressed the importance of using restraints that meet high standards. "Some child seats are on the market which offer little or no protection, and some have design faults which actually inflict injuries.

"Restraints with hardware having sharp edges, those which do not anchor to the car frame and which are not well padded should be avoided.

"The safest procedure is to invest in a restraint that meets federal standards. Such restraints are labeled as to the manufacturer's name, model number or name, date of manufacture, and makes and models of vehicles in which they should be used. The label also specifies the child's weight and height limits."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Right To Attend Funeral

Within hours after her husband died Grace received a long distance telephone call from his brother.

"Please hold off the funeral until I get there," he said.

But Grace made him no promise. In fact, the funeral was already over by the time the brother arrived. Shocked and angered, he filed a damage suit against Grace, demanding compensation for the mental anguish she had inflicted upon him.

However, the court turned down the brother's claim. Whatever his moral rights may be, said the court, he had no legal right to be present at the burial.

Generally speaking, the final "say" about a funeral belongs to the surviving spouse—or, in the death of a child, to the surviving parents. This includes not only choosing the place of burial, but also fixing the time for the proceedings.

Further, it includes even the method of burial. In one case, a farmer buried his infant son in a crude wooden box which he had put together himself. Indignant relatives and neighbors had him arrested on a charge of failing to provide a decent burial. However, a court found no basis for the charge.

"What would be regarded as entirely proper by one might be regarded as altogether unsuitable by another," said the judge. "No rule can well be formulated."

It may be a different story, however, when someone takes on an affirmative obligation to handle the funeral in a particular manner. This is the kind of obligation an undertaker owes toward his customer. Thus:

An undertaker went ahead with a burial before the family of the deceased had arrived at the cemetery. When the family later haled him into court, he pointed out that they had arrived after the appointed time. Nevertheless, he also conceded that the burial was not supposed to take place except in their presence.

Under these circumstances, the court ordered the undertaker to pay damages. The judge said:

"(He) was guilty of a callous assault upon the sensibilities and feelings of the bereaved."

Sunday has been set aside as Mother's day. Honored together with mothers and grandmothers will be the "special people". In this last group are the ones who have unselfishly given of themselves without obligation and without a thought of reward. In discussing Mother's day, one such woman said, "I wept as I unwrapped the "Mother's day" gift, so lovingly wrapped by little spastic hands. I also wept for the child's mother, who in deserting him had deprived herself of the love of that child.

May all the mothers, grandmothers and "special people" receive blessings in abundance for all the love given in time of need. May these blessings continue all year through. (EMS)

For the lovers of rhubarb, spring has officially arrived when that long, crisp stalk is ready to be made into a variety of desserts. With warm weather, our rhurbarb should be ready for use by Sunday as the stalks are already four or five inches long.

We are grateful to Mrs. Arlo Scholin for sharing her rhubarb dessert with the readers of Kitchen Karnival.

Rhubarb cake dessert

1 cup sugar
1 package strawberry gelatin
3 cups rhubarb, diced
3 cups miniature marshmallows
1 package white cake mix

Method: Spread rhubarb in a 9 x 13 inch cake pan. Combine the powdered gelatin and sugar and sprinkle over rhubarb. Cover with marshmallows. Mix cake, following the directions on the box. Pour over the marshmallows and bake according to the directions on the box, checking the cake before removing from the oven. (If frozen rhubarb is used, a longer baking time is required.) Let stand for a few minutes before removing from the pan. Serve as an up-side down cake with whipped cream.

The Scholins live on a grain farm west of St. Hilaire. They have two children: Joey, 12, in sixth grade, and Thomas, eight, in third grade at St. Hilaire elementary school.

Mrs. Scholin stated that her interests are many. She particularly enjoys assisting in community affairs, school events, and in the work of the church. They attend services at the Black River Lutheran church.

Drinking Driver Clinic At Austin Shows Promise

First driver improvement clinic in Minnesota to deal specifically with the problems of the drinking driver is off to a good start, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today. The clinic was launched in Austin last February on the initiative of Municipal Judge Fred A. Kraft. It is in addition to Austin's regular driver improvement clinic, now in its eighth year.

Results of the new clinic, according to its administrator, Deputy Sheriff Nolan Dugan, are good.

Since attendance at four, two to three hour sessions is part of a court sentence for driving while intoxicated, the clinic's staff did not anticipate a highly cooperative attitude from the 20 class members.

"I was surprised," says Dugan, "at the improvement in attitude during that first session." He added that in the closing session, the members of the class were asked to evaluate the clinic, and each one said that it was worthwhile.

The staff of seven, representing medicine, insurance, law enforcement, Alcoholics Anonymous and others has been carrying on a continuous effort of self-evaluation and criticism. Results, says Dugan, are already apparent.

For example, in the second class, they have been much more successful in dealing with problems arising from resentment. "We recognized that in order to have the fullest impact we had to have class participation. This was a problem in the first class, but is no problem in this one."

The long-range effectiveness of the course is not known. At this point, results are not measurable, but class attitudes suggest promising possibilities.

The Austin clinic is modeled after a pioneering effort in Phoenix, Ariz., which has been in operation for several years.

There is no question that we must become more jealous of maintaining and improving our environment, but it seems to me that a cleaner world can best be achieved by advancing technology rather than retreating from it. If the SST presents a danger of a new ice age or of a fundamental alteration in weather patterns—claims which are unsubstantiated and often clearly contradictory—then would it not be best for America to be involved in researching the possibilities? After all, the U. S. government, which presumably speaks for all of us, would surely deny final approval to anything (such as the Super Sonic Transport) that would be detrimental and would go into world councils to stop such a threat, but we can only go armed with facts, not guesses.—Hon. Clarence J. Brown, Congressman from Ohio.

Farmers Elevator At Stephen Hit By Fire Apr. 25

Fire gutted the interior of the Farmers Cooperative elevator at Stephen Sunday, April 25, in a blaze that began about 9 a.m. and kept firemen at the scene until midnight.

The fire was confined to the northernmost elevator annex, and two adjacent elevators were saved. Firemen were hampered by the extreme height of the elevator, since the fire was at the top of the 80-foot structure.

A stand pipe, running from the ground to the top of the building, to which one of the water pumps was later connected, served as a sprinkler system to help keep the fire under control.

The water tower at Stephen was empty after about three hours of fighting the blaze, and water was then pumped from the Tamarac river. Heat within the building was so intense an aluminum ladder was melted and springs on the doors sagged like electrical wires.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

Korpi Awarded Bronze Star In Vietnam Action

Pfc. Michael E. Korpi, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], Route 1, Middle River, recently received the bronze star medal in Vietnam.

He received the award for distinguishing himself by valorous actions. The bronze star medal, adopted in 1944, recognizes acts of heroism performed in ground combat against an armed hostile force.

Pfc. Korpi received the award while assigned as a rifleman with Company A, 2nd Battalion, 5th Cavalry of the 1st Cavalry Division (airmobile).

Roseau Board Rejects Teacher Salary Proposal

A negotiation panel recommendation on teacher salaries for the Roseau school system was rejected by the board last Monday on the basis of extracurricular pay.

The panel recommended a bachelor degree base of $7,100 with a maximum of $10,280, and a master degree base of $7,740 with a maximum of $11,340, which the board felt was a bit high but not out of reason, according to board chairman Dr. William Pitblado.

The rejection came because the board felt that proposed extracurricular pay was too high.

The matter now goes back to the panel and a hearing will probably be held in the near future. The recommendation of the panel after the hearing will again be reviewed by the board.

family FINANCIAL PROTECTION

Q. There seem to be so many different kinds of life insurance policies. Can you help me tell one from another?

A. Okay - let's take it step-by-step. First, let's look at the way you might buy your life insurance. There are three types: 1) ordinary insurance, that bought individually in units of $1,000 or more, with premiums payable once a year or oftener; 2) group insurance, bought at the shop or office; and 3) industrial insurance, the kind issued in small units, with the agent calling at the home once a week or month for the premium.

Ordinary insurance accounts for nearly two-thirds of all life insurance, and maybe you'd like a brief rundown on several kinds of ordinary policies. There is (a) straight life, where the protection (and premiums) continue for life, (b) limited payment life, with protection for life, but premiums paid up after a given period, say 15 or 20 years; (c) endowments, where the policyholder receives the insurance money after a stated period such as 10 or 20 years (if he dies before then the money is paid to his beneficiary); and (d) term insurance, giving coverage for only a limited period, usually five years.

There are other possibilities. Some policies are designed as (e) retirement income insurance, giving the policyholder an income usually after he reaches 65. With other policies, the premiums begin small for the first few years and then step up, this enables young career men to cover their life insurance needs within their means. There are also "combination" plans, like the one insuring all members of a family.

The reason for these and other variations is to provide plans to suit the variety of family protection needs. Your family life insurance agent can give you additional assistance.

Radial tires get boost in Mich. Speedway test

Bob Irvin

The Detroit News Business and Finance

A big booster of radial tires is Frank Cipelle, general manager of American Raceways and Michigan International Speedway in the Irish Hills.

It's not that they're being used on race cars but because of a government contract with the speedway. The speedway has to put thousands of miles on production model cars that are to be tested to see if they continue to meet air pollution control standards.

At first, Cipelle says, they used bias-belted tires — the type standard on most U.S. passenger cars the last two years. The best mileage obtained when the cars were run 24 hours a day seven days a week was 3,500 miles, he said. Cipelle said he's now using Goodrich radial tires and gets 28,000 miles on them.

"We've had no flats in running about one million miles, almost all of them on radials," he said. Every time a car has 4,000 miles accumulated on it, it is hauled by truck to the government testing laboratory at the Willow Run Airport, near Ypsilanti.

There the emission level is checked. Interestingly, when the cars are put on a dynamometer they are equipped with bias-belted tires because of the standardized testing procedure.

THE SPEEDWAY NOW IS TESTING 36 cars. They will be run until each car has 50,000 miles on it. That should be about the end of February, Cipelle believes. The speedway started the testing work back in August. It has continued despite the financial troubles of the parent company for the speedway, which is headquartered in Detroit.

People who live in the area are recruited to do the driving. They are paid $3 an hour. They drive for about an hour and 45 minutes at a time, then stop and rest for 20 minutes. Cipelle said the only accident came when one woman dozed at the wheel and hit a wall at the speedway.

As a sidelight, I've learned the testers have found some interesting results on fuel economy of the various cars and on leaded versus unleaded gasoline.

Nine of the cars are operating on unleaded gasoline, the other 27 on leaded gasoline. The cars using unleaded have color-coded locked gas caps so there will be no confusion.

Anyhow, it appears that the unleaded is giving better fuel economy than the leaded gasoline. This bears out previous research done by the Ford Motor Co. and reported at a Society of Automotive Engineers meeting a couple of years ago.

Incidentally, the cars that are being tested were bought on the open market. The Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth models all have two-barrel, medium-size V-8 engines and are equipped with typical options like power steering and power brakes.

WHICH CAR HAS BEEN GETTING the best mileage? Sources say the Ford has proved to be the most economical.

Goodrich, by the way, is predicting radials will become increasingly popular in the 1970's and that by 1980 they will be the dominant tire used on new American cars.

The company tried its new Radial T-A tires in the recent 24-hour Daytona endurance race in Florida. They were used on a Pontiac Firebird and gave excellent performance, the tire company said.

A spokesman said the tires withstood speeds up to 164 miles an hour on the 3.8 mile course. The car was withdrawn from the race after 461 miles due to engine failure but "we had no tire failures and our tires showed little wear," he said.

They said it, we didn't.

Heroin Addict Apprehended By Roseau Officials

A 40-year old heroin addict with a habit authorities estimated cost him $200 a day was arrested in Roseau last Tuesday and is currently in jail in Moorhead, the county sheriff's office reports.

Joseph Cervenak, of Danbury, Conn., was picked up at a motel in Roseau by deputy sheriff Larry Tall after an all-points bulletin was issued.

The Pennington county sheriff's office says Cervenak is wanted in Thief River Falls on a charge of forging three $100 money orders and issuing a worthless $50 check.

Cervenak had heroin and methamphetamines in his possession when he was arrested, reports from Roseau indicated. He was lodged in the Roseau county law enforcement center where he began to undergo drug withdrawal symptoms and was later extradited under medical care to Fargo to face prosecution on a felony warrant.

(The Pennington county sheriff's office said that forging money orders in the amount of $100 or more is a felony and would have to be handled by district court. When county authorities are able to prosecute after legal action has been taken in other communities, Cervenak will be charged with felonious forgery in probate court and bound over to district court.)

The Federal Bureau of Investigation had also been trying to apprehend Cervenak.

The Roseau county sheriff reported Cervenak had a typewriter and check blanks with him when he was arrested, and the sheriff said Cervenak "could alter checks beautifully". Cervenak had earlier forged a $100 check on the Penney company in Fargo.

"He was apparently supporting a habit which must have cost him between $150 and $200 a day by forgery and using credit cards," the Roseau sheriff said.

Cervenak was driving a new 1971 automobile which he had [illegible] company in Kansas City, Mo. When he got the car, the sheriff said, it had 16 miles on it. The vehicle had over 3,000 miles on the speedometer when Cervenak was apprehended in Roseau.

Other reports said that Cervenak had been using drugs since [illegible] been arrested at least 60 times previously for various offenses.

Increase Noted In Campers And Trailers On Road

Rising popularity of the recreational vehicle for vacation travel has been one of the most notable vacation developments of the past few years, Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

A recreational vehicle under Minnesota registration and tax laws is any vehicle equipped and intended for temporary use as living quarters, from a tent trailer costing $300 to a deluxe highway cruiser retailing for as much as $15,000.

Nearly a million were produced in [illegible] that 8,000,000 will be on the highways by 1980.

Is this producing a new safety hazard on the highways? Enthusiasts deny it. They hold that owners of such vehicles are the safest and most responsible type of drivers. They usually have a [illegible] vehicle, and feel especially responsible for their passengers. On the other hand, the accident statistics show that the chances of an accident are increased when a trailer is towed behind a car. Reduced braking ability, the danger of jackknifing, susceptibility of the trailer to cross winds all add to the demands upon the driver.

During 1970, Minnesota licensed 5,317 recreational motor vehicles and 45,326 recreational trailers. The motor vehicles included converted school buses and pickup trucks with camper bodies permanently attached, in addition to the cruisers produced by the rising new recreational vehicle industry. However, these figures are not a true measure of the recreational vehicles in Minnesota because they do not include the campers whose bodies are removed when not in use. Such vehicles are not eligible for the recreational classification in Minnesota and are taxed as trucks.

Recreational motor vehicles have license plates with an "R" prefix. Recreation trailer licenses have an "HZ" prefix.

Potato Acreage Expected To Be Above Last Year

U.S. department of agriculture today pointed out that the 1971 late summer and fall potato acreage intentions are far in excess of the nine per cent reduction recommended by USDA in February.

USDA said that if potato growers carried out the planting intentions reported as of March 1, the resultant oversupply of potatoes would cause marketing difficulties in the 1971-72 marketing season and reduce grower's income.

USDA's consumer and marketing service had recommended on February 10 that growers of late summer and fall potatoes reduce 1971 acreage by an average of nine per cent from the 1970 level, when a record crop of 282.4 million hundredweight was produced. Growers are now obtaining relatively low prices for this crop.

The C&MS recommendations are made to help growers plan production to meet market needs.

Growers' intentions as of March 1, as reported by USDA's statistical reporting service, were to plant a total of 1,240,700 acres, slightly higher than the late summer and fall potato acreage of 1970. In some major producing states, intentions reported are for increases of five per cent or more over 1970.

With average yields production from an acreage equal to that indicated by growers' intentions would exceed requirements by a wide margin. This could be expected to result in prices to producers next fall and winter which would be substantially below costs.

Minnesota In Mid Range In Taxes On Road Users

Minnesota is in the middle range of states when it comes to highway user taxes, a study made by the U. S. department of transportation reveals.

One of 23 states that does not levy personal property taxes on motor vehicles, Minnesota stands 35th among the states in its collection of registration fees and motor fuel taxes on the average medium-sized car. The DOT calculates Minnesota's average at $74.71 annually. This compares with $146.77 in the most expensive state and $53.64 in the least costly state. Both states levy personal property taxes on vehicles in addition to user taxes.

Minnesota is lower than its neighbors, except for Wisconsin whose tax is estimated at $62.46. The gasoline tax is the same in all neighboring states, but registration fees account for the difference.

In taxing non-farm pickup trucks, Minnesota stands 42nd, and among the lowest, or 47th in taxing 15,000 pound trucks.

On the largest over-the-road semi units, Minnesota's tax is midway between the highest and lowest states.

No Need for Revolution

James Aune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnt Aune and a senior at Lincoln high school, recently competed in the national "Voice of Democracy" contest after winning the state competition earlier this year. The contest is sponsored annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the state first place honor was one of a number attained by James in his high school years.

As a sophomore, Jim went to the state contest in debate. As a junior he was a member of the state entry one-act play cast and also a regional winner in the speech contest. This year he completed a sweep of all three by advancing to the state in debate, one-act play and speech.

We congratulate Jim on his success, certainly unique in the state and indicative of his personal ability. Following is the text of his VFW Voice of Democracy talk which won the state championship:

"No Need for Revolution"

We learned; but not enough; there is more to learn.
The American People entered our years of defeat with so little preparation we have not yet learned how deep the disaster. We had leaders but like Moses they led us into the wilderness and like Moses died,
in wild darkness and the terror of death....

These words were written by the American novelist John Dos Passos in his District of Columbia trilogy in 1952. They express his dismay at the Cold War, at the spectre of Communism, and at the seeming blindness of the American people. Although today perhaps we have less to fear of atomic war or Communist takeover, these words of Dos Passos speak of terrors that many of us still do feel. They speak of the fear that we shall soon be lost, leaderless, in an America torn between the forces of anarchy and disruption and the forces of repression and tyranny. They speak of the bitter understanding that we have forsaken the wise counsel of our ancestors for the rhetoric of hatred and division.

It is my conviction that the wilderness of despair in which we find ourselves today is the result of our unwillingness to accept the responsibility of democratic life and community. It is my conviction that it is our unwillingness to accept that duties of the first American Revolution that has caused many of our people to call for a new revolution. It is time for all of us to return to the ideals of order and justice expressed in the Constitution of the United States. Otherwise, we may never recover from the years of our defeat.

Today there is a call for revolution by many groups in our society. The blacks and other repressed minorities are demanding an end to racism and are asking for equal opportunities in the fields of employment, government, and education. Initially it was felt by these groups that nonviolent reform could achieve their goals, but more and more are losing faith in the responsiveness of government to their problems, and are turning to violence. In much the same way, many young people have become frustrated at the impersonality and materialism of American life, and have turned either to the selfdestructiveness of the drug culture or to the senseless brutality of the Weathermen. Young and old alike are calling for an end to poverty, war, and the destruction of our environment. And again, frustration has bred polarization and violence.

It would seem that there are two causes for this wilderness of despair. The first is our unfortunate emphasis on our constitutional rights than on our constitutional responsibilities. The second is our failure to understand the revolutionary implications of the United States Constitution.

We hear so much today about our rights. Young people ask for a chance to do their "thing." The middle class asks for a return to good old rugged individualism, a system in which every man is free to do his economic "thing." The various ethnic groups in our society are preoccupied with their nationalistic aspirations.

Let us read again the words of the Preamble to the Constitution:

> We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Notice the key phrases: "WE the people", "a more perfect UNION," "the COMMON defense," the "GENERAL welfare,"...our constitution was not established by a group of White Anglo-Saxon protestants for a nation of White Anglo-Saxon Protestants, it was created for everyone. And that means that everyone has to give up a little of himself in order to have an orderly society. The German people who did their own apathetic "thing" brought Hitler to power. American corporations doing their free enterprise "thing" have hastened the destruction of our environment. American whites doing their property-rights "thing" have made our inner cities concentration camps for our black population. Minority groups with their ethnic "thing" are feeding the fires of the racism that has kept them down for years. We are all very fond of our rights, but we are less fond of the responsibilities that we must exercise in order to maintain those rights.

The Constitution gives us many responsibilities: the responsibility to vote, to hold public office, to be informed. The responsibility not to discriminate on the basis of race, religion, or sex. The responsibility not to take the law into our own hands. Democracy is not just doing one's thing.

Perhaps all this talk of revolution would be less loud if more people would realize that selfishness is not a democratic virtue. However, we must realize that there are legitimate grievances against the status quo. But we must also realize that the cause of these grievances is our failure to understand the revolutionary implications of the United States Constitution.

Let us reconsider some of the complaints that we hear against the Establishment. The first one that we discussed was the issue of minority rights: that America is a racist society. Very well, let us read the 14th Amendment to the Constitution:

> No State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of the law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

If America truly has a constitutional government, then racial discrimination must be illegal. The only revolution that we need in racial matters is to enforce the laws we have.

Many Americans are also concerned about recent threats to our rights of free speech and assembly, and suggest that we are turning into a police state. However, that great conservative and expert on Constitutional law, Senator Sam Ervin of North Carolina, has been the first to point out that wiretapping, preventive detention without bail, the no-knock laws, the Army surveillance of left-wing politicians, are all directly in conflict with the Bill of Rights. As long as our constitution is supported, we shall not have a police state.

Another complaint against America has been against its military involvement in Indochina, and this is cited as proof that American government is not responsive to the will of the people, and should be overthrown. However, let us read from Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution. This article clearly gives Congress the duty to declare war and manage the armed forces. If our government is truly constitutional, our representatives in Congress could suggest at any time that our Vietnam involvement has been an exercise of unconstitutional Presidential power, and demand an immediate end to the war. (This is unlikely to happen, but this realization could prevent further such episodes in the future.)

We could cite many more instances to demonstrate that the revolution that is so widely called for has already happened. If we as Americans really accept the constitution and put it into practice, there should be no discrimination, there would be no repression, no unwarranted use of Presidential power. Why do we need another revolution? It's already happened. The Constitution is the greatest blueprint for a just society that has ever been written. But then, why has it not been put into practice? Again, this is probably the result of our blind individualism or of our following leaders unquestioningly. In 1952 Don Passos said that "we have not yet learned the depths of our disaster." And yet, now in 1971, I think we are beginning to learn these depths. The concern for the problems of race, poverty, war, and the environment are in a real sense a hunger for community, a hunger for the ideal of a constitutional America. If only our young radicals could learn to be calm and rational and sit down and read the documents of American history, to read Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, and Washington, they would see that the only revolution that we need in America today is a revolution of the spirit. We have our document of law, the Constitution, but now we must make the ideals expressed in that document more than just words.

Jon Dos Passos concluded that novel in 1952 in this way:

The republic's foundations are not in the sound of words, they are in the shape of our lives, fellow citizens.
They trace the outlines of a grand design. To achieve greatness a people must have a design before them too great for accomplishment. Some things we have learned, but not enough; there is more to learn.

Today
we must learn to found again in freedom
our republic.

Dear Sir:

My wife and I recently moved to Thief River Falls from the southern part of the state. We really enjoy living in the Thief River Falls area. Perhaps one of the advantages we really appreciate living in a town of Thief River Falls' size is the lack of big city traffic.

Our appreciation comes to a screeching halt, however, every time we pass through the intersection of Second and LaBree in Thief River Falls. After several near misses and false starts we can only wonder why no stop signs nor yield signs have been put up at this intersection.

Traffic control in the remainder of the city seems more than adequate and it appears inconsistent to us not to give this important, busy corner the attention it deserves.

Sincerely,
R. Pollick
St. Hilaire

Dear Sir:

We would like to disagree with your spots promoting UNICEF and the wonderful things it is doing to relieve suffering in the April 14th issue. There is much evidence to prove these funds are used for things other than feeding the hungry. We are enclosing some pamphlets we hope you will read.

Thank you.

P.S. We appreciated your editorial recently concerning gun legislation.

Very truly yours,
Mr. and Mrs D. C. Stephanson
1302 E. 14th St.
Sterling, Illinois 61081

To The Editor:

In all candor I have submitted this letter to all three of the major newspapers in the Twin Cities and it still remains unpublished. I would like to quote a prominent senator on Viet Nam:

"The North Vietnamese regime has made an international career of aggression almost since its inception in 1954. Certainly supported and quite possibly incited by Communist China. North Viet Nam has persistently engaged in subversion and more direct hostilities against the duly constituted governments of both Laos and South Viet Nam. It has done these things in gross violation of the Geneva agreement of 1954 and the Geneva agreement of 1962 pertaining to Laos. It has done these things in violation of international law, in contempt of the United Nations charter, in malice toward its neighbors, and in reckless disregard of the requirements of peace in Southeast Asia....

"It would be a great mistake to allow our optimism about promising developments in our relations with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe to lead us to any illusions about the aggressive designs of North Vietnam and its Chinese Communist sponsor...Our purpose...is to establish viable, independent states which will be free of and secure from the domination of Communist China and Communist North Viet Nam."

For those who have read Sen. J. William Fulbright's paperback, "The Arrogance of Power", they might find it hard to believe he uttered these words during the debate on the Tonkin Gulf resolution according to the August 6, 1964 Congressional Record, but he did. The communists have said, "there is nothing permanent" not even views I guess.

NSJC Faculty Hears Talk On Human Services

Mrs Helen Steeklein, assistant director for cooperative education in human services for the Minnesota state junior college system, spoke to the Northland junior college faculty last Wednesday.

Northland is one of eight state junior colleges [illegible] to participate in cooperative education in human services program, which is federally funded by the bureau of higher education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and focuses on the disadvantaged population served by participating junior colleges.

Mrs. Steeklein addressed the faculty on the meaning of cooperative education and spoke on what other colleges in the human services program are doing. A question and answer session followed her talk.

She also visited Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, one [illegible] Northland in the human services program. Northland junior college has three students enrolled full-time in the spring quarter in this course.

Dewayne Sjostrand of Hillock and Nathan Langager of Owatonna are engaged in field work experience at the Pine Point elementary school on the White Earth Indian reservation. Walter Forney of Thief River Falls has been assigned to the day night psychiatric care unit at Northwestern hospital. The three students will receive 12 college credits in either sociology or psychology for their lab experience.

Mrs. Steeklein was accompanied on her trip from the project office in Minneapolis by Frances Sudowski, program assistant for cooperative education.

Pole Building Is Experiment At Testing Station

A 55' x 104' pole building, underlaid with an experimental manure pit of treated plank, went into operation February 10.

One hundred head of cattle are expected to grow out and be finished in this facility. A portion of the building is devoted to a drive-through feeding alley and feed bunks.

The unusual features of the building include a design which will enable comparison of the effect of sun vs. shade on slatted floors at this northern-most location for the University of Minnesota. Both sides of this split design will remain open to the weather. They face south.

Comparison of building design under northern Minnesota conditions will also be an important part of the project, according to E. C. Miller, agricultural engineer at the experiment station, who is collecting the building and engineering data. Wind turbulence will be measured within each part of the building.

Construction details, using treated wood plank in the manure tank unit, have been evaluated. Longevity of the unit will now be studied, along with agitation problems with this design.

Evaluation of the feeding problems, animal efficiency and management concerns is under the direction of Dr. Harvey Windels, animal scientist at the experiment station.

WATERCOLORS, like this pronghorn antelope, are sent by Gary Sorrels of Williams to an art gallery in Jackson Hole, Wyo., where they are offered for sale. The gallery operators have informed Gary that he should send all the paintings he can produce for acceptance this year.

PENCIL DRAWINGS can be dramatic when the pencil is in the hand of an artist. This black bear was drawn by Gary Sorrels of Williams. Sorrels plans to concentrate his artistry on big game animals of North America.

Artist Finds Happiness In Paint, Solitude

drawing of a tree.

While realism is the strong point of his paintings, Gary also appreciates good abstract art. "An artist has to be able to understand color and form to point quality abstracts," he said. "Usually real ability comes only after study of realism and a good deal of experience. Most impressionistic or so-called 'op art' is a place to hide for kids with no talent. It doesn't take any real ability to produce impressionistic paintings. I don't think we should confuse an outlet with quality of art."

Outlook Changes

Art has changed Sorrel's outlook on wildlife to some extent. "I have always enjoyed hunting and I still do," he said. "But I have taken up bow and arrow hunting for deer instead of using a rifle. And I can shoot grouse because I don't believe it does any harm to the species, although I only take wing shots now. But the closer you get to wildlife, the more you enjoy just seeing the animals and birds as part of nature instead of targets."

In his northern abode, Gary has regular wildlife visitors. "There are several ruffed grouse that come every day to eat buds on the aspens by the trailer," he said, "and there is a large covey of sharptail grouse that hangs around some brush nearby. They're all good neighbors."

It takes some kind of discipline to arise in the morning and return to work on a painting which has already required several weeks' work. "You just have to get into the habit," Sorrels says. "I'm committed to my goal of being a successful artist. I can compare my work with other art which has been sold and I know it's good enough to compete. I don't mean that I can't improve my work—I hope to always be able to do that—but I believe I have a good chance to make it. What I need now is lots of practice so that I can do good work in less time. I'm still learning, but I am getting faster."

A Matter Of Time

When he does become successful, and surely that is only a matter of time, he has plans to locate a home studio in the Williams area. "I have a place in mind that is for sale," he said. "It borders some real wilderness and has a great deal of wildlife. To me, it would be an ideal location."

Sorrels has submitted a number of watercolors to a museum and art gallery at Jackson Hole, Wyo., and has been informed that the gallery can sell as many as he can produce for it. It's a good start toward a promising career for a talented young man with great perseverance and ambition.

Iverson Given Insurance Award

Modern Woodmen of America district representative and Mrs Conrad Iverson of Thief River Falls have returned from New Orleans, La., where they attended the fraternal life insurance society's national agency sales conference April 17-20.

Should More '71 Tax Be Withheld, Questions IRS

Some individuals may not be having enough income tax withheld from their paychecks, and could find they owe a large tax when they file their 1971 federal return, according to George Lethert, IRS district director.

Persons most likely to face this situation are employees who earn more than $11,500, single individuals who expect to earn $15,000 or more, married employees who expect to earn $25,000 or more, and all working couples.

The tax withholding system allows a 13 per cent deduction for taxpayers not entitled to the low-income allowance, Lethert said. The standard deduction, formerly $1,000, has been increased to $1,500.

For example, a single taxpayer with a $15,000 income is assumed to have 13 per cent, or $1,950, in deductions. When he takes the $1,500 standard deduction, or $450 less, generally, he will end up owing tax. The same problem exists for those who itemized deductions of less than 13 per cent.

Employees who are not sure that enough tax is being withheld should estimate their withholding and their tax liability for 1971, the IRS suggests. If more withholding is necessary, the employee could claim fewer exemptions or ask his employer to withhold specific additional dollar amounts for his wages.

Cancer Society Memorials Told

Cancer fund memorials for three persons have been received by the local unit of the American Cancer Society.

According to Mrs. Charles Krause, memorial chairman of the Pennington county unit of the society, memorials were given in the names of the late Ferdie Brown, Laura Rohrer, and Bill Walters of Minneapolis.

Memorial contributions to the society are used entirely on research into causes of and finding cures for cancer.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—May I purchase a home with a GI loan over the VA appraisal?

A—Yes, provided you pay the difference between the purchase price and reasonable value determined by the Veterans administration, in cash from your own resources without resorting to any borrowing.

Q—Does the Veterans administration provide any educational program for veterans disabled in military service?

A—Yes. There is a rehabilitation program for veterans who suffered serious service-connected disabilities. For information on this program, contact the nearest VA office, or your local service organization representative.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and the Veterans administration has advised me that I can carry only $10,000 worth of Government life insurance. Is this true?

A—Yes. The maximum of [illegible] coverage is established by law.

Q—I was hospitalized in a Veterans administration facility for more than 21 days for an injury I received on my job. Would I be entitled to a temporary VA 100 per cent rating for this period of hospitalization?

A—No. Only veterans hospitalized for more than 21 consecutive days for treatment of service-connected disabilities may qualify for this benefit.

Q—I am 62 years old, and desire to convert my National Service Life Insurance term policy to the modified life plan. What premium must I pay?

A—Sorry, you cannot convert to the modified life plan after age 60. However, ordinary life has the lowest premium of the other plans available at your age.

Q—I understand veterans have deadlines which they must meet to be eligible for certain benefits. Is there a deadline for applying for Veterans Administration hospital care?

A—No. There is no time limit for a veteran to receive hospital care if he is eligible, needs it, and a bed is available. Beds are always available at VA hospitals for veterans with a service-connected disability.

Q—Is a veteran penalized if he pays off a GI home mortgage loan before it is due?

A—No. A GI loan may be prepaid without penalty at any time. Prepayments may be made in the amount of the regular monthly installment of $100, whichever is lesser or in any larger amount.

Q—Does "paid-up" insurance pay dividends?

A—Yes. However, when a policy is surrendered for reduced paid-up insurance, the dividends will be based on the reduced amount. When limited payment policies such as 20-payment life have all premiums paid up, they continue to receive dividends.

Q—My son received 36 months of training under the Dependents Educational Assistance Program and has now been ordered to active duty. Will he still be eligible for educational assistance under the GI Bill?

A—Yes. If your son serves on active duty at least 181 days and receives an other than dishonorable discharge, he will be eligible for additional education assistance. A veteran may use up to 48 months when he is entitled under two or more programs, but all time used under laws administered by the Veterans Administration will be deducted from this maximum entitlement.

Q—I have a rather large dividend accumulation on deposit with the Veterans administration insurance service. May I withdraw it?

A—Yes. You may withdraw all, or any part of the accumulated dividends.

Q — My son was lost at sea during World War II. I would like to have a memorial marker to put in a private cemetery. Will the army furnish one?

A — Yes. Application forms for memorial markers are available at all Veterans Administration offices, and should be mailed to the Office of the Chief Support Service, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

Q — My first husband was killed in action during World War II. I remarried in 1950, and my payments from the Veterans administration were terminated. My second husband died in 1960. I am receiving a small pension from the VA, based on his non-service-connected death. Can the VA pay me anything on my first [illegible] now that I am a widow?

A — Legislation effective Jan. 1, 1971, permits the VA to again pay death payments on your first husband's death. The VA cannot pay you for the deaths of both husbands, but you can elect to receive the larger payment. The minimum payment to a widow for a service-connected death is $167 monthly. A greater amount may be payable, depending on the pay grade of your first husband. You should contact your VA office immediately.

Q — I converted my "V" national service life insurance term policy to the modified life plan in July of 1970. I had received dividends each year on the term policy, but failed to receive a dividend payment on the modified life policy. Why?

A — When you convert your national service life insurance policy to modified life, you also change the anniversary date on which dividends will be paid. The modified life policy with a "V" prefixed number to which you converted is a participating policy, and dividends have been declared on these policies for 1971. However, your dividend in July will be smaller than on your NSLI term policy.

Q — Some of the services have a six-months' active duty training program, followed by so [illegible]. Are these people eligible for educational assistance under the GI Bill?

A — No. This is a six-months' active duty program for training enlistment in the reserves or National Guard, and is specifically excepted from the definition of active duty for GI bill purposes.

Camps, Clinics Are OK'd For Athletes

Minnesota held its first-ever Congress of Schools in Minneapolis April 23 and 24, with Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith and school board member E. C. Olson attending the meetings from Thief River Falls. Don L. Olson, Thief River Falls, served as a member of the ad hoc committee during the two-day affair.

The Congress was called to order by Chairman Supt. Allen of Greenbush at 10 a.m. Friday morning with the entire day devoted to clarification and discussion of all the amendments that were to be voted on the following day. However, a motion was made and unanimously passed to delete recommendations one thru seven of the ad hoc committees report (dealing with all aspects of independent team play) from the agenda for Saturday's balloting and a committee to be appointed by the board of directors to hold a six month study to give more groups a chance to be heard before any final legislation be held on this matter.

The first order of business Saturday morning was the adoption of the newly worded ports of the Articles of Incorporation. This brings the constitution up to modern standards in wording and also spells out clearly such things as (a) There can be no proxy or cumulative voting, (b) There can be voting by mail without a meeting (75 per cent of all member schools would be considered a quorum—2-3 majority of these needed to pass anything) (c) Spells out clearly how any article can be amended.

Representation was added to the representative assembly and board of directors. This will come from: (1) School boards, (2) The more populous districts, (3) Athletic directors, coaches, music educators and speech education associations.

Next main order of business was an amendment to get the rules governing league activities out of the constitution area and into the rules section of the handbook where the members felt they belonged. They will now be found in a separate general rules section of the handbook with each activity having a separate section covering rules and regulations relative to that specific activity. This will also make it easier to correct or change an outdated or unfair rule.

The following are some of the important recommendations that were passed:

1. A student that is being investigated for violation of the alcohol-drug-tobacco rules will now be allowed to participate until investigation is completed (10 day limit). No team honors or victories could be taken away for this participation.

2. A league case book be developed to help administrators interpret rules infractions.

3. The board was instructed to come up with a football play-off plan and come to the schools with it for approval or disapproval (by mail).

4. Head coaches are now required to attend rules interpretation meetings in their sport. The expenses for attending these meetings to be reimbursed by the school district.

5. Definite seasons to be established in Golf, Cross-Country and Tennis.

6. Athletic Accident Benefit Plan will be dropped July 1st, 1972.

7. The league to study present regional structure for possible realignment.

8. Junior varisty or sophomore squad members can now attend league approved camps and clinics in that sport during the summer.

Camps are defined as where students are in residence, receiving food and lodging as well as instruction. The camps are limited to seven days in a single sport.

Clinics are defined as where students commute daily from their homes and daily instruction is for not more than three hours. Clinics are limited to 14 days aggregate in a single sport.

Other specifications concerning camps and clinics were:

1. Camps and clinics must be completed by August 1st of each year.

2. Camps and clinics cannot be financed by school district.

3. Student cannot attend a camp or clinic where a member of his high school's coaching staff is on the staff or is an instructor.

4. The camp or clinic must furnish adequate liability and accident insurance for all participants as specified by the Board of Directors of the League.

5. The camps program—menus, equipment furnished, facilities available, etc.—must be furnished to Board of Directors for approval by May 20th this year and March 15th in all other years. A list of approved camps and clinics will be furnished by the league to all member schools.

6. Each camp or clinic must furnish a complete report to the high school league within 2 weeks following the end of the camp or clinic.

The Congress was adjourned at noon on Saturday, April 24.

Number Of Forest Fires Increase

Forest fires destroyed 642 acres of forest and grassland between April 7-14, the Department of Natural Resources announced this week.

Twelve of the fires were of incendiary origin while the rest were attributed to railroads, debris burning, smoking and miscellaneous causes.

One fire destroyed 11 acres in a young forest plantation.

Warm weather, winds and lack of rain have combined to create dry conditions in many areas. Foresters caution that burning permits are required in all forest protection areas where the ground is no longer snow covered.

Permits can be issued by local forestry offices, township fire wardens or municipal clerks. Where there is a danger of fire spreading out of control, permits may be denied.

Wildfires destroy nests of birds, kill young tree seedlings, and may spread to buildings and other property. Spreading grass fires should be reported to the nearest forestry field station or to the township fire warden.

If the fire occurs inside of a local municipality, the fire department should be notified at once.

Camper Safety Ruling Proposed

Buyers of camper bodies and trucks will be provided with information essential to their safe operation, under a standard proposed by the department of transportation, Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund reported today.

The new standard will require truck manufacturers to specify the proper location of the center of gravity of the truck cargo, and camper body manufacturers to specify the weight and center of gravity of the fully loaded camper.

Pointing out that many campers have a high center of gravity, the department warns that this characteristic could have a substantial adverse effect on the vehicle's braking and handling qualities.

"The buyer of a camper today is able to obtain little information to guide him in matching a camper body to a truck chasis," he pointed out. "Camper brochures usually specify unloaded weights that do not take into consideration optional equipment, tanks, supplies, passengers, clothing and gear. They do not indicate the location of the center of gravity of the full load.

"With practical information about weights and proper loading, and with information about truck loading requirements, the buyer can make a more intelligent choice in matching body to vehicle, and come out with a safer, easier handling combination."

When finally approved, the requirement will go into effect Sept. 1, 1972.

University of Minnesota runner John Hopko has recorded the third best time in the mile run this spring, 4:05.5, among mid-west track stars.

Tom Masterson, University of Minnesota senior, has been named to the 1971 Academic All-American second team in basketball. A math major who has been accepted to the UM medical school, Masterson recorded a 3.89 out of 4.0 grade point average.

Minnesota Prep Cagers Eligible For UND Clinic

Dave Gunther, University of North Dakota head basketball coach and director of the second annual UND summer basketball school, says recent action by the Minnesota state high school league will permit junior varsity or sophomore cagers from Minnesota to participate in the summer school at UND.

Two one week sessions of the school have been scheduled June 6-12 and June 20-26 on the UND campus.

Gunther emphasized the school is open to boys who will be in grades 9 through 12 in the fall of 1971. Total cost is $65 for a one week session, which includes room and board. An advance deposit of $35 should accompany each application. Applications and other information are available by writing or calling Gunther at UND.

The UND head coach, a former pro with the Detroit Pistons and San Francisco Warriors, also four additional instructors for the two one week sessions. They are John Burckhard of Devils Lake, N.D., Dick Vinger of Grand Forks Central, Ken Towers of Grand Forks Red River and Larry Selk of East Grand Forks.

Burckhard is the head coach at Lake Region junior college and a former standout UND center and all conference performer. Vinger also is a former UND player and has had several North Dakota Class A state tournament teams at [illegible] in 1970. Towers has been at Red River four seasons and has had his teams in the state classic all four years that school has been in existence. Selk, a veteran of North Dakota and Minnesota prep coaching, saw his Green Wave team place third in this year's Minnesota Class A state touency.

Gunther and his assistant coach, Dennis Glenger, round out the instructional staff.

Gunther said enrollment in the school will be limited to insure proper instruction. "We urge boys interested in attending to apply early. Last year we had to turn a good number of boys away. Enrollment to date has come from all sections of the state and the number is now over 70," he said.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I have remarried, and my present husband has adopted my daughter. Since her father died from injuries sustained in World War II, is she entitled to training under the war orphans assistance program?

A — Yes. Her eligibility is based on the fact that her parent died from service-connected causes. Subsequent adoption does not affect this original eligibility.

Q — I plan to attend college under the GI bill, and understand that I must submit, at intervals, a certificate of attendance card. Is this true?

A — Yes, veterans attending college under the GI bill are required to return a certification card to the Veterans administration during the last month of each enrollment period. Students studying under the GI bill below the college level must submit a certificate of attendance card every month.

Q — I have read that some national cemeteries are filling up and will soon close. Will the Veterans administration pay an additional allowance toward purchasing a plot in a private cemetery?

GROUP CHIEF operator Paulette Grindeland presents gifts to Miss Gaukerud at her retirement party as operations manager Ben Agee watches.

BICK-PARK, president of Local 7220, presents a union life membership to Othelia Gaukerud at her retirement party last Monday night.

Othelia Gaukerud Is Honored At Retirement Party

Othelia Gaukerud, central office clerk at the Northwestern Bell office in Thief River Falls, retired Friday after 44 years with the company.

Before coming to Thief River Falls four years ago she was central office clerk in Grand Forks. Miss Gaukerud began her telephone company career in 1926 at Roseau, where her sister, Mrs. Emmett Dahlquist, was chief operator at the time.

She continued working in Roseau until 1965 when the Roseau telephone system was converted to dial operation. She then transfered to Grand Forks.

A retirement celebration party was held at the Eagles club last Monday night, at which she received gifts from the group. A lifetime membership in the telephone employees union was presented by Dick Park of Detroit Lakes, president of the local, and a lifetime membership in the Telephone Pioneers association was given to her by Ben Agee, of St. Paul, operations manager for the northern division who also gave her a 30 year employment award 14 years ago.

Paulette Grindeland, group current chief operator, in Thief River Falls, presented the gifts to Miss Gaukerud from her fellow workers.

At the party, Miss Gaukerud received a dozen roses sent by Dr. Jack Delmore of Roseau. She also received a telegram which was read aloud by Mrs. Bergland.

Acting Roseau mayor Roland Fredrickson also sent a congratulatory telegram which was read by Glen Fossum, presently the telephone company manager at Roseau.

Also present at the party for Miss Gaukerud, who plans to continue to make her home in Thief River Falls, were Reuben Styrlund and Frank McDaniels, former Roseau managers, and former chief operators Marie Westergard, Ardith Langlie, and Helen Edgekoski. Other guests were relatives, friends and telephone employees from Warroad, Roseau, Detroit Lakes and Duluth.

Clarice Collins served as master of ceremonies.

Seat Belt Use Could Save 200 Lives This Year

More than 200 lives could be saved every year in Minnesota highway crashes if we could persuade all drivers and passengers to use their safety belts at all times, according to Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund.

He based his estimate on calculations prepared by the United States department of transportation and its conclusion that "if 100 per cent usage could be achieved, the potential saving in lives could exceed 14,000 a year." Nationwide, Hoaglund pointed out, this is about one-fourth of the annual toll, or about 250 lives in terms of Minnesota's experience.

"Federal studies of crash experience and accident records," he said, "showed no fatal injuries at speeds up to 60 miles per hour when occupants wore lap and shoulder safety belts.

"The federal studies also indicate that most of the accident prone drivers are not habitual safety belt users. Therefore, the calculations are probably conservative."

He pointed out that the department of transportation is now proposing an automatic substitute for the seat belt, to be required on new cars within a few years. This is the air bag, which inflates automatically and instantaneously upon impact, and which provides more protection than the seat belt by spreading the impact forces evenly over the body.

"This will require several years to become fully effective in our accident picture," he pointed out, "since only about 15 per cent of the cars on our highways are in their first year of operation, and more than half are four or more years old. Meanwhile, we need to do everything possible to encourage the use of belts, since they definitely do save lives."

State Fair Will Honor Family For Participation

Minnesota state fair will name a "Fair Family of the Year" to preside over festivities on fair family day during the 1971 state fair, August 28 through Labor Day, September 6.

Fair officials believe that the many families who annually attend the pageant have made a significant contribution to its success. The fair family program was started last year to honor these people.

The family selected will be the one which has taken the most active interest in the fair during past years. The Melvin Kern family of Wodena, 1970 winner, has a history of state fair participation which goes back more than 25 years. The older Kerns exhibit in open class cattle competition, and all six children have taken part in 4-H or Future Farmers of America activities.

This year's fair family day will be Friday, September 3. Radio interviews, television appearances and participation in many of the fair's activities are planned.

Nominations will be accepted from any interested person. Nominations should include information such as how many years the family has participated, number of fair-goers in the family, plans for the 1971 exposition and ways in which the Minnesota state fair has affected the family.

Letters of nomination should be sent to: Fair Family, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108 on or before August 1.

$21.7 Billion Is Spent To Educate 12.4 Million Vets

Veterans administration reported today that the public has invested an estimated $21.7 billion to educate 12.4 million veterans under three major GI bills during the past 26 years.

The agency noted that at current GI bill training allowances, the VA disburses about $6,300 during the 36 months required for a veteran to earn his college degree.

Armed with this degree, according to the bureau of the census, a veteran can then expect to earn about $213,000 more in his lifetime than he could if he was only a high school graduate.

The Bureau of Internal revenue, meanwhile, estimates it will collect roughly $40,000 in taxes on the extra income.

John R. Murphy, director of the VA center at Fort Snelling, said that based on these statistics, the federal government stands to get back more than six times its original investment of $6,300.

He said that last year, participation nationally in all of VA's educational programs peaked at 1,025,000 in November—a 31 per cent increase over the 783,000 trainees on the rolls in November of 1969.

Veterans and servicemen become eligible for educational benefits after serving more than 180 days of active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955 he said. Or if the veteran has been discharged for a service-connected disability, he becomes eligible after any length of service.

LINCOLN TRACK CAPTAIN Paul Battleson holds the championship trophy awarded by Jaycee president Jay Borchert and meet organizer Lloyd Myster following the Prowlers' first-place finish in their own Prowler-Jaycee Invitational Saturday on the local athletic field. The Prowlers finished with 69½ points to runner-up Bemidji's 57 and third-place Crookston with 42. The Prowlers' Markoe Hanson supplied two first-place finishes for the meet's only double winner in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

HAND-OFF'S make the relay races one of the more exciting events at a track meet and the team that makes the good passes usually finishes ahead of the pack. Two members of the Prowler's 880-yard relay team make a perfect hand-off in this photo and went on to take first in the event with a time of 1:38.1.

Prowlers Top Strong Field For Invitational Title

Lincoln high school track team repeated as the Prowler-Jaycee Invitational champions Saturday with a solid team effort and a couple of pleasant surprises to outlast a strong 13-team field.

The Prowlers captured the third annual event with a whopping 69½ points, to runnerup Bemidji's 57. A strong Crookston squad finished a disappointing third with 42 points with Mahnomen gaining 24 and Ada 16.

The Prowlers had the meet's only double winner as sophomore Markoe Hanson triumphed in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Hanson ran the 100 in 11.1 seconds while finishing the 220 with a time of 24.7 in a day with less than perfect conditions.

The first pleasant surprise the Prowlers received was in the gruelling mile run where senior Kim Murphy upset favored Tedd Peterson of Crookston while setting a new meet record with a time of 4:51.4. The mark knocked more than two seconds off the old standard of 4:53.8 set by Tom Anderson of Bemidji in 1969.

Jon Wangberg, another Prowler sophomore, added another surprise to the team effort with a first-place finish in the 180-yard low hurdles in a time of 23.4.

Captain Paul Battleson supplied the Prowlers with another individual first-place finish in the 880 with a 2:07.3 showing while the Prowler 880 relay team also finished first with a time of 1:38.1.

Doug Aaseby supplied the Prowlers with a pair of second-place finishes in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 180-yard low's while Mike Fitzgerald finished second in the 440 and the Prowler sprint medly relay team came up with a second.

Junior Rob Swenson added a third-place finish in the 100-yard dash with fourth-place's gained by Tim Strand in the two-mile, Greg Bulger in the mile, Rande Smith in the long jump and Don Relerson in the 880. Gaining points for fifth-place finishes were Jon Folkedahl, two-mile; Jeff Rhoden, high jump, Wangberg, 180 low's, and Dave Lee, discus.

New meet records were also set in the shot put by Mahnomen's Dave Uhlir with a heave of 50' 4¾", bettering the old mark of 43' 9" set in 1969 by East Grand Fork's Scott Bakken. Bemidji's Brad Wubbles set a new meet mark in the 440-yard dash with a time of 54.1, topping the old record of 55.1 set by George Coloumbo of Bemidji in 1969.

A dual meet scheduled at Fosston tomorrow (Tuesday) has been cancelled for the Prowlers. The next scheduled action for the thinclads is a home meet against the Roseau Rams Thursday afternoon on the Prowler athletic field beginning at 4 p.m.

Prowlers Favored In Northwest Net Meet

Thief River Falls has been established as the team to beat in Tuesday's Northwest Conference tennis meet which will be staged at Bemidji.

The Prowlers will be out to end Bemidji's three year domination of the meet. The only team to break through in the meet's five year history has been Thief River which last won the title in 1967.

Bemidji scored a complete sweep in the 1970 meet, winning all three singles titles plus the doubles crown. Three of the five Lumberjacks who scored that sweep have graduated, however, and a fourth is playing at a different position.

The Lumberjacks and Crookston should wage a heated battle for second place with East Grand Forks expected to bring up the rear.

Thief River won its first four matches of the season besting all three conference rivals among its victims. Crookston was 2-3 in its first five matches, losing to Thief River and Bemidji by 5-4 margins while beating East Side 6-3. Bemidji beat only Crookston in its first three outings while East Grand Forks bowed to Crookston and Thief River in its only action.

Thief River's Mark Liden will be favored to dethrone Bemidji's Gary Conda at No. 1 singles after an 8-10, 6-1, 6-2 triumph over the Jacks' ace in a dual match Wednesday. Bob Menshuber of Crookston and Mark Hughes of East Side round out the bracket.

No. 2 singles will find Brent Reichert of Crookston favored over Scott Bjella of Bemidji, Gordy DeLap of Thief River and Dave Gorman of East Side.

Tom Nepper of Thief River and Mike Wilkens of Crookston should contend for the No. 3 singles crown against Chris Nelson of Bemidji and George Weber of East Side.

The Thief River doubles team of Mark Thyren and Stuart Waltonen is unbeaten and favored. Bemidji will enter Jim Kastner and Joe Rossi while Kim Hovet and Bob Bydahl will represent East Side and Mark LaPlante and Pat Shanahan will play for Crookston. Kastner took the No. 3 singles crown last spring.

B Squad Wins

A Prowler B squad tennis team defeated Mahnomen 6-3 Thursday in the Bee's first action of the season.

In the number one singles, the Prowlers' Jeff Wendt dropped Steve Nelson 6-2, 6-1 while Lincoln's Scott Stuart got by Pete Houdek 6-3, 6-3 in the number two singles and Don Bren downed Mahnomen's Tim Roy 6-3, 6-1 in the number three singles.

Doug Felleck and Kim Lindblom upended the Prowler doubles team of Dave Forney and Mike Engen 6-3, 4-6 to score Mahnomen's only points of the match.

JUNIOR MAKE HAMILTON crosses home plate for one of the Prowlers' eight runs in their 8-1 romp over the Goodridge Huskies Friday afternoon. The Prowlers won one and lost two games over the weekend, including an 8-6 loss to Red Lake Falls in extra innings in the second game of a double header Friday night. Next action for the Prowler nine will be tomorrow night (Tuesday) at Fosston.

LHS Nine Lose Two After Win

Home field advantage wasn't quite enough for the Prowler baseball team over the weekend as the Lincoln nine managed just one win out of three home games to even their season record at 2-2 for the year.

The Prowlers bombed Goodridge 6-1 in the first game of a double header Friday afternoon before dropping the night-cap in nine innings to the Red Lake Falls Eagles, 8-6. Newfolden handed the local's a 5-2 setback Saturday afternoon as the Nordics pushed their season record to 3-0.

The Prowlers received stout pitching from Mike Hamerlinck and Rob Almquist against Goodridge with Hamerlinck giving up just one hit in the first four innings while Almquist gave up one run and no hits in the final three frames.

Johnson's homer made it 2-0 until the fourth inning when the Prowlers scored via one hit and two errors for a 4-0 lead. The Huskies scored in their half of the fifth on a walk, stolen base, fielder's choice and a passed ball.

The Prowlers tallied three times in the fifth on four hits before adding the final run in the sixth frame.

Red Lake Falls jumped on starting pitcher Brian Petersen for three runs in the top half of the first inning and scored three times in the top of the ninth to break a 5-5 deadlock.

The Eagles rapped 15 hits off Peterson, Pete Sullivan and Mike Hamilton with many of those coming in the form of infield hits and short pop flies.

The visitors lead was trimmed to 3-2 in the Prowlers' half of the fourth inning but the Eagles managed to up the difference to 5-2 going into the last of the sixth before the Prowler tied the contest 5-5 on Pete Sullivan's infield hit to send the game into extra innings.

The Eagles scored three times in the ninth on four hits and a couple of mis-plays by the Prowlers. Thief River Falls got one run back in the last of the ninth but were stopped short with a 8-6 loss.

Newfolden, with all nine starters returning from last season, jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the fourth before the Prowler came back for a 2-1 advantage in the bottom of the fifth.

The Nordics came back for three runs in the last inning to take a 5-2 win. The Prowlers had the winning run on base in the final inning but were not able to bring him in.

Dale Hanson started on the mound against the Nordics with Mike Hamilton finishing the last inning.

Head coach Ralph Skay wasn't too dismayed at the two losses over the weekend saying that his team is young and inexperienced and will make a few mistakes during the year. "We're a very young club and we played under pressure this weekend which will be very helpful to us in the long run," said the veteran coach. "In the two games we lost we had to come from behind to tie the game before our mistakes cost us; I hope we'll be over them (mistakes) by tournament time," Skay said.

Lincoln Netmen Win 4th

Junior Mark Liden led the Lincoln high school tennis team to their fourth straight win without a loss this season Wednesday afternoon, defeating the Bemidji Lumberjacks, 7-2.

Liden defeated last year's number one singles player in region eight, Gary Conda, 8-10, 6-1 and 6-2 in the number one singles match. Prowler coach Whitey Olson termed Liden's win as an "excellent surprise," and the head mentor was very pleased with his team's performance.

Gordy DeLap lost a pair of 4-6 and 8-10 decisions to the Lumberjacks' Scott Bjella in the number two singles while Lincoln senior Tom Nepper dropped Chris Nelson 6-3, 6-0 in the number three singles.

The Prowlers' doubles team of Mark Thyren and Stuart Waltonen defeated Joe Rossi and Jim Kastner, 6-2, 6-4.

In exhibition matches, the Prowlers' Gordy Prichard and Craig Knutson defeated Kerby Scholner and Perry Dryer in a nine-game pro set, 9-6. In five-game pro sets, Prichard defeated Scholner 5-0 and Dryer 5-1 while Knutson dropped John Kazler 5-1.

North Central Ass'n. Studies TRF Schools

Members of the North Central association revisitation committee will be completing their work in the Thief River Falls school system this afternoon after two days and evenings of study here. The revisitation for North Central accreditation is the first of its type held here in nearly two decades, according to school officials, although a report procedure has been followed during the interim from the last study.

Introduction to the revisitation was held Monday evening following a dinner in the Lincoln senior high school cafeteria. Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson welcomed the guests and Robert Ostazeski, principal of the senior high school, introduced special guests.

Alden C. Knatterud, senior high school principal at Moorhead and chairman of the evaluation committee, explained the work of his organization. He also introduced Elmer M. Weltzin, director of secondary schools and NCA state chairman, who commented further on North Central accreditation.

Ted Hellie of the Lincoln faculty reviewed the philosophy and objectives of the local school district as defined by a committee and voted on by the faculty.

Windfield "Whitey" Olson presented material regarding the school and community as background information for the revisitation committee members.

Mayor A. E. Jacobson aired community involvement in education while William Penning, extension agent in farm management, told of the University of Minnesota program in the agricultural field. Leonard Waswick of Arctic Enterprises added the views of industry to the local situation.

Organizational meeting was held following adjournment of the group session in the school auditorium.

Sectional meetings were held Tuesday on philosophy and objectives, school and community, curriculum, student activities program, education-media services, guidance services, school plant and school staff and administration. Classroom visits for study of curriculum and instruction continued throughout the day.

Subject areas studied Tuesday included English, speech, journalism, foreign languages, agriculture, business education, home economics, industrial arts, art and music, physical education, health, driver education, science and mathematics and social studies.

Today has been devoted to completion of visits and conferences by visiting committees and completion of reports by committee members. A self-evaluation by the local school staff was completed prior to the visitation to provide a comparative study for recommendations by the visitors.

In addition to chairman Knatterud and assistant chairman Arlo Brown of Moorhead state college, the committee included the following members:

Sister M. Bernarda, principal, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; Caryl Bugge, mathematics teacher, Cooper high school at New Hope; Merlin Elle, physical education instructor at East

Angus Youth Hurt In Auto Crash

Dale Edward Hudarle of rt. 1, Angus, was hospitalized at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls Sunday morning with chest injuries received in an auto accident near the city.

According to the Pennington county sheriff's department, the 1965 station wagon driven by Huderle was traveling south on CAR 18 a mile east of Thief River Falls at 3:45 a.m. The car crossed highway 1 where the south continuance of CAR 18 is off-set and went into the ditch. The vehicle was said to be a total loss.

ADORNED in paint caps and plastic garbage bags the Lincoln high school band followed smartly behind the city's street washing truck to open the clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign Tuesday morning in Thief River Falls. The parade was to call attention to a concentrated effort to clean up all business and residential areas of the city during the month of May.

Loan Rate For 1971 Crop Barley Is Announced

Pennington county loan and purchase rate for 1971-crop barley will be 76 cents per bushel, according to Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

The rate is based on the national average loan level for the 1971 crop of 81 cents a bushel for No. 2 grade or better, down two cents from the 1970 average loan level. Pennington county loan rate is down two cents from the 1970 loan rate of 78 cents per bushel.

As in 1970, the county loan rates for 1971-crop barley have been individually established to reflect the main market flow and transportation relationships in major producing areas. Chairman Knutson said this method is used in order to help keep grain under loan stored as close to producing areas as possible—which in turn should help make marketing more flexible. Grain under-loan can be held for the best market that develops during months following harvest.

Loans on 1971-crop barley will be available to all eligible barley growers. Since barley is not included in the feed grain set-aside program for 1971, participation in the program is not an eligibility requirement.

Loan rates in area counties include: Red Lake, 77 cents; Marshall, 75 cents; Kittson, 75 cents; Roseau, 76 cents, and Beltrami, 81 cents.

Dated May 3, 1971

Paint-up, clean-up, fix-up campaign in Thief River Falls for the month of May received an impressive start Tuesday with a parade in the downtown area of the city. Preliminary emphasis for the clean-up month was provided by visits of Mayor A. E. Jacobson and Mr. Pride to the city's elementary schools.

Included in Tuesday's parade were local businessmen in clean-up clothes, city street department and local health and sanitation vehicles, the Lincoln senior high school band and a junior high school instrumental music contingent, the mayor and Mr. Pride, city fire truck, high school students and the city police and fire departments.

As the clean-up campaign continues throughout May under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce total community development and retail trade committees, additional events will take place. Posters made by elementary and high school students are now being placed on display in downtown stores as reminders of the community-wide clean up effort.

Under sponsorship of the student council at Lincoln senior high school, a community clean-up is being planned for Sunday at 1 p.m. Local service clubs are providing food and music for a lunch and dance for clean-up participants in the high school cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

NW Sheltered Workshop To Be Located Here

Northwest Minnesota Sheltered Workshop, Inc., will be located in Thief River Falls in its initial stages, according to Eric Allen and Ronald Mooers, members of the board of directors. Decision was made by a vote of the board at a meeting Tuesday in Crookston.

According to the local board members, satellite workshops will be established in other communities later as the program develops. Candidates for director of the workshop will be interviewed at the next board meeting May 22.

Sheltered workshops are established to provide long-term employment to handicapped adults who are not able to compete in the open job market. These workers are engaged in productive enterprises through which they are able to earn wages and assist in their own financial support.

Adventists Will Dedicate Church Saturday

DEDICATION of the Seventh-day Adventist church located on Tindolph av. S. in Thief River Falls will take place in special ceremonies Saturday. While the church has been in use for several years, it is the policy of the Seventh-day Adventists not to dedicate buildings until they are debt-free. Included in the afternoon program will be a mortgage-burning ceremony.

Elder Robert H. Pierson, president of the general conference of Seventh-day Adventists, will be the main speaker at the dedication of the local Seventh-day Adventist church at 1024 S. Tindolph Saturday.

The local church was officially organized in 1940, although there was an Adventist group here since the turn of the century. The first Adventist church stood at what is now the site of the Thief River Falls Eagles club, and the 1940 sanctuary was the old Methodist-Episcopal church.

(Seventh-day Adventists refrain from dedicating their churches until the building debt is paid. An opening ceremony takes place when the church is completed. There will be a mortgage burning ceremony at the church Saturday afternoon to symbolize that the mortgage has been paid and the church is ready for dedication.)

Marla Holte-Chester Yonke Vows Exchanged at Grygla

Marriage vows were exchanged at the Grace Lutheran church in Grygla recently by Miss Marla Holte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Holte of Grygla, and Chester Yonke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke of rural Thief River Falls.

Rev. Reuben A. Wangberg officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 200 relatives and friends. Mrs. Walter Jelle was the organist. She played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Mrs. Leslie Wikstrom, a cousin of the bride, as she sang, "O Promise Me," "O Perfect Love," and "Wedding Prayer."

Floral arrangements in yellow and blue graced the altar. The reserved pews were marked by yellow flowers and greenery.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a floor-length gown of satin styled in Empire fashion with an A-line skirt that flowed back into a chapel-length train. The fitted bodice, featuring lace bishop sleeves, was enhanced with lace, embroidered at the high neckline with seed pearls. Two rows of matching lace encircled the skirt and train. A cluster of white flowers held her elbow-length veil of nylon tulle. She carried a colonial styled bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Michael Needham of Grand Forks, N. D. Bridesmaids were Misses Peggy Haack of Grand Forks, N. D., friend of the bride, and Lennae Yonke of rural Thief River Falls, sister of the groom. They were attired in identical, floor-length gowns of blue crepe styled with short, puffy sleeves. Silver, metallic braid trimmed the high neckline and empire waistlines. To complete their attire, they wore veiled headpieces secured by blue bows, and each carried an arrangement featuring three long-stemmed yellow roses.

Curtis Swanson of rural Thief River Falls, a cousin of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Curtis Lindblom of Goodridge, a friend of the groom, and Terris Holte of Grygla, brother of the bride. The ushers were Wayne Holte of Grygla and Terry Rewertz of Plummer, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. All wore black tuxedos with black bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a yellow rose. All the other men of the wedding party wore blue tipped carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Holte wore a lavender dress complimented by beige accessories and a yellow orchid corsage. The mother of the groom wore a mint green dress with black trim at the rounded neckline. Her accessories were in black and her corsage was similar to the one worn by the bride's mother.

Attending the ceremony as honored guest was Mrs. Louise Yonke, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Centering the serving table was a square, four-tiered wedding cake, trimmed with blue roses and white sugar bells tipped in blue. Topping the cake was a miniature bride and groom, backed by an archway of roses. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Sheldon Peterson and cut and served by Mrs. George Wikstrom, Sr., aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Clarence Swanson, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Martin Holte and Mrs. George Rewertz, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, poured.

Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holte, uncle and aunt of the bride. Miss Debra Holte, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book and Miss Lyla Yonke, cousin of the groom, and Miss Marjorie Lindblom, a friend of the couple, served the punch.

Waitresses were Mrs. Milton Anderson and Miss Julie Hagen, friends of the bride. Presiding at the gift table were Misses Beverly Forst and Susan Lund, friends of the bride, assisted by the gift carriers: Marvin Yonke, brother of the groom, and Jedy Holte, brother of the bride.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were from Grand Forks, N. D.; Crookston, East Grand Forks, Bemidji, Red Lake Falls, Plummer, Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Greenbush, Karlstad, Holt, Newfolden, St. Hilaire and Grygla.

For traveling on the wedding trip to South Dakota, the bride wore a lavender polyester pantsuit.

The bride is a graduate of the Goodridge high school and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school of practical nursing. She is employed by Northwestern hospital. The groom is a graduate of the Newfolden high school and the Thief River Falls area technical institute. He is employed at the Thief River Falls post office.

Brenda Muzzy Is Honored At Bridal Shower

Miss Brenda Muzzy was honored guest at a kitchen bridal shower on Saturday afternoon, April 17, at the Kenneth Muzzy home. Hosting the event were Mrs. Muzzy and Mrs. Curtis Johnson.

Decorations were in orchid and purple, the bride-elect's chosen colors. These colors were also accented in the corsage of kitchen utensils presented to the honored guest and in the floral corsage given to her mother, Mrs. Lester Muzzy.

A collection of favorite recipes was given to Miss Muzzy by the guests, games were played, and the gifts were opened and viewed. The shower concluded with a dessert lunch served by the hostesses.

Those attending, in addition to Miss Muzzy and her mother, were her sisters: Kathy and Laureen Muzzy; together with Mrs. Anne Muzzy, Mrs. Odin Hanson, Mrs. Jim Muzzy, Mrs. Palmer Lorenson, Claudia Lorenson, Lida Muzzy, Susanne Johnson and Mrs. Vernon Malberg.

The lesson also included instructions in making floral arrangements featuring a religious theme. They were Mary Koglin, Sophie Burstad, Agnes Thieman, Dea Wilson, Rhodella Thieman and Olga Nelson. Plans were also made for the club's annual plant sale. The sale will be held at the J. C. AFDC Load Rises At Twice Rate Estimated In '69

Growth of Minnesota's "AFDC" population since the 1969 legislative session has been more than double the official estimate of increase then given to lawmakers, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

"In May of 1969, as the legislature was preparing to adjourn, there were 65,929 recipients of 'Aid to Families With Dependent Children'," said Charles P. Stone, executive director of the association.

"The department of public welfare budget, looking ahead two years, forecast an increase of about 16,500 recipients by mid-1971 to a total of 82,500.

"In January of 1971 AFDC payments were made to 102,190 recipients, up 36,261 from the May of 1969 total. The 36,261 increase was more than double that forecast to the 1969 legislature, with five months remaining in the period covered by the estimate.

"AFDC payments totaling $3,676,636 were made in May of 1969 to 50,665 children and 15,264 adult 'caretakers'. In January of 1971 AFDC payments totaling $7,211,324 were made to 76,655 children and 25,535 adult 'caretakers'."

Stone noted that while the increase between May of 1969 and January of 1971 in the number of children on the AFDC rolls was 51 per cent, the increase in the number of adult 'caretakers' was 67 per cent.

"At the January level of disbursements, AFDC maintenance payments have climbed to an annual rate of more than $90,000,000," Stone said. "Medical assistance costs for AFDC beneficiaries, which are additional to the maintenance payments, amounted to $2,084,374 in January, equal to an annual rate of more than $25,000,000."

FFA Star Farmer Owns 160-Acre Eagle Bend Farm

Richard Mittag, 17, who owns and operates a 160 acre farm near Eagle Bend, received the 1971 Minnesota Star Farmer award Monday evening.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mittag, Richard purchased the farm on a contract for deed from his parents in 1968. The purchase was financed from savings accumulated from gifts and wages earned by working for area farmers.

Young Mittag lives on the farm and is responsible for the operation and management of the crop and livestock enterprises.

He started the livestock enterprise by purchasing 5-day old calves from area farmers. Using the earnings from the livestock, he purchased more cattle which became the basis for his beef herd. Richard purchased the machinery from his father with repayment on a five-year loan.

Richard has initiated a heavy fertilization and chemical weed control program. In 1970 his corn yielded 85 bushels per acre, compared to the 56 bushels county average. Mittag has also constructed a new pole shed for his feeder operation and is remodeling the house.

Mittag has served as chapter reporter and president. He was a member of the parliamentary procedure team which competed in the 1970-71 state contest, and received the Star Chapter Farmer award in crops and livestock. He has earned varsity letters in three sports and is a member of the school band and brass ensemble. He is also a member of his church youth group and 4-H.

Richard has enrolled in the farm operation and management course at the area vocational-technical school in Alexandria. He will continue to operate and expand his farming operation as a commuter student.

Named regional star farmer from Region One at the banquet was Glenn Ramstad, Ada.

Bergland Scores President For Fund Hold-Back

U.S. Representative Bob Bergland has criticized President Nixon for "deliberately" and "inexcusably" withholding nearly $400 million in federal funds designated to upgrade local water and sewage facilities.

In a letter to the President, Bergland declared: "You have expressed a commitment to improving the quality of our water, yet you refuse to release funds for the purpose which have already been appropriated by Congress."

Bergland was especially critical of the President for withholding "at least $180 million" that the Farmers Home administration has set aside for towns with a population of less than 5,000.

"Our smaller communities are being pressured by pollution control agencies to clean up their water treatment facilities," Bergland said. "They have the willingness and most of them have plans completed," he continued.

"But where, Mr. President, do you expect them to get the funds? They are already overtaxed and over borrowed. Unless you release the funds they have nowhere to go," Bergland said. "You seem to be telling these communities to increase their property taxes and that is impossible," he added.

Bergland also noted that another $200 million for water treatment facilities would be available through the department of housing and urban development (HUD) if the President would only release the funds. "It is time to stop talking about saving our environment and begin to take meaningful action," Bergland concluded.

Food Stamps Office Closes At Crookston

Crookston food stamp field office has been closed in a reorganization program that became effective April 4, according to an announcement from the U. S. Department of Agriculture food and nutrition service.

The new plan involves reductions in the number of offices, establishment of new offices, and consolidation of their areas of jurisdiction.

Mrs. Carolyn Billing of Thief River Falls moved from her Crookston office as officer-in-charge to the new food stamp office at Fergus Falls as program specialist. John Armstrong is officer-in-charge of the newly formed Fergus Falls office at rooms two and three, 406 S. Cascade St. in Fergus Falls. In addition to the Crookston office, others that closed are Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Mankato and St. Cloud.

The new Fergus Falls center will include the counties of Becker, Beltrami, Benton, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Mille Lacs, Norman, Ottertail, Pennington, Polk, Pope, Red Lake, Roseau, Stearns, Wadena, Wilkin and Wright.

The focal point for the five food stamp field offices is St. Paul, where a new district office serves to direct and coordinate Minnesota's food stamp program activities. The St. Paul office is one of 23 district offices which have been or will be set up across the nation. The newly established position of district manager in the St. Paul office provides a level of management between the field offices and the regional office in Chicago.

USDA's food stamp program is administered locally through the Minnesota department of public assistance.

HEARING AID REPAIR
On All Makes

Yes, now you can have all minor repairs and adjustments made right here while you wait, in lots of cases.

We have installed a 12 ft. work bench to our back room and our new equipment will arrive this week. It will include the latest hearing air analyzer called the ELECTRONIC EAR. With this we can actually plot a response curve for any instrument by using six different frequencys. This will take the guesswork out of your Hearing Aid, putting out what is needed for your particular loss.

Come in and watch your own Hearing Aid perform on the Electronic Ear. Ask questions: Why is my Hearing Aid noisy and unclear? Why can't I hear in crowds, etc? I will give reasons based on 14 years experience in the hearing aid field. I have spent a great deal of this time solving special problems for hearing aid users.

Reseal Payment Rates Announced For 71-72 Year

Pennington county office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service has been notified of farm storage reseal payment rates for 1971-72 storage period. Rates are based on units of 100 bushels or hundredweight.

For 1970 barley, corn and wheat and rate per 100 bushels per months is $1 217 or $14.60 per year. For 1970 oats the 100-bushel rate per month is $.9429 and the rate per year is $11 315.

For 1968 and 1969 barley and wheat the rate is $1.004 per 100 bushels per month and $12 045 per year. For 1968 and 1969 oats and rate per hundred bushels is $.73 per month and $8.76 per year.

"These rates reflect an increase over rates of previous years. Basically most of our loan grain has a maturity date of May 31, 1971. Therefore all reseal storage payments will be made sometime after that date," states Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county ASCS committee.

Aune Wins Third Place In State Speech Contest

James Aune of Thief River Falls won third place in the original oratory division of the 1971 Minnesota high school state speech contest at Richfield senior high school last Saturday.

There were 128 finalists competing in the final state contest, while more than 10,000 students competed in the eliminations beginning with local contests and continuing through the sub-district, district, regional and state contests.

The contest format included two preliminary rounds in the morning and a final round in the afternoon. Contestants qualifying for the final round were evaluated by five different judges. The summary of these rankings resulted in the naming of a state champion, runner-up, and third place winner in each of the eight divisions of the contests.

Each contestant received medals, and a trophy was awarded to the first place winner in each event.

manner which contributes to community pride.

Mr. Pride—a creation of the Chamber of Commerce committees—will be marking places requiring clean-up, paint-up or fix-up in the city during the month. A bright yellow sticker, marked with the appropriate action needed, will be placed on the property as a reminder to get the job done during the month. Cartoon caricature of Mr. Pride for local promotion was drawn by Dwight Donarski, student at Lincoln high school.

"A community effort like this is needed on occasion to polish the pride which we know the citizens have for this city," stated Marvin Lundin, president of the Chamber of Commerce. TRF Woman Visits Congress In Washington

Mrs. Louis Carpenter of Thief River Falls is one of more than 40 Minnesota farm women among 150 participants in Washington, D.C., this week on the sixth annual Farmers Union legislative fly-in.

Purpose of the trip is to stress priorities in national decisions on legislative issues, although time is provided for special activities and sightseeing for the women.

Edwin Christianson, president of Minnesota Farmers Union, said that the women will split into teams of three to call at the office of each member of the Senate and House to discuss recommendations on several major questions.

The women will meet with congressional experts on rural health problems and will also urge Congress to reaffirm farm parity, inclusion of farmers in a proposed new increase in social security benefits, and restoration of the seven per cent federal investment tax credit.

On the schedule for the Minnesota women is a breakfast session with U.S. Senators and meetings with the Minnesota delegation in the House.

Scientists To Seek Chemical Use Key

How can man exploit chemical compounds such as pesticides or theraputic drugs and be certain that they are safe for human use?

Two University of Minnesota scientists, M. O. Schultze and R. K. Bhattacharya from the department of biochemistry in the college of biological science are doing basic research on one toxic chemical that may help solve that problem.

In the last few decades, man has been using more and more chemicals which have highly selective biological effects on certain insects or microbes in animals or man. These chemicals are a kind of "magic bullet," Schultze explained, that is supposed to kill insects or micro-organisms but not harm animals or man.

"They may not only kill the micro-organisms that have envaded, but they may kill us at the same time," Schultze said.

It is difficult to predict from tests with one kind of animal what effects a substance can have on other animals or man, Schultze says.

Schultze and Bhattacharya have been testing the effects of DCVC (Dichlorovinyl-cysteine) on different animals to determine why it kills some animals and not others. DCVC has a very selective toxicity like many other chemicals used as magic bullets to benefit mankind, Schultze explained.

The biochemists found that cattle were much more susceptible to DCVC than other animals such as rats, chickens, rabbits, dogs, tukeys and pigs. After calves have been treated with a very small single dose of this substance, they were unable to form white and red blood cells and blood platlets, Schultze said. Within a month, they would die, he said.

Prior research which Schultze has done indicated that DCVC changed DNA—the genetic material in all plant and animal life that is the seat of information. So it appears that in the bovine animal, DCVC prevents the DNA in the bone marrow from supporting the formation of blood cells, Schultze said. In other species this effect is not found.

"This then is an excellent example of how difficult it is to predict from tests with one kind of animal species or even with several of animal species what effect a substance can have on other animals or man," he said.

"This has raised a very troublesome question as to the extent of testing that must be done before one can form a reasonably valid judgement that exposure of man to a certain substance is permissible," he said.

"Testing methods now used are fairly good, but certainly far from foolproof," Schultze said.

From a practical standpoint, the question is: Are we going to have to test a chemical for years and years before we can regard it as reasonably safe?

"A certain element of risk is always involved," he said, "but we should have a better basis for calculating the risk."

An added problem is that not all individuals respond to a chemical in the same way, Schultze said. "We know that certain individuals cannot tolerate penicillin yet it has saved the lives of countless people."

The problems of how much to test chemicals is not at all hopeless, he said. "We just need to accumulate much more information and understanding about the nature of the interaction between the various chemicals and biological systems," he said.

"I think we will reach the point where we understand enough of the similarities and differences of the components and the interactions of human systems such as the liver, kidney and brain as compared to those of animals," Schultz said.

Then by testing animals, we will know much better how a chemical will affect humans, he said.

Use Of LP Gas In Autos Seems Unpopular At 'U'

Given the choice, few drivers would switch to a low-pollutant form of energy to power their cars at the cost of driving in an aroma that has been compared to the smell of rotting cabbages.

The University of Minnesota police tried it for a while and didn't like it.

The police were part of an experiment by the University's Transportation Office which has been considering switching University vehicles over to L-P (liquid petroleum) gas. So far, the outlook isn't too good.

According to Glenn H. Johnston, head of the transportation office, one university police car was converted to L-P gas and put in service last November 4. Before the conversion, the vehicle had been checked at five per cent plus carbon monoxide emission. A week later emissions had been cut to one-half of one per cent.

"But the gas smelled bad," said Johnston. "It's a very cold gas—about 43 degrees below zero, I believe, and requires special couplings to fuel up the car. The gas itself is odorless, the smell being added so drivers can tell if there is a leak."

The policemen, who smelled the gas when fueling the car, complained of not feeling well the rest of the day, Johnston said. Finally, representatives of the union filed a formal complaint and the car was re-converted to gasoline in mid December.

The complaint cited the odor of the gas, and also mentioned that the officers feared a possible explosion hazard. "We went over the car and proved there was no such danger," said Johnston, "but we complied with their request and switched back to gasoline."

This left the university with only two vehicles, a garbage truck and a van, running on the L-P gas.

"We really would have liked to keep the police cars in the test," said Johnston. "They run up to 1,500 miles per week and we would have gathered a lot of information from them. The other vehicles may travel only 5,000 miles in a year, and this gives us a rather meager basis for interpreting the experiment."

And other problems have sprung up Johnston mentioned that since the arrival of warm weather, the drivers of the van and garbage truck have complained of sore throats and colds. "We aren't sure it's because of the L-P gas, but we're checking the possibility," he said.

Johnston will decide whether to continue checking the feasibility of using L-P gas at the end of the university's fiscal year—June 30.

"There are many considerations," he said. "It costs about $300 to convert a vehicle and another $100 to convert it back to gas for possible re-sale. That's $400 right off—plus the fact that there are some people who challenge the low-pollutant aspects of the gas. Some say it is as bad a pollutant as any other."

Apparently not much is really known about liquid petroleum. Scientific reports on the subject, said Johnston, "are like reading the Bible. You can find whatever you're looking for."

He also is faced with the fact that a special license was required in order to sell the gas. "The $5 license wasn't too bad," explained Johnston, "but the eight cents per gallon tax that we may be forced to pay may just make the program economically unsound.

"With administration vehicles, police cars, campus maintenance vehicles—87 in all up for possible conversion—I don't want to go whole hog right away," Johnston finished. "Right now there are just too many factors saying that the program isn't going to work."

Cancer of the larynx strikes more men than women. With early diagnosis and treatment the survival rate continues to improve, according to the American Cancer Society.

Bakke Returns From Orleans

Modern Woodmen of America district representative Darrell Bakke of Thief River Falls has returned from New Orleans, La., where he attended the fraternal life insurance society's national agency sales conference.

He won the trip by sales production, high quality business and ethical standards. During the conference Bakke joined nearly 200 other agents in studies of fraternal life insurance and disability income protection.

Some people get all the breaks.

The lucky ones have Time's new Surrender Value Policy. It offers you just about everything in the way of disability insurance.

Including your money back.

If you make no claims, all premiums are returned after 25 years. If you do use the policy, premiums are returnable less benefit payments.

Either way you win.

I should know. I sell it.

Why not give me a buzz, and I'll tell you all about it.

Beats competition on looks and price!

When we introduced our new Satellite, we knew we had a winner. Now it's official. Because Road Test magazine just named our Satellite "1971 Car of the Year" over some pretty stiff competition. And as if it weren't enough to come out No. 1 on styling, handling, comfort and all the other criteria used in the judging, take a look at the chart above and see for yourself . . . we even beat our chief competition, Torino and Chevelle, on price as well!

Our new Satellite. C'mon through and get the deal of the year on the "Car of the Year" at the right place. Our place. We'll come through for you.

In Memoriam

In memory of Our beloved son, Robert (Dutch) Manning who was taken from us so suddenly five years ago May 7, 1966.
Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
Oh, bitter was the trial to part.
You are not forgotten loved one.
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore as time goes by, we miss you more.
Your loving smile your gentle face no one can fill your vacant place
So sadly missed by his mother, father, sisters and brothers, The Manning family. 1t36c

Prowler Netmen Capture Northwest Tennis Crown

Thief River Falls ended the Bemidji Lumberjacks' reign as champions at three titles yesterday as the Prowlers captured their second Northwest Conference tennis title at Bemidji.

The Prowlers collected 20 points to Bemidji's 17 while Crookston scored 9 and East Grand Forks tallied 8. The Lumberjacks have won four conference tennis crowns while the Prowlers have been the only other team to break Bemidji's domination in 1967 and 1971.

The Prowlers were able to defeat the Jacks on surprisingly strong performances from their number two and three singles players, Gordy Prichard and Tom Nepper.

Prichard won the number two singles title when three of the four netmen tied for the honor after the round robin tournament. Prichard was awarded the crown on the basis of less points loss during the tourney. The Prowler drafted Mark Hughes of East Grand Forks 6-1 and 7-5 before losing to Brent Reichert of Crookston 3-6 and 2-6. Prichard came back to knock off Scott Bjella of Bemidji 6-4 and 6-2.

Nepper won the number three singles title for the Prowlers with 6-3, 6-3 wins over Bob Bydahl of East Grand Forks, 6-8, 6-0 and 6-4 over Mike Wilkens of Crookston, and 6-3, 6-1 wins over Chris Nelson of Bemidji.

Defending number one singles champion Gary Condo of Bemidji handed the Prowlers' Mark Liden his first set-back of the season in the conference meet to win his second straight individual crown. Liden lost to Condo 0-6 and 5-7 after gaining a win over the Jacks' ace a week ago. Liden finished in second place in the singles competition after defeating Kim Hovet of East Grand Forks 5-7 and 6-1 and then downing Bob Menzhuber of Crookston 4-6, 6-1 and 6-0.

Thief River Falls finished second to Bemidji in the doubles action with Mark Thyren and Stuart Waltonen of the Prowlers defeating East Grand Fork's duo of Tom Butter and George Weber 6-2 and 6-1 in the first round of action. The Prowlers came back to drop Marc LaPlante and Pat Shanahan of Crookston 6-3 and 6-1 before losing to Bemidji's Jim Kastner and Joe Rossi 3-6, 7-5 and 5-7.

Prowler Netmen Lose First Match

Lincoln high school tennis team lost their first dual meet of the season Monday afternoon on the home courts, a 5-4 set-back at the hands of a strong Grand Forks Central squad.

The Prowlers won the number one and three singles but lost in the number two singles and the doubles match for the deciding points.

Junior Mark Liden defeated the Indians' Terry Paukert 6-3, 4-6 and 6-4 in the number one singles but the Prowlers' Gordy Prichard lost a 5-7, 5-7 match to Central's Tom Wynne in the number two singles.

Tom Nepper stopped Bill Gauslow of Central 6-2 and 6-1 in the number three singles but the Prowlers' Stuart Waltonen and Mark Thyren dropped their doubles match to Dave Deraney and Dave Fontaine 6-4, 5-7 and 6-8.

Next action for the Prowler tennis team will be Friday afternoon when they will host Crookston on the Lincoln courts beginning at 3 p.m. The squad will travel to Grand Forks to try and avenge their loss to Central Monday afternoon, May 10.

After winning the rugged WCHA championship in 1969-70, the University of Minnesota's 1970-71 hockey team finished in fifth place, but later ended second at the NCAA tournament in Syracuse, N.Y.

THIEF RIVER FALLS is the new Northwest Conference tennis champion after the win in yesterday's conference tournament at Bemidji. The Prowlers finished with 20 points to runner-up Bemidji's 17. Team members shown holding the first-place trophy include Mark Liden, second place, number one singles, Stuart Waltonen, second place, doubles; Gordy Prichard, first place, number two singles, and Tom Nepper, first place, number three singles. Mark Thyren, a member of the Prowlers' doubles team, was not present at the time of the picture.

Northland Begins Intramural Ball

Northland state junior college began a round robin five team intramural co-recreation softball tournament on Monday, May 3. All games will be played at the local fairground diamond. Softball teams must play two women on their 10-member teams at all times.

Games will be played on Monday and Tuesday each week with the first game starting at 6:00 p.m. and the second game at 7:15 p.m. 60 Northland students are involved in this program.

Bid Awarded For Fish Hatchery

A bid of $51,125 has been accepted from the H. G. Harvey company of Virginia to build a new walleye hatchery near Lake Vermillion in St. Louis county.

Acceptance of the low bid was announced by Commissioner Robert Herbst, who said that other bids will be received later for the plumbing, heating, lighting and equipment required to complete the project.

Site of the hatchery will be on the Pike river at the same location where an earlier hatchery had stood many years ago.

Northland Thinclads Improving Records

Northland state junior college's track program is slowly, but surely gaining momentum this season under the guidance of coach Chet Engelman.

The Northmen competed in a junior college invitational met Thursday, May 6, and scored 13 points. Northland went up against the same four teams last night at Hibbing and scored 22 points. Both totals were only good for fifth place in the field of five teams, but as Engelman said, "we're pretty well satisfied with our performance and we'll keep at it and see if we can get a couple of boys to qualify for the state meet."

Tony Burke, a freshman from Bemidji, already qualified for a state berth with a toss of 123' 9" in the discus competition last night. Burke won the event with his heave while teammate Tom Keys finished second in the discus with a toss of 113' 7". Both throws broke the old school record.

Other performances turned in by Northland thinclads last night included Burke's third place toss of 38' 10½" in the shot, fourth in the high jump with a leap of 5' 4" and fifth-place finish in the javelin with a throw of 119' 5".

Tim Olson, freshman from Thief River Falls, supplied a third in the 180-yard low hurdles with a time of 22.7 and a fourth in the triple jump with a leap of 33' 7½".

Jim Duray finished fourth in the 220-yard dash with a time of 24.4.

Vermillion won the meet with 83½ points with host Hibbing collecting 74½ and Mesabi getting 45½, Rainy River 38½ and Northland 22.

The team standings were the same for last week's meet at Babbit with Vermillion winning the event with 95 points.

Tim Olson captured first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of 18.7 at Babbit while finishing fourth in the low's with a 22.5 clocking.

Duray ran a 24.9 in the 220 for fourth place while Kays finished second in the discus with a toss of 105' 5" and fifth in the shot with a throw of 35' 3".

Prowler Nine Set For Busy Week

Thief River Falls' scheduled baseball game at Fosston yesterday was postponed because of wet grounds on the Grayhounds' diamond. The contest was re-set for today (Wednesday) at Fosston, beginning at 5 p.m.

The Prowlers will be facing two teams ranked among the top twenty clubs in the state this weekend when they face the Bemidji Lumberjacks and the Warroad Warriors.

The Lumberjacks and the Warriors are ranked 17th and 20th on the first Minnesota high school baseball coaches association ratings of the season.

The Prowlers will be facing the Lumberjacks in Thief River Falls this Friday, May 7, beginning at 7 p.m. on the fairgrounds diamond. On Saturday the Lincoln squad will travel to Warroad for a 1 p.m. contest and then will play at Roseau beginning at 4 p.m. The Rams are figured to be the team to beat in district 22 this season.

Prowler coach Ralph Skay notes that all three of his weekend's opponents have veteran ball clubs and expects some real battles. Skay is not about to give up on his club yet, explaining that of the two games they have lost this season, they were in both contest until mistakes cost them the lead.

"We've got to get together on our pitching and hitting," says Skay, "and if we can get together I think we'll be alright."

The veteran coach did point out a bright spot in the Prowler line-up with six double plays in five games.

Skay plans to use Brian Peterson against Bemidji on Friday and will probably go with Dale Hanson or Mike Hamerlinck against Warroad while Pete Sullivan will be on the mound against the Rams.

Notre Dame has had 22 football coaches in 78 years of competition.

"Look at the red kite up there! See how high it's flying!"

The little boy follows her finger, and she is warmed and gratified by his smile of appreciation.

It seems as if mothers are eternally anxious to make sure that their children get all there is to get out of life—that they miss nothing.

Mothers would, if they could, show their children all that there is to see and give them everything—time for fun, time for play—new clothes, new toys, a television to watch cartoons, endless red kites and bright yellow balloons and, later, skis and sports cars.

Yet, in this eagerness to show and to give, aren't they in danger of overlooking some of the most important things of all? What of beauty, of serenity, of joy—the knowledge of God's goodness, His love, and familiarity with His house on earth . . . the Church?

The ~~"Gold"~~ ALUMINUM Rush Is On!

Thousands of people across the U.S. are going the old alchemists one better and changing the aluminum in their trash to "gold." According to the Aluminum Association, over $000,000 in cash was paid out to community groups and individuals who returned used aluminum beverage cans for recycling last year.

Over 115 million cans were turned in to collection centers run by the aluminum producers and beverage companies.

Aluminum is so durable it will not rust or deteriorate. This property makes it the most valuable material that can be recovered from the waste stream.

Aluminum is different from other solid waste components in that it's recovery value is ten times greater per pound than any other packaging materials, ranging from $200 to $300 per ton, depending on the extent of the processing. It has a high value on the open market because it is relatively pure, requiring minimal processing before reuse.

Recovered aluminum has always been recycled because of it's high value. Leading aluminum companies are paying ½¢ per 12 oz. can, or 10 cents per pound — approximately twenty 12 oz. beverage cans.

Only "all aluminum" cans are purchased. These are easily identifiable because they are seamless, have rounded bottoms and no separate ends. They are not magnetic, are lightweight and easily crushed when empty. Don't be mislead by cans which may have the word "aluminum" written on them but only have aluminum tops. They must meet the other criteria.

Aluminum and beverage companies have initiated reclamation centers in various cities across the country where scrap aluminum can be collected.

To learn more about the Aluminum Industry's role in the fight against litter and solid waste material and what you can do to help, write to the Dept. of Environmental Services, Aluminum Association, 750 Third Avenue, N.Y., N.Y. 10017.

Clean-Up Campaign

It has been a few years since a concentrated clean-up, paint-up and fix-up effort has been put forth in Thief River Falls. This is not to say that everyone has neglected to maintain their property, but it is true that a gentle reminder and a little motivation go a long way toward individual clean-up efforts.

A community clean-up really comes right down to the individual anyway, for a community is only a number of individuals living in close proximity to one another.

It should also be noted that a clean-up can be contagious. If one person in a neighborhood tackles the clean-up jobs that may have been neglected for some time, it is likely that the clean-up bug will infect his or her neighbors as well.

School children have been enlisted in the clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign through a visit by Mayor A. E. Jacobson and Mr. Pride to the local elementary schools.

Mr Pride is a creation of the retail trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, assisted by the total community development committee. Adorned in white coveralls and white cape with a red "P" emblem on chest and cape, the masked crusader will call attention to situations in the city which need attention in order to contribute to community pride. He will affix a sticker to such property and indicate whether it needs cleaning, painting or fixing.

Because it was determined that a one-week campaign would not be adequate to accomplish the desired results, the entire month of May has been declared paint-up, clean-up, fix-up month by Mayor A. E. Jacobson. He has urged the full cooperation of the entire city in cleaning up properties needing attention.

Earth Week resulted in some clean-up efforts by school youngsters, and their actions were commendable. The junior high school social studies class is planning a sponsored five-mile walk around the outer areas of the city to pick up trash. Proceeds from the walk are to be given to the city council for use in sewage treatment improvement. The Rocksbury 4-H club is planning a trash pickup Saturday along the airport road south from the city limits. Perhaps other group projects are being initiated of which we are not aware.

We would like to compliment the residents of the city in advance for the pride which we know they will demonstrate in the clean-up effort. Thief River Falls is our own community—let's make it shine.

Revenue-Sharing

Following comments on President Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal are from the Morris Sun:

Various forms of revenue sharing from the federal government back to state government and from state government back to local government have been in effect for many years. Portions of school, welfare and road funds have come from this source for a long time.

In recent years the programs of revenue sharing have proliferated because the demands of people upon government can best be filled at the local level. But all the programs had strings attached. The money was to be used for specific purposes, handled a certain way, and a vast federal bureaucracy was created to administer the programs.

In the last 25 years, categorical federal aid payments have grown by more than 3,000 per cent. As the number of categories increased, a catalogue had to be published. Now there are so many catalogues it became necessary to publish a catalogue of catalogues. With each new program, guidelines were written by the administrative agencies. Recently, the government issued special guidelines on how guidelines should be interpreted.

Many cities and local political subdivisions have employed special consultants just to keep track of federal programs and try to figure out how to take advantage of these programs. Not infrequently, mountains of paperwork were required to justify a specific program and even then good political connections were an essential ingredient in winning approval.

All of this is said as a prelude to expressing support for President Nixon's revenue sharing proposal which is now before Congress. The plan is a complete departure from previous federal programs. There are no strings attached. There is no need for a whole new army of federal bureaucrats to administer the program.

Basically it calls for an annual Congressional appropriation of 1.3 per cent of the federal personal income tax revenue ($5 billion the first year) to be distributed among the states according to two criteria, population and local tax effort. The states would then pass through a specific portion again based on population and local tax effort to counties, cities and other subdivisions of local government. No applications for funds or plans for spending the funds would have to be submitted. The appropriation and allocation would be automatic and the funds could be expended for any lawful purpose according to the priorities established by local government.

For the first year the program would return to Minnesota about $108 million. More than $46 million would be passed through to local government. There is no reason why Congress could not increase the percentage of federal personal income tax revenues allocated to the program in future years.

All in all, it is a step toward returning the resources and the responsibility for government to the local level. It is also a method for aiding "poorer" taxing districts and equalizing and reducing the local tax burden. It probably is the first and only federal aid program under which a taxpayer can send a dollar to Washington and expect to get a dollar back. It is based on the reasonable assumption that local people know what programs need first call on the available resources. It is quite a departure from past federal aid programs and it definitely deserves support.

Six In The Race

What had appeared to be a rather uninteresting school board election throughout most of the filing period has turned into a completely different type of event. Last day filings by three candidates made a six-way race for the three positions to be filled.

Alliances and allegiances being what they are in politics, there is room for much speculation regarding the coming election. Certain activities and circumstances which have been brought to light and are becoming more general knowledge each day may turn out to be an influential factor in the final election result. Time will tell.

Each of the six candidates for the board is placing himself in a position where he can expect to receive some personal abuse during his term of service if elected. What once was a rather quiet position except for bond issues and occasional other controversial problems, has become a hotseat for almost constant outside and inside pressure.

We thank the candidates for their willingness to expose themselves to such a situation. We have invited each of them to present some background information about himself, state his philosophy of education and views of general interest. These statements will be published in the Monday, May 10 issue of the Times to give voters an opportunity to compare and discuss candidates prior to the May 18 election. We hope you will read and consider those statements.

And while we are talking about school board members, we would like to express a word of thanks to Dr. George Martin and Mervin Prestebak, the two members who are completing their terms and not seeking reelection. Both had served in board chairmanships and must be considered influential members with a sincere interest in education. They will leave the board at the July meeting with the knowledge that they have done their best in troubled times. We thank them for their efforts.

Borrowed Nonsense

"Please get ready," shouted an excited male voice over the telephone. "I'm bringing my wife over right away to have a baby!"

"Before you hang up," replied the calm voice of a nurse, "please give us some information which will be helpful. Is this her first baby?"

"No," exclaimed the expectant father, "this is her husband."

A lady was attempting to drive her car and work on her knitting project at the same time, with the resultant travel of the car being a bit erratic. A motorcycle patrolman came alongside and shouted, "Pull over, madam!" The woman smiled and shouted back, "No, actually its a pair of socks."

Suffering from headaches, the veteran baseball umpire consulted a doctor. After examination, the doctor said, "I think you need glasses." The umpire jumped to his feet and jerked his thumb. "That'll cost you $100," he roared, "and you're outta the game!"

New Material For Human Implants

Pyrolite Carbon, used to coat nuclear fuel pellets such as Dr. Jack Bokros is holding in his hand, is finding additional uses in medical applications because of its durability and inertness to the chemistry of the human body. Developed by Gulf Energy & Environmental Systems, a division of Gulf Oil Corporation, the carbon is being used on artificial heart valves (next to Dr. Bokros' hand), and is under study for dental implants, balls for artificial hip joints (both shown here) and whole artificial hearts. Pyrolite Carbon was developed to clad nuclear materials such as uranium and thorium, and in a power reactor withstands the force of fission inside each pellet, permitting only clean heat to escape.

Developer Plans Shopping Center Complex For T.R.F.

by Pete Volkert
Times Reporter

Thief River Falls city council Thursday night heard a proposal by a Fargo developer to build a $1.5 million shopping center on the southeast edge of the city on highway 59.

Fargo realtor and developer Warren Cowgill, whose company built the Devil's Lake shopping center, said the center would probably start with three stores covering an area of 100,000 square feet.

The three primary tenants would be, according to Cowgill, White Drug, Herbst, and probably a grocery facility, which would be both a tenant and part owner of the proposed shopping center.

Cowgill said that he is primarily interested in a tract of land abutting highway 59 at the intersection of Greenwood boulevard and just across from Kife's cafe.

Cowgill said that the air-conditioned shopping center would have ample parking, an enclosed mall, a quality restaurant and beauty shop, barber shop, and probably a Hallmark company shop. He said there would also be a high quality men's and women's wear shop, which he said would probably be owned by one of the local clothing shops.

Cowgill said that he would like to begin construction on the center not later than August 1 and that the center could be ready to open around March, 1972. The center would be open seven days a week and employ about 300 people.

The developer said that the site he is most interested in is currently zoned agricultural, but would eventually be developed for commercial use as well as land for apartments and other housing.

The developer said that an enclosed mall fronting on a "T"-shaped shopping center has been found to be the type of construction that best meets the needs of shoppers. Financing of the center would be partly by funds from two insurance companies, he added.

Preliminary center development would involve extending city water and sewer lines to the city boundaries at a cost of $50,000, it was explained at the council supper meeting. The developer wants the city to assume this cost and he would then pay the costs of development beyond the city line.

The developer said that he would expect some opposition to the shopping center from merchants in downtown Thief River Falls, but added that since the shopping center at Devil's Lake opened, business has improved in the Devils Lake downtown area, and he expects even greater growth in Thief River Falls because of its central location.

"Thief River Falls is just beginning to grow," said Cowgill, whose wife accompanied him to the meeting. "This development would be a community thing, and we have to move with it now, because we can't wait," he said.

It was stated that whatever money spent by the city to develop public works for the center would eventually be returned to the city in the form of sales of public works services to the center's tenants and in the city's share of annual real estate taxes.

Each tenant would pay the costs of city utilities he uses, and rent would be paid at a flat rate with additional rates set at a sliding percentage of sales, Cowgill said, and added that it takes from five to six years to get a shopping center in Minnesota operating at a profit.

It was also reported at the meeting that at least two members of the business community were very much in favor of the building of the shopping center.

Les Sabo, president of the Northwest Taxpayers association, said that his group would generally be in favor of building the center, and said he thought there would be very little opposition. He later said that he thought most people in the area "are sensible about good investments".

There was also discussion on breaking up shopping hubs in communities, and it was stated that scattered shopping hubs can tend to wither a community.

School Board Candidates Give Views

Election of three members of the Thief River Falls board of education will take place on Tuesday, May 18. Six residents of the local district have filed for the three terms on the board, and voters will select three people to serve three-year terms.

To assist in acquainting the public with the candidates, the Times has asked each to prepare a personal summary of his background and to state his philosophy of education as it relates to the Thief River Falls school district. These summary reports are published here in advance of the election to permit voters to compare the candidates and discuss issues prior to election day.

Thief River Falls Mrs. Jaycees have also arranged a "Meet the Candidate" session for tonight (Monday) at 8:45 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church. Each candidate has been invited to speak with a discussion period to follow. The public is encouraged to attend this session.

Interviews are also being conducted daily today through Friday and again on Monday on KTRF radio and Cable 3 television at 9:45 a.m. and on Cable 3 only at 7:45 p.m. One candidate will be featured in a 15-minute interview each day.

Rev. Paul Biegner

I am a Minnesotan by choice. Born in St. Louis, reared and educated in New York, I graduated from Concordia seminary, St. Louis, in 1957. For six years I pastored a three-congregation parish out of Sebeka in north-central Minnesota, then came to Thief River Falls eight years ago in Easter of 1963, and am pastor at St. John Lutheran church.

I am running as a fair-minded, impartial candidate concerned for healthy balance between taxes and quality education. I am a citizen and taxpayer who loves Thief River. I have had many chances to move but I've stayed because Thief River has been good to me and my family. Now, when the school system needs cool heads who will help guide through troubled times and knotty problems, I offer my services.

I have 8½ years of experience with board and committee work. I have served on the board of directors of the church district since January of 1963, and that is no small potatoes but a $1 million a year operation with cost accounting and many policy and personnel problems to handle. On Thief River Falls has experienced one of the greatest tax increases of any community in the United States. Not all of the increase has been due to the school, but a great portion of the money expended goes to the school district, and in order to control our tax base, it is absolutely imperative that paramount consideration be given to the expenditures made by the school district.

We haven't received a better educational system through the larger payments that have been

I have been a resident and taxpayer in Thief River Falls since April of 1959. I am 47 years old, married and have three children. All three children have been students in school district 564. The oldest two, Gary and Nancy, graduated from Lincoln high school and continued their education at the University of North Dakota. Julie, the youngest daughter, is in the eighth grade at Franklin junior high school.

I am an officer of the Union State bank. A portion of my background could be briefly given as follows: Three years in real estate sales in Fargo, N. D.; five years active duty in the military service in WW II and Korea, five years insurance adjusting, and 12 years banking experience.

Previous positions are Master of the Masonic Lodge, president of the TRF Golf club for two years, president of Northwest Shrine club, and President of the Lincoln high school PTA. Current positions are vice-chairman of the Northland junior college advisory board, officer of the Elks Lodge 1308, secretary of the Elks building corporation, vice president of Jobs, Inc., and

I was born and raised in Thief River Falls. I attended St. Bernard's grade school and Lincoln high school. My senior year I was president of the Northwest Student council and captained the Prowler football, baseball and hockey teams. In 1965 I graduated from St. John's university with a B.S. in economics and accounting.

In 1963 my father died and after graduation in 1965, I came home to manage his business. Since I am in business and since I am married to a teacher, I have feelings for both sides concerning the local tax situation.

Since the school district takes the biggest share of our tax budget, the teachers are blamed for the present tax crisis. However, we must realize that many of these teachers are home owners and are in the same situation.

I would like to cover the following issues concerning the school board.

1. Salaries—feel that a $7,000.00 base is more than adequate, and that a first year teacher is similar to a first year trainee in that the larger salary increases should come after the second and

My B.S. degree is from Moorhead State college, 1952, and my M.A. degree from Colorado State college in 1958. I have additional graduate work at U. of Minn., Bemidji, and North Carolina State. In 1969-70, I was school board clerk and am currently vice chairman of the board.

Connie Hillyer Tells Of Trip To Washington, DC

Connie Hillyer of Thief River Falls returned last week from Washington, D.C., where she attended the 41st annual 4-H conference.

She was one of four delegates from Minnesota who joined approximately 250 4-H members from all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico to discuss the 4-H program. The delegates represented the 4,000,000 youth now being reached by 4-H throughout the United States.

Delegates had an opportunity to explore current 4-H programs and offer recommendations that will make this co-educational youth program even more relevant and worthwhile to young people today. A concurrent planning conference of state 4-H leaders made possible interchange of ideas.

Connie said a highlight of the week-long conference was a visit to the White House where the President and Mrs. Nixon received the 4-H members.

In a brief talk with the delegates President Nixon said: "We welcome you to the White House for what you mean to this country, in a special way, not only because you are four million strong but because of who you are. You have a sense of dignity, or self-reliance, of respect for others and of creativity that means a great deal." Referring to the history of the White House, the President said America is great not because it is the strongest or the richest but because of our people. "As long as we have young people like you

Diane Timm-Mitch Kezar Vows Exchanged April 3

Miss Diane M. Timm and Mitch L. Kezar, both of rural Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows at the United Methodist church in this city on Saturday, April 3, at 2 p.m.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs Ed Timm. Parents of the groom are Mr and Mrs Dennis Kezar.

Rev. Jonathan Law officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs Max Jensen, a friend of the couple, presided at the organ, playing "Song of God's Presence" for the processional. She also accompanied Miss Gail Sande, a friend of the couple, as she sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor length gown of silk organza, styled in empire fashion. The fitted bodice featured a scooped neckline and sheer, billowy, bishop sleeves with wide cuffs accented with scallops and embroidery at the wrists. Similar trim accented the waistline and flowed down the front of the skirt in redingote style. Her bouffant, chapel-length veil of bridal illusion was held by an organza bow. She carried two dozen pink miniature roses in a mist of babies' breath.

Serving the bride as her personal attendant was Miss Connie Hillyer, a close friend.

Maid of honor was the bride's cousin, Norma Beiswenger of rural Thief River Falls, a student at the University of Minnesota. She was attired in a pink floor-length gown fashioned with a high rise waistline and full bishop sleeves. To complete her attire, she wore a short veiled headpiece and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations.

Jodie Trnka of rural Mahnomen, a cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of white satin and carried a basket filled with pink carnations and roses. Carrying the rings was Kevin Kezar, a brother of the groom.

Steve Kezar attended his brother as best man. The ushers were Jory Kezar of rural Thief River Falls, brother of the groom, and Terry Timm, also of rural Thief River Falls, a cousin of the bride. The men of the wedding party were attired in black tuxedos with black bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a pink rose taken from the bride's bouquet. The other members of the wedding party had white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in a beige ensemble accented with black accessories. The mother of the groom wore a pink dress, also complemented by black accessories. Both wore identical corsages composed of pink roses and carnations.

Attending the ceremony as special guests were Mrs Amanda Kezar of this city and Mrs. Ethel Trnka of Mahnomen, grandmothers of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr and Mrs. Omer Olson, friends of the couple. Mrs Duane Robbins, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book as Mrs. Les Trnka, aunt of the groom, ladled the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink roses and topped with an ornament featuring wedding bells and miniature doves, was cut and served by Mrs. Ernie Krnjsa and Mrs Dean Anderson, aunts of the groom. Pouring were Miss Anne Zinter and Mrs. Ted Beiswenger, great aunts of the bride.

Waitresses were Kim Anderson, Bonnie Jo Trnka, cousins of the groom, Helen Olson, Marlene Olson and Vicki Timm, cousins of the bride. At the gift table were Renee Engen, friend of the bride, and Linda Olson, a cousin of the bride.

Guests attending the wedding were from Oakes and Grand Forks, N.D., Mahnomen, Warren, Minneapolis and the Thief River Falls area.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Alabama, the bride wore a pink pantsuit.

The newly-weds are now at home at 1904 Madison, Montgomery, Ala., where the groom is stationed with the United States Air Force as a photographer. He is also photographer for the Montgomery Advertiser newspaper. Both the bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school.

Mrs. David Stromlund,
415 South Tindolph

Most homemakers have at some time or other found themselves in the awkward position of not having something in the house for lunch when unexpected guests arrive. Instead of letting such a situation spoil your visit, invite your guests into the kitchen as you were "just ready to try a new recipe for bars".

Today's recipe, supplied by Mrs. David Stromlund of this city, is very simple to make, and with a little extra effort, such as cooling the hot filling by placing the sauce pan in a bowl of ice cubes and stirring, the bars should be ready to eat in 20 minutes.

Another nice feature about today's recipe, is that the bars do not require baking. This makes them especially nice to make on a hot day or when the oven is being used for something else.

We are very grateful to Mrs. Stromlund for sharing her recipe with us.

Graham Cracker Bars

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup coconut
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
one-third cup milk
½ cup butter or margarine

Method: Combine all ingredients in a sauce pan and simmer for about eight minutes, stirring constantly. Cool. While the filling is cooling, line a 9 x 13 inch pan with whole graham crackers. Pour filling over crackers and top with whole graham crackers. Frost with powdered sugar icing or with a carmel frosting. Note: Make sure the filling is cooled before pouring over crackers, otherwise the bars will become soggy.

The Stromlunds have resided in this city for the past four years. Mr. Stromlund is teaching the fifth grade at Mark Twain elementary school. Before coming here, he taught for two years at Grygla.

They have two children, Cindy, 11, in sixth grade at Knox, and Christy, 6, in kindergarten, also at Knox.

Mrs. Stromlund stated that she enjoys being "just a housewife". During her spare time, she knits, sews and works in her flower garden. She said that she makes most of her daughters' dresses. She also enjoys helping in church work.

The family attends services at the Assemblies of God tabernacle.

the school board I will serve as a fair, impartial member for all the people of the district, not a vestpocket member for special interests or pressure groups.

In past board and committee experience I am tenacious about objectives and goals. I stick to issues, don't hold grudges or engage in feuds, am not easily rattled nor angered. I may disagree with someone's methods or ideas but I don't disagree or get disagreeable with that person. That's why my campaign theme is: CAUTION—HUMAN BEINGS HERE—HANDLE WITH CARE."

The Big Issue as I see it is taxes and quality education, or What Are We Getting For What We've Put In? I am in agreement with most of the basic questions raised by the Taxpayers' Association, and I am in sympathy with most of their stated objectives.

Nearly $4.1 million was the school budget for 1970-71. Every cent of that is taxpayers' money: 49 per cent from local real estate taxes, 45.5 per cent from state of Minnesota, 2.8 per cent from Pennington county and 2.5 per cent from the federal government. Put another way, of all the city taxes levied on real property, 61.2 per cent of the mill rate levy in Thief River Falls went for school purposes, with about 75 per cent of the rural mill rate levy going for School District 564. An excellent question for us and all other taxpayers: What Are We Getting For What We've Put In?

Cool heads, imaginative planning are needed on the school board to attempt to do more and better with the same amount of tax dollars. Too much of the local school support is being placed on real property—unfair and unjust. However, this is not just a local problem for Thief River Falls, but a statewide problem of tax structure, until the state legislature puts a broader, more equitable tax base under public education. Until then I will make every effort to hold the line of real property tax levies, continue and intensify cost accounting procedures, stop deficit spending and intra-fund borrowing, and will stress careful management and fiscal responsibility.

As a school board member I will constantly ask quality of education questions:

(1) Where are we now? Where do we want to be? Is what we are doing helping us get there? For example, the school district has a director of special education. Great! What has he learned about the district's needs through his visits with the special ed classes? It is faulty sense of priorities, for example, to spend 75 minutes discussing what kinds of tires, buses or louvered doors to buy, but pass on the $4.1 million school budget in a half hour.

(2) Full sharing the communication with the people of the school district is a must. From the superintendent's office, the board must insist that there flow a steady stream of straight-forward, accurate information. A school budget of the size of ours needs to be shared, merchandised, explained as it develops. Quality education happens in a community climate of trust. I won't con people, but will stress full communication.

(3) Individualize instruction. Keep a view of the potential of the individual. Children even in the same family are all different, so schools should not turn them out like sausage factory products. I will work for more screening of children and attention to readiness factors. I will ask, what are we teaching for all kids? Must all read Shakespeare in 9th grade, for example?

(4) Work for departmentalizing. The athletic department and counseling department are already set up this way. Team leaders for 4-6 teachers could help teachers account for what they are doing, and would be one structure to beef up teacher review.

My community service includes president of Knox PTA, Concert Association board since 1966, TRF Library board since 1969, formerly on board of NW Council on Alcohol problems, president and secretary of TRF Ministerial association, member of Lions club. I have four children, three in Knox and Franklin schools, and am a concerned taxpayer who cares deeply for his community and its school system.

made for salary increases for teachers' employment in the past three years, and I don't think that we will in the future. We are making substantial payments now for teachers' salaries, which have been made on the basis that the teacher is one year older, rather than upon a merit system. The salary schedule itself has a built-in increment, whereby each teacher receives a salary increase periodically without a new contract. The increment itself is substantial, and because large salary increases have been made without regard to merit, it has resulted in a huge tax being inflicted upon the taxpayers of the school district, and any future payment increases should be severely restricted.

The teachers are working less than nine months per year for their salary, and I believe that an eight-hour day, 40-hour week is a minimum requirement. In view of the economic conditions resulting from the oppressive property taxes in the school district, I believe that a 40-hour week should be a must for any teacher who intends to teach in this school system.

With a teacher's time fully utilized, there is no need for any teachers aides and I will propose that the position be completely abolished. They don't possess the training or the education to perform teachers' duties. With complete utilization of the teacher's time, I believe it may be possible to cut back other personnel, including teachers.

New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles and smaller affluent suburban areas have proposed substantial cuts in their number of teachers. The same possibility should be explored in our school system. I believe that consideration of the budget should include an evaluation of every position in the school system, to determine if they are absolutely necessary, rather than continue the position because there happens to be an employee, a teacher or principal in the position at the present time.

I would suggest that there should be a study of the use of television, which is being used in a number of school systems at the present time, to both upgrade the educational quality and eliminate personnel.

To improve the quality of the educational system, I believe that it is mandatory that we formulate and insist upon an evaluation program. The success of the school system depends upon the quality of the teachers. In view of the fact that the teacher has "tenure" which permits the teacher to continue until retirement in the position, regardless of ability, after a probationary period of two years, it is essential that an evaluation program be instituted to effectively evaluate each teacher to determine which ones are the best qualified and which should be permitted to obtain a tenure status and continue on in the school.

The evaluation program is particularly desirable in view of the fact that it costs exactly the same amount of money for a poor teacher as it does for a good teacher. In addition, with the annual pay raises being held to an absolute minimum, the money that is not expended for that source could be used to retain and obtain those teachers who have demonstrated above-average ability and dedication to their jobs.

It is the principal's responsibility to properly supervise the teachers as well as the children, and to evaluate the teachers' ability. If he fails to carry out his position in any of these aspects, it is the responsibility of the school board to see that he does.

It is highly desirable to have peace and tranquility in the community, and if it can be attained by agreement within the reasonable terms as outlined herein, every effort should be extended to obtain these ends, but I believe that the school board has the obligation of upholding the position of a governing body of the school district for the people, and that strife and conflict are not justification for acquiescence to pressure groups.

Other memberships include the following organizations: The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lions Club, Eagles, Kem Temple Shrine, Chamber of Commerce, Elks lodge and Lake Agassiz Boy Scout council. My church affiliation is with the Trinity Lutheran church. I was co-chairman of the citizens committee that worked for successful passage of the bond issue for building of the Mark Twain and Ben Franklin schools after the issue had been defeated twice. I worked actively with the junior college action committee and feel that I contributed to the effort which saw the establishment of Northland junior college in Thief River Falls.

We are proud of Thief River Falls and the progress that this fine community has made in recent years. I am now greatly concerned about our future growth if our real estate taxes are permitted to increase at the rate we have experienced in the last several years.

The time has come when we must take an attitude of stopping and looking at the present expenditures. This should involve re-examination of our school system structure including administration, teaching, maintenance, curriculum, transportation, etc. This will require a close study of all budget items and establishment of priorities on existing programs. A strong school board dedicated to keeping local control of budget and policy would be a recommendation. A mill levy increase limit should possibly be considered.

All levels of government spending from local and state to federal will require more interest and attention if spending is to be curtailed. This can possibly be accomplished in our local school district by a closer working relationship between the school board, administrative personnel, teachers and the remainder of school employees.

We want to continue the quality educational programs we have and also assure the taxpayers that every effort is being made to do this at a reasonable cost.

third years. If at all possible, I would like to see some type of merit system where the teacher could negotiate his salary. I honestly feel that there are teachers worth $20,000 a year, but I also think there are teachers with 10 or 12 years of experience who are not worth $5,000.

2. Mod system—Like anything new, it will take time to get all the kinks out, but in the long run, I feel the kids will benefit from this system. For the most part, Thief River Falls has an excellent school system.

3. Teachers' aides—They are necessary in some departments.

My reasons for wanting to be on the school board are not because I have an axe to grind. I do not feel that all of a sudden you can say stop spending money and then expect to have a good school system. It takes money to operate it, and it can be spent wisely.

Although we do not have any children, I am very interested in kids and have been active in youth hockey and baseball programs. I feel that they deserve the best education possible. The values and the attitude that this community and school board have will determine their education.

We have done well in preparing students for college. Now we must also provide adequate vocational training for those students who prefer to seek employment after leaving high school. Some day our vocational school should be able to take all those who wish to enroll and who can profit from its instruction. Many students are not interested in college and we must make an effort to help these people too.

A school system is no better than its teachers and therefore I believe that every effort must be made to secure qualified teachers. By this I mean someone who knows his subject and is able to put it across to the students in a pleasant and interesting manner. While it is true that there is no substitute for experience, a properly supervised beginning teacher can and will do a good job in the classroom.

Even some of our older, more experienced teachers can learn if the school supervisor does his job. By and large our teaching staff is a dedicated group of men and women who want to do a good job. They are depending upon us, the citizens of the community, to provide them with the tools necessary to do that job.

Each student who goes through our school system expects to receive an education that will help him as he grows older. The management of the school has the task of seeing to it that each student receives his share and that all students are treated equitably.

Also the management of a school district is in many ways like that of any business organization. Its purpose is to get the most for each dollar spent.

The school board has the final responsibility for the spending of the tax dollar. The budget is put together by the school staff headed by the superintendent. The school board examines the budget and may change it here and there and then finally adopt it. The school staff is then obligated to stay within that budget.

There are many pressures on the school board to add here and to cut there, but the board must always remember one thing, that while we all want a well rounded, sound instructional program, this program must fall within the ability and willingness of the citizens to pay.

Worth . . .

Missile Base, New Mexico.

Naturally, all candidates want the best possible education for all District No. 564 children. Two of my three daughters haven't even started school yet so my children have a lot at stake. I do feel, however, that we cannot let our school system get to the point where the tax burden for running the system is oppressive.

The school system, of course, takes by far the biggest bite out of our property tax dollar and as we all know, the taxes in Thief River Falls are getting to the point where they are prohibitive. Our tax picture has run people out of town, new people working in the city are living elsewhere and the city is having trouble attracting people and industry.

While I don't propose running the school system exactly as you do a business, certain of the same philosophies and principles have to be applied or the cost of the system can break the back of the community. Each expenditure must be justified in light of the benefit derived. As we all know, those small sums mount up and while each such small expenditure may not put a dent in the budget, together they can spell disaster.

Our administrative costs need to be studied and each expenditure and job carefully analyzed and justified. The budgeted increase in administrative salary, including principals, this year is approximately 40 per cent over the previous year.

I am in favor of paying the good teachers and good administrators an adequate salary, but it cannot get to the point where their pay far exceeds a realistic amount for our community. I am in favor of developing some sort of merit system of compensation, which was brought up during the recent negotiations even though such a system would present some real difficulties in administration. The present teacher pay scales offer no incentives other than to take extra courses.

Unproven or experimental programs should not be tried in a relatively small school system like ours. To do so, we put all our eggs in one basket, while a large school system, with many high schools and junior highs, can select one school to experiment with such a program in order to work out the expensive bugs and prove whether it's worth the cost.

It's easy to fall into the trap of getting used to a "free" program when the federal government supplies the funds—then the federal funds dry up and the program must be financed locally or painfully dropped. While our 1970-71 budgeted expenditures increased $900,000 over the 1969-70 budget, our budgeted increase in state and federal aids over actual receipts for each year is less than $5,000!

The school board needs the public trust and confidence. This can only be done by letting them know what you are doing and why and how it affects their children and pocketbook. If elected, I'm going to ask the media's continued and expanded assistance in helping the school board to more effectively communicate with the public.

The school board in cooperation with the administration, teachers and parents must establish priorities for the school system. Often teachers and parents are not consulted and they obviously have much to contribute—especially in the areas of needs of the children.

Our system and community are going to grow and we need willing, able and, most important, concerned people on our school board.

Burglars Hit Oklee Center

Burglars entered the Oklee Community Center sometime after midnight April 30 after gaining entry by forcing a back door. Very little merchandise was taken, according to manager Bennet Larson, who said the thieves got away with only a few cartons of cigarettes and some candy.

It was believed that the burglars had been scared away before they could take anything else. There were some clear tire tracks left in the ground at the rear of the building, and authorities are following up some other leads.

MSBA Secretary Urges Votes In School Elections

W. A. Wettergren, executive secretary of the Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA), calls attention to May 18 when election to positions on most of Minnesota's public school districts will take place.

"The basis of state and the nation's economy is based on the education of its citizenry and therefore it is important to have responsible persons elected to local boards of education," Wettergren stated.

"School board members in Minnesota," he added, "employ 50,000 teachers and 25,000 non-certificated persons and spend over 650 million dollars annually to provide the best in education." There are over 950,000 pupils enrolled in the state's public schools.

"It is the people," said Wettergren, "who own the schools, who pay for them and who must assume responsibility for the product of the schools. Therefore, the citizens of this state must take responsibility for casting these vital ballots to elect responsible people to serve in this most important position."

Wettergren cited increased militancy of teachers, students and taxpayers, and charges by various self-appointed citizen groups "make it imperative that each citizen exercise the right to vote to insure the election of dedicated persons."

Wettergren urged greater citizen interest, "to prevent a breakdown of the greatest system of education ever devised by man. The election," he concluded, "of that person to the school board who will take responsibility for serving the interest of the public good is most important."

Hallock Church Hosts Lectures About Prophecy

Grace Lutheran church of Hallock will host a series of lectures and discussions on prophecy at 7:30 p.m. May 19-23. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Clarence M. Hanson, who is in charge of the American Lutheran church commission on evangelism ministry to Jewish people.

In preparation for the lecture and discussion series, the public is encouraged to read the book "Late Great Planet Earth" by Hal Lindsey, which is available at religious book stores.

According to the pastors at Grace church, there is a realization on the part of most church people that they know little concerning what the Bible says of prophecy. Because of their lack of knowledge most people have little to say about this Bible subject, the ministers add. The public is invited to attend the series.

At midnight last Friday firemen were called to the Bob Reed trailer home at 824 Reserve Ave. N. where the trailer and two nearby trees were ablaze. Firemen believe the blaze was caused by a cigarette being carelessly flipped away.

across America this country will continue to be the hope of the world."

During the visit Mrs. Nixon was honored as a "Partner in 4-H," the highest award given to civic and business leaders for support of the program. Mrs. Nixon, a former 4-H member, serves as honorary co-chairman of the National 4-H Foundation advisory council. The President and Mrs. Nixon also received personal gifts given on behalf of all 4-H members.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Nixon personally received each delegate in the State Dining Room, where refreshments were served.

From the opening day (April 18) when Connie observed progress on construction of the national 4-H center, an educational complex being expanded to meet increased needs for citizenship and leadership training, to the closing "Clover Ball" Friday night she was busy in meetings and on field trips.

Visits in the nation's capital included a day on Capitol Hill where Connie met senators and congressmen. She ate lunch in the House Restaurant with Bob Bergland, the representative from this area, Rep. John Zwach, Rep. Al Quie, and Rep. Ancher Nelson. Connie said her main impression was that the government isn't as "remote" as it sometimes seems to be.

Delegates also laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers and saw many of Washington's historic sights.

Connie said one of the most interesting features about this year's conference was each delegate's involvement in an advisory group for in-depth discussion of specific areas of concern: respect for others, education, environment, changing lifestyles, and mind and body.

Connie was in the group considering changing lifestyles. The main purpose of this group was to see how 4-H should fit the needs of youth in a world of changing lifestyles, either with entirely new ideas or by expanding the old ones. In addition to discussions, various resource people spoke and a field trip was taken to a coffee house in a poor part of Washington and to Watergate, the most exclusive living residence in the city.

Accompanying the Minnesota delegation to the conference was the state 4-H leader, Leonard Harkness, who not only took part in general sessions but also met with other state and national leaders in special consultation and planning sessions. Minnesota was also privileged to have Ute Wolfhard, a home economist from Germany now participating in a two year work-study program at Glencoe, with the state delegation.

The annual 4-H conference is supervised by the cooperative extension service. It is planned and conducted by the extension service of the U.S. department of agriculture and the National 4-H Foundation, aided by the National 4-H Service committee.

Connie has been a Pennington county 4-H member for nine years and is especially interested in junior leadership, demonstrating and public relations. She is now serving as a Minnesota 4-H Ambassador, one of 31 4-H'ers whose job it is to present 4-H to the public. In this capacity Connie would be happy to speak about this trip or any other area of 4-H, at request.

Connie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hillyer of route 2, Thief River Falls.

The 1971 V.F.W. Buddy Poppy Girl is 11-year-old Betty Jean Davis of the V.F.W. National Home for orphans of deceased veterans at Eaton Rapids Michigan.

CLARA JONES, American Lutheran church missionary to Taiwan, will be guest speaker Sunday, May 16 at 9:30 a.m. at Immanuel Lutheran church in Plummer and at Ebenezer Lutheran church at 11 a.m. She will show slides after a dinner at Ebenezer church and will speak and show slides at the mother-daughter banquet at 7 p.m. She entered mission service in 1938 and is currently spending a one year furlough in St. Paul.

Vicky Erickson To Spend Summer In Europe Visit

Nine young people from Minnesota have been selected to take part in overseas programs beginning this summer, David Pace, assistant state leader, 4-H and youth development at the University of Minnesota, has announced. Among them is Vicky Erickson, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Erickson of Viking.

Miss Erickson will be taking part in the 4-H Teen Caravan, a summer program to give teenagers an opportunity to learn about 4-H in another country.

The Teen Caravaners will live with a host family in one country for about six weeks and spend several weeks on an educational guided tour of nearby countries. Miss Erickson will stay with host families in Austria.

The Teen Caravan is among the international programs conducted by the National 4-H Foundation in behalf of the extension service. Purpose is to increase world understanding at the family level.

Developer Plans Shopping Center Complex For Thief River Falls

Mayor A. E. Jacobson urged that the shopping center be built, saying, "We're not performing our function if we turn it down. It's our duty to develop, grow, and extend the town. Isn't that what the future should be? Anyway, we know that we can't do anything without criticism."

City council president Robert Carlson said that whatever opposition to the shopping center there was would just have to accept the final decision of the council. "I'm also surprised that this group seems so much in favor of the project," he added.

Cowgill said he preferred to have the city council's answer to his proposal that some evening, but was assured that so immediate a reply was impossible, not only for legal reasons but because the city council must hold a May 24 meeting with local property owners to discuss bonding for city improvements.

(The council must hold these hearings as the first step in a long series of legal steps to ensure that bonds can be issued to pay for sewers, streets, and water improvements which have already been petitioned for.)

When non-city council members present earlier were asked to return after the council met privately, the council reported its favorable reaction to the proposal, but with some reservations.

The council said it needed at least a full week to pull figures together to gain a clearer picture of the cost and tax situations, while the 12 directors of the taxpayers association want a meeting tonight (Monday) with the developers, with the association president reiterating the support of his group for the project.

Also present at this meeting will be the city tax assessment committee and the city assessor. Cowgill will also present a set of preliminary plans at this meeting.

Cowgill during the meeting expressed his interest in obtaining some sort of tax relief to defray construction cost and capital outlays, if possible. Various taxing methods were discussed, and the entire matter was kept open for discussion at future meetings. Cowgill also discussed several other financial alternatives open to both the developers and the city.

Car Radios And Tapes May Be Accident Factor

Car radios and sound tape decks may be an important factor in traffic accidents, Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund warned today.

He cited in-depth investigations by a Baylor university team of 42 traffic accidents involving serious and fatal injuries. "The Baylor investigators found that in 31 of the 42 cases, the car radios had been on with the volume turned up high. This led to the question of whether high noise levels of car sound systems, including radios, tape players and rear speakers, are distractions which can cause highway crashes."

The study team drew no conclusions from its observations. Instead it recommended further study and, if a relationship between high volume sound and traffic accidents is established, federal regulations to limit the volume of such systems.

Minnesota's accident records, Hoaglund said, do not carry information about radio volume in relation to accidents. Highway patrol officers, however, have noted that drunken drivers often have their radios at high volume.

Library Offers Clean-up Books To Aid Residents

Books and other material on the do's and don'ts of cleaning, painting and fixing up are available at the public library, according to Mary Croteau, librarian.

A new book list is also ready for distribution that covers the major projects of building and remodeling, smaller home improvements for the handy man or woman, interior decoration and outdoor living and landscaping.

"The Dream House Encyclopedia" by Hubbard H. Cobb explains what you need to know to remodel or fix up farms, barns, vacation cottages or any house you now have. There are 30 chapters of how-to-do-it information, step-by-step illustrations, a cost-finder to estimate what each renovation job will cost, item by item, money saving tips and space planners that show how to fit the furniture and fixtures of any family into any room. An added bonus is 20 case histories of families that remodeled illustrated with before and after photographs.

"The Complete Book of Home Remodeling, Improvement and Repair" by A. M. Watkins is a handbook for the owner who wants to do it right, but doesn't want to do it himself.

"America's Handyman Book" by the staff of the "Family Handyman" magazine is a comprehensive guide to the maintenance of the interior and exterior of the house. The book, illustrated with over 2,000 photographs and diagrams, emphasizes the structure of the house - floors, stairs, walls, ceilings, windows, doors and exterior—and the systems that run through the house—plumbing, electrical and heating.

"Science and Mechanics" has published "Painting and Refinishing", a complete beginners guide on how to paint and refinish house exteriors, interiors, furniture, concrete, cars, boats, swimming pools—or anything that doesn't move!

Landscaping and gardening are important spring activities. "Gardening on Main Street", by Buckner Hollingsworth, is unusual and one of the few books that include fall and winter plans. The author's garden is a 20 by 30 foot city plot in Vermont where winter temperatures reach 20 degrees below zero. The importance to the community of a well landscaped home is emphasized and Mrs. Hollingsworth's garden has become a civic attraction.

"The Care and Feeding of Trees," "How to Prune Almost Everything" and "Gardening and Home Landscaping Guide" are among the many other available books that offer practical advice for homeowners.

Curtis Swanson Receives Award

Curtis Swanson of Thief River Falls Wednesday night received an FFA service award at the University of Minnesota technical college agricultural club's banquet in Crookston.

Dr. Donald Sargeant, chairman of the college agriculture division, was named FFA chapter farmer of the year. John Seibert of Lewisville won the toastmaster of the year award in competition with Neal Wolfe and Kiester and Dallas Asher of Milaca.

Mory Severson On Dean's List

Mary L. Severson of Thief River Falls was among 907 students named to the winter quarter dean's list at St. Cloud state college, according to Dr. Marvin Holmgren, vice president for academic affairs.

Requirements for the dean's list are a minimum of nine credits with an honor point ratio of 3.5 or higher. A 4.0 honor point ratio is equivalent to a straight "A" average.

ARABIC DRESS was worn by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilmot of Minneapolis and their son for their part in leading the offering on "Disaster and Famine Relief" Saturday morning at the Seventh-day Adventist church. Wilmot is secretary-treasurer of the Minnesota conference of Seventh-day Adventists and was here with his family to participate in dedication of the new church built by the local congregation.

90 Per Cent Of Samples Show Intoxication

Of the 822 blood and urine samples submitted by law enforcement officers for determination of alcohol content during the first three months of 1971, 90 per cent tested .10 per cent or higher, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund reported today.

Under Minnesota law, .10 per cent of alcohol in the blood is prima facie evidence of intoxication.

Under a project with 50 per cent federal highway safety funding, law enforcement agencies may submit blood and urine samples to the crime bureau laboratory for analysis at no charge. These are samples collected from persons suspected of driving while under the influence.

A preponderance of the violators had been drinking heavily, with over 500 of the total tested showing blood-alcohol levels of between .15 and .24 per cent. For the average 170-pound person, from 11 to 19 or more drinks must be consumed to reach these levels.

The crime laboratory tests account for about a third of the drunken driving cases in the state. The greater part of the other cases rely on breathalyzer analysis for evidence of alcohol. Minneapolis and St. Paul police are large users of the breatholyzer. Breathalyzers, now in use at 57 locations throughout the state, are serviced by the crime bureau.

A study of the findings by laboratory technicians also showed that the highest number of samples came from 25 to 34 year-old drivers, and the highest number of arrests were made between midnight and 3 a.m.

Many Pedestrian Accidents Happen During Spring

May brings out many more pedestrians. It also brings a large increase in pedestrian traffic accidents and fatalities, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund warned today.

He urged parents of small children especially to counsel with them about the hazards of playing along roadsides and in the streets.

"Last May, half of the 14 pedestrian fatalities were children under 10 years of age. Four of these lost their lives while playing in the roadway, or dashing into it. Others were crossing elsewhere than at a crosswalk or intersection.

"Children should be cautioned to enter a roadway only at intersections or marked crosswalks, and then only after carefully checking to see that the way is clear. They should be warned not to take it for granted that a driver will see them and stop. The driver in each of last year's tragedies said that he did not see the child until it appeared directly in front of his vehicle.

"Children should be warned to watch especially for cars turning into the roadway they are crossing. Drivers often do not see such pedestrians until it is too late."

Michigan Dep't. Calls For Ban On Studded Tires

Minnesota highway department was notified today that the Michigan state highway commission has called for a ban on the use of studded tires on Michigan highways.

The commission's position was based on an extensive research project which showed that snow tires equipped with metal studs cause extensive damage to highway surfaces and, most of the time, provide less safety protection than standard tires.

The commission asked the legislature to repeal a 1967 law which permits use of studded tires in Michigan from November 1 through April 30.

In recommending the ban, Michigan state highway director Henrick E. Stafseth referred to the studies conducted for the Minnesota highway department by the American Oil company research and development laboratory in Whiting, Ind. and the Cornell aeronautical laboratory at Buffalo, N.Y.

Referring to the above studies, Stafseth said, "studded tires wear down roadway surfaces approximately 100 times as fast as unstudded tires, and on bare pavements, use of studded tires reduces vehicle performance."

The Canadian province of Ontario has outlawed the studded tires effective April 30.

Further permission for the use of the studded tires in Minnesota will be decided by the current session of the Minnesota legislature.

Portable Radio Best Tornado Warning Device

Rely on your portable radio if a tornado is expected rather than trying to "tune in" the twister on your television set, advises Earl Kuehnast (Kee-naat), state climatologist for the national weather service.

If a tornado is expected to develop in your area, keep your radio on and listen for weather advisories, he said. Most Minnesota tornadoes generally occur from May through July. Southern Minnesota receives about four times as many tornadoes as the northern half of the state.

Kuehnast, stationed at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, advised Minnesotans that listening to a portable radio for weather advisories is a more reliable means to keep alert to major storm movements than trying to "tune in" a tornado on a television set via the Newton Weller system.

Under the Weller system, residents in an area where a tornado is expected adjust and set their television sets as prescribed, then wait for a steady glow on their screens. According to the system's proponents, lack of a steady glow probably means that there will not be a tornado in the immediate area.

But the Weller system hasn't been proven, Kuehnast said. It may be one way to detect a tornado, but some storms don't show up as glows on television screens, he added. Research is underway to determine why the television screen glows during some twisters and not during others.

Tornadoes that cause the TV screen to glow have been observed on the ground, but some ground tornadoes don't cause the glow. "We don't know what causes the glow, but there is the possibility that charged dust particles in the tornado could be a factor," Kuehnast said.

The national weather service is calling for volunteers to help evaluate the Weller system. Interested persons are urged to contact Kuehnast.

Tornado and severe weather watches and warnings are issued and transmitted by the weather service over weather wire teletypes located in radio and television stations, newspapers, news wire services, public agencies and public utilities.

State Inventor Congress Set At Redwood Falls

Redwood Falls is preparing for the 14th annual Minnesota Inventors Congress to be held June 11-13. One of the state's truly unique events, it is the largest and oldest continuous congress of its kind in the country.

Aside from its appeal as a tourist attraction—more than 10,000 people attended last year—the event has created jobs and spurred the growth of whole new industries. The Minnesota department of economic development conducted a recent survey which showed that 221 jobs now exist as a direct result of developing products exhibited at past shows.

Significantly, nearly half of these jobs are outside the state, which is one reason the department is making an effort to get Minnesotans themselves aware of the manufacturing potential offered by new inventions.

To this end, the department will distribute to manufacturers and local industrial development corporations, an illustrated brochure showing the inventions and their applications. It is hoped that the brochure will stimulate more interest in these products on the part of Minnesota manufacturers.

The number of exhibits at Minnesota Inventors Congress averages a hundred a year. Many, such as the collapsible travel trailer now made by Rollite Corporation of Wisconsin, owe their success to the showcase provided by the congress.

Buddy Poppies Will Be Sold Here This Week

Veterans of Foreign Wars Buddy poppies will be sold in Thief River Falls on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, according to information received from VFW Post 2793 in Thief River Falls.

Mayor A. E. Jacobson has proclaimed the poppy sale dates and urged community participation through the purchase of the paper flowers. He noted "the sacrifices of those who have lost their lives, their health or their livelihood as a result of their military service" and added that the poppy sale "offers an opportunity for the people of this community to express their solicitude for those unfortunate persons who have paid more than their share of the cost of freedom".

"I urge all patriotic citizens to wear a Buddy Poppy as mute evidence of our gratitude to the men of this country who have risked or lost their lives in fulfilling their obligations as American citizens," Mayor Jacobson said.

Buddy poppies are assembled by disabled veterans and the proceeds of the sale are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans. "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living" is the theme of the poppy sale.

Senator Retire?

A recent Associated Press report from St. Paul indicates that Sen. Donald Sinclair of Stephen, dean of the state senate, may retire after this legislative session.

"When you get to my age, there's that possibility," Sen. Sinclair is quoted as saying. "I haven't made any commitments, I'll put it that way. I don't think it's advisable to make a decision one way or the other at this stage of the game."

That's about as non-commital a statement as anyone can make, but AP was still able to angle the story toward likely retirement. At 72, the senator has served 24 years in the legislature and has certainly earned the choice of deciding not to run again. If that is indeed his choice, this district and Northwestern Minnesota will lose much of its influence in the state's legislative halls.

We believe Sen. Sinclair is one of the best testimonies against party designation in the state legislature. A conservative throughout his legislative career, the senator has been a Democrat much of his life and has never considered himself a Republican. Proponents of party designation are in haste to say that Conservatives and Liberals are only respective synonyms for Republicans and Democrats.

According to the AP story, Sen. Sinclair considers himself a Jeffersonian Democrat. "I'm certainly Jeffersonian to the extent that I don't like to see government expanded any more than it has to be. I don't want to see governmental costs going any higher than absolutely necessary. Most people think that, of course, but I think my record kind of indicates that," he said.

The logical question next arises: "If Sinclair doesn't run for reelection, who will be a candidate for senator from this district?"

First look goes to the incumbent representatives in the state House, Rep. Richard Fitzsimons of Warren and Rep. Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls. Both are quite solidly entrenched with the voters in their respective districts and hold down key positions in the House of Representatives. For either to seek the senate and start the climb for seniority all over again seems quite unlikely.

The district has at least three former legislators who come to mind as possible candidates. Harveydale Maruska of Warren is a former state senator who retired from state politics at an early age but may be interested again. Victor Johnson of Lake Bronson lost a House post through reapportionment of his district but has never lost his interest in political activities. Everett Batties of Warroad also lost a legislative post when his district was combined with that of Rep. Skaar.

There are other people within the district who were unsuccessful in prior campaigns against the incumbents but who may have made enough contacts through that experience to merit a try for a vacant office.

Whatever happens or whoever succeeds Sen. Sinclair when his office does become vacant, Northwestern Minnesota will do well to find someone as able as our present senator. In the day of the politician, he ranks as a true statesman in the highest sense of the word.

What Kind Of Person?

The following editorial is from the Kittson County Enterprise:

Our television and our newspapers have been chuck full of the recent efforts of a few to close down our nation's capitol by blocking roads with their bodies, harrassing police and rioting. As always, after such an event the question is inevitably asked, "What makes a person act that way?" A man by the name of Christopher Dafoe has this to say:

"I give you Simon Twang, man of the future. Simon is just 20 and he had the good fortune to be born to parents with progressive ideas. From the day of Simon's birth the senior Twangs did everything they could to foster the development of his personality. Mrs. Twang, who had read somewhere that children should never be crossed, made a policy from the beginning of giving her baby everything he wanted. When baby Simon cried, he was picked up. If he wanted to be bounced at three o'clock in the morning he was bounced.

"Early on, Simon developed a yen to destroy property and the Twangs looked on helplessly as pages were ripped from almost every book in the library and the contents of Mrs. Twang's kitchen cupboards were scattered over the pantry floor. Mrs. Twang looked it up in the baby book and was relieved to discover that her son was simply asserting himself.

"Once, while Simon was pouring floor wax into the fish tank, Mr. Twang moved to restrain him, but a stern look from his consort saved the day and Simon's developing personality emerged unscathed.

"When Simon was four the Twangs were thrilled to discover that their child was artistic. A picture that Simon drew of a man with arms and legs growing out of his head was proudly displayed to friends and relatives and Simon was packed off to junior art classes.

"He was also sent to ballet lessons, music (the Orff method), child drama workshops, and an infant yoga class. That kept him out of the house for most of the week. Saturday he stayed home and watched Batman on television.

"Kindergarten was a real problem. Exceptional children need special treatment and the Twangs knew that a conventional kindergarten would not do. Simon was finally sent to Mrs. Shafter's, a progressive kindergarten where the children were left to be creative in a soundproof room while Mrs. Shafter and her staff observed them through bulletproof glass.

"And then it was time for school. The Twangs had a terrible time convincing Simon's teachers that he was an exceptional child. A Miss Groundswackle, the Grade 1 teacher, had the effrontery to tell them that Simon was simply "average." It wasn't until she had had her first nervous breakdown that Miss Groundswackle was willing to admit that Simon was special.

"Simon's school carreer was spectacular. He didn't exactly shine as a student, but he left his mark on the school system nonetheless. By the time he graduated he had driven 14 high school teachers to drink, three principals had opted for early retirement, and an art teacher had been jailed on a charge of assault and battery.

"Simon is now out in the world making a place for himself. His parents, I regret to say, seldom see him, but they did spot him in a news photograph last week. He was taking part in a demonstration demanding free and automatic university degrees for all. Simon was clearly visible in the lower right hand corner of the picture. He was throwing a Molotov cocktail through a library window. The Twangs are having the picture framed."

Exporting Opportunity

The following appeared in the Executive Digest of the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry:

A Minnesota employer cannot create new jobs unless he is able to expand his markets and increase his sales—and he cannot do either unless the price of his product is competitive with the prices of similar products manufactured elsewhere.

This was brought forcibly to the attention of Minnesotans (including Governor Anderson) by William Norris, chairman and president of Control Data corporation. At a news conference, Mr. Norris revealed that the governor's proposal to impose the business inventory tax would cost the company an additional $6 million a year. It was pointed out that this would place CDC in an unfortunate competitive position which might force the company to reexamine its future in Minnesota.

The possibility of losing 12,000 jobs is a sobering thought. Control Data didn't make an idle threat. It was telling a simple economic truth.

Thus, while the governor may deny that his budget is anti-business in intent, it certainly can be in result, as the Control Data figures demonstrate. If a home-based company is faced with such alternatives, what indeed will be the position of a national corporation which has a branch plant in Minnesota? Its reasons to remain here can be less compelling than in the case of a home-grown industry.

One wonders how the state AFL-CIO, which endorsed the governor's budget pretty much down the line, would explain its position to thousands of workers whose jobs were "exported" to another state where the tax climate is more congenial for job creation.

Interesting Opinions

"In relation to their systems most systematizers are like a man who builds an enormous castle and lives in a shack close by; they do not live in their own enormous systematic buildings. Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Sitting through the Lincoln high band concert last night I suddenly realized that this will be the last time our daughter will be playing in a high school concert with all of her friends together.

I am sure she is as sad about it as I am and we would like to take this opportunity to thank the Thief River Falls school system and all the fine teachers for the very best education our daughter has received.

Thank you,
Mrs. Chester Carlson
811 North Atlantic
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sirs:

When seeking the truth on any subject, isn't it better to go directly to the source? The Morman Church holds services every Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m. in the basement of the auditorium building. Anyone and everyone is always welcome.

Sincerely,
Diane Bremley

notes from the governor

Throughout my campaign, in my inaugural address and in a subsequent special message, I stated that protection and preservation of our environment would be a priority goal of my administration.

Last week, the Minnesota legislature tested the priority I attach to environmental issues by approving a bill giving pipeline companies authority to condemn private land.

I feel strongly, along with many others, that the right of eminent domain is a public power, a power that should not be delegated to private interests.

The ease with which the pipeline bill won legislative approval was in sharp contrast with the reception accorded many environmental bills of more general—and urgent—nature.

Although the bill has passed the legislature, you may rest assured it will not become law unless certain safeguards are provided to protect the public interest.

I have asked authors of the pipeline bill to delay sending it to my desk. I have advised them that I will veto their bill unless another proposal passes.

The latter bill provides for review by state agencies of the environmental impact of proposed pipelines, power lines and other projects involving exercise of eminent domain.

The action taken in this matter will, I believe, prove to be in the public interest.

I believe we must be willing to take such steps if progress is to be made in the environmental area. I believe the time has passed when our people will settle for anything less from elected public officials.

Department of Economic Development

Minnesota is for the birds—or to put it another way, it is a haven for winged creatures as well as for the bird lovers who delight in watching them.

Bird watchers are not a peculiar breed; they can be school children, community leaders, clergymen, educators or anyone else who has discovered that bird watching is as exciting and satisfying as landing a big walleye or bagging a limit of grouse.

Unlike those whose recreational interests fall in the more accepted and distinctive forms, bird lovers do not require expensive equipment to enjoy their pastime. Instead, they equip themselves with little more than picture reference books, a pair of binoculars, and maybe a camera.

May is one of the best times to go "birding" in Minnesota. The bright sunny days favor the northward movement of migratory birds such as meadowlarks, bluebirds, killdeer and even kingfishers and great blue herons.

Among the most colorful and exciting birds to watch, in that they migrate in fantastic numbers through the woodlands, are the warblers. Forty species of warblers have been found in Minnesota—all small, brightly-colored and migrating together.

The colors exhibited by these birds range from the green, gray and white of the Tennessee Warbler to the black and red-orange of the Redstart; from the yellow, black and white of the Magnolia Warbler to the uncommon blue of the Cerulean Warbler.

Nesting habits of the various species vary from nests on the ground, in bushes, treetops and even in tree cavities. Their songs are thin, piping and high-pitched. Such characteristics, however, become of interest to more advanced birdwatchers. The beginner may find it perfectly satisfying to just look and appreciate these feathery packets of color, in addition to getting out in Minnesota's woods and meadows.

So why not try this healthy and fascinating hobby? Enjoy Minnesota and its endless spectacle of birds.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

With just a little over three weeks left in the session, the legislature is in high gear finishing the work left to be done.

The education division of the House appropriations committee has held meetings into the "wee hours" making its bill ready to present to the full appropriations committee, and by the time you read this, all four divisions of appropriations—education, welfare, state departments and buildings—will have presented their recommendations to the full committee. At that point, the programs will again be reviewed and, if necessary, amended, and then be sent on to the full House for consideration.

Over in the Senate, the same procedure is being followed, and after the Senate Finance Committee has heard the different proposals, and amended any portions of the bills it deems necessary, the full Senate will consider the recommendations made by the finance committee.

The next step to be taken will be that of the conference committee meetings. Members of the House and the Senate will sit down and compare the recommendations made by both the House and the Senate in the eight different areas, and finally end up with eight bills to present to the governor for signature.

There will be bills in the areas of state government, which includes salaries, office expenses and other expenditures necessary for the efficient operation over the next two years; welfare and corrections, for the support and maintenance of all state penal and charitable institutions including all state institutions with the exception of educational; state educational, which appropriates money for the support and maintenance of the schools in the state—from kindergarten to college; claims, which allows for the payment of claims against the state which have been authorized by the House and the Senate; semi-state activities, which covers appropriations made to aid in the maintenance of operations such as state and county fairs; buildings, which covers the cost of construction and major rehabilitation of public buildings, and includes the sale of bonds for those buildings expected to last for several decades; a repair bill which covers the costs of repair and minor rehabilitation of public buildings; and the highway bill. These are the areas of expenditure of state moneys which ensures the operation of the whole and state government for the next two years.

At first glance, this may seem to be a slow process, and it is, but not without good reason. By the system of careful checking and cross-checking, the people of this state are assured that their money is not being spent foolishly. From the first testimony received to the final moment when the bill is signed by the governor, those of us who have been elected to represent you are giving close scrutiny to the requests made for your tax dollars.

At this point the House appropriations committee has cut approximately $200 million dollars from the budget that was proposed by the governor. After the differences in the House and Senate bills have been resolved in conference I am confident that we will come up with a budget substantially lower than that which was proposed by the governor. I trust that this budget will fill the needs of the people for the coming biennium and that we will be able to come up with a tax package that will fund this proposed budget for the coming two years.

John Williamson of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Knute Knutson were afternoon visitors Sunday at the Mrs. Gunhild Knutson home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Green of Grafton were guests Wednesday at the Manvel Moe home. They also visited with Percy Nabben at the Oakland Park Nursing home in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Amanda Torgerson and Mrs. Jarvis Torgerson, Debbie and Lisa were visitors Thursday at the John Uggerud home in Thief River Falls.

Students At U of M Develop Curriculum On The Environment

"Everyone is concerned about the environment and we asked ourselves what we could do if we had the money," said Gregg Shadduck, describing how the "Student-Originated Studies" project began at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities campus.

Shadduck, a university junior interested in elementary education, is the student director of the project, recently funded by a $19,150 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF).

Shadduck first learned of the NSF "student-originated studies" program last fall. It has two objectives: to encourage college students to find ways of improving the environment and to provide support for students who wish to play a significant role in determining their own educational development. All projects in the program are student-originated, student-planned and student-directed.

In October, Shadduck and three friends at the university, Richard Dinter, Jim Colwell and Beth Waterhouse, got together to work out a project proposal.

Education The Best Way

"With our varied backgrounds—two of us were in education, one in English and one in premed—we tried to think of ways we could help people learn about the environment and ecology. We discussed various methods and approaches and decided that education was the best way to reach and inform people," said Shadduck. Five other students also joined the group.

Part of the NSF grant will go to pay the nine students for 12 weeks' work this summer developing an environment curriculum for secondary schools.

"Our curriculum will be a package of environmental studies blocks," said Shadduck. "Each block will focus on a single environment topic and will include physical resource materials for the high school teacher and students." The students are considering developing nine blocks which, when used together, would be a nine-week course. The blocks could also be used independently and incorporated into a variety of already existing courses, such as biology, chemistry and the social sciences.

"For the student, we envision each block containing position papers, in-depth background information, and suggestions for activities to be pursued," said Shadduck.

"Included for the teacher will be guide to the content of the block, suggestions of relevant activities or studies in the community, and suggestions for individual and group activities and inquiries."

The students also anticipate compiling a resource guide—an annotated bibliography of environmental books, journals, and reading materials and reviews of such resources as tapes, films, places to visit, and relevant agencies and industries. They hope an environmental studies library will be established in each school using the curriculum.

Minnesota Problems

According to the proposal, the individual blocks would focus on different environmental problems in Minnesota. "There are characteristic problems such as use of biocides and fertilizers, feed-lot waste disposal, urban transportation, urban planning, power generation, and industrial waste disposal. The blocks will focus on such problems in local settings."

"What is central to our program is the realization that there is not just one approach to environmental studies, nor a limited scope to content matter," Shadduck said. "We are trying to show that there are many approaches and that the subject matter cuts across all levels and areas of society."

According to Alan Humphreys, associate professor of education, "Approximatley 560 student proposals were submitted to the NSF and only 103 were funded. Most dealt with clearly scientific approaches to solving environmental problems—this was one of two related to curriculum development."

"This student proposal is an attempt to bring about changes with a system," Humphreys says. "The program may turn out not to be the best way, but it is an alternative to what exists."

Humphreys, who has developed elementary and secondary school science curricula and has worked with the NSF, is the project adviser, selected by the students. "The project will have the students examining positions and sharing ideas—their ideas, not mine," he said.

Sociology and Politics

One of the students' ideas is that the study of ecology involves study in diverse fields. As a result, the blocks will include such topics as sociology, economics and politics, as well as biology, chemistry and other "hard" sciences. As planned, the study units would help students "see a situation as a part of a larger system, engage in systematic collection and treatment of data, develop analytical models, and propose multiple solutions to problems," according to their proposal.

Responses to the student program have been good. The state departments of conservation and education, the Environmental Science Center in Golden Valley, University of Minnesota faculty members, and high school teachers and students have agreed to act as consultants or advisers. Letters were sent to 40 high schools in the Twin Cities and suburbs informing them of the project and 30 responded favorably.

It is proposed that six high schools use the developed curriculum in a pilot study during the 1971-72 school year, conducting ongoing evaluation during that period. Should the program prove valuable, it is proposed that revisions and improvements could be made by another group of students or by the Minnesota Environmental Education Steering Committee of the Minnesota Department of Education, or both.

Vietnam Vets Receive Letters About Benefits

A total of 45,187 Vietnam era veterans living in the St. Paul Veterans administration area have received personalized letters from the VA telling about benefits available to them.

The St. Paul VA center at the new federal building at Fort Snelling covers most of Minnesota. Nationally, 2.5 million of the 4.0 million Vietnam era veterans have received such letters since the VA inaugurated this personalized service three years ago.

John R. Murphy, director, said his office gives special attention to the 4,216 area veterans who do not have a high school diploma. The St. Paul area rate of 9.3 per cent for "educationally disadvantaged" veterans is a nationwide "low". The national average is 12.6 per cent.

The special effort made by the St. Paul office for those lacking a high school education, Murphy said, includes three follow-up letters and, at times, phone calls and personal visits.

He said that in addition to assisting veterans take advantage of appropriate educational help, medical benefits, home loans, GI insurance privileges, compensation and pension, the St. Paul office also seeks to help veterans find jobs, even though job-placement is not part of VA's primary responsibility in veterans' affairs.

Murphy urged interested veterans to phone 725-4100, or visit the VA office at the Fort Snelling federal building between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to make sure they are fully aware of the benefits available to them.

Bergland Named To Committee On Small Business

Congressman Bob Bergland has been appointed to the select committee of small business of the U.S. House of Representatives, it was announced today by House Speaker Carl Albert. Bergland's duties on the small business committee, which begin immediately, will be in addition to his position on the House agriculture committee.

In making the appointment, Speaker Albert said: "During the 3½ short months Representative Bergland has served in Congress, he has become recognized as a leading authority on the problems of rural America. Since small businesses join agriculture in forming the backbone of our rural areas, Congressman Bergland's knowledge and concern will be a most valuable asset to the committee."

Bergland replaces Rep. Wright Patman, a 40-year veteran from Texas, who resigned in order to devote more time to the banking and currency committee which he chairs.

The select committee on small business, made up of 15 members of the House, was formed to study and investigate the problems of small businesses and recommends legislation to aid the small businessman. The committee also oversees government agencies to determine whether or not they adequately serve small business interests.

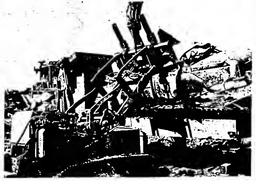
Mandts Return From Trip Won For Feed Use

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Mandt of Oklee recently returned from Bermuda where they attended the Ralston Purina chairman's honor council ceremony as a selected dealer. They were awarded the trip for having the largest increase in feed tonnage in the Minneapolis area.

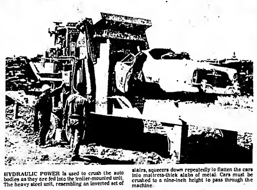
Local spokesmen for the company noted that the Mandts operate one of the largest poultry operations in Minnesota with annual production of 500,000 started pullets and owning and contracting over 240,000 layers. They also have an interest in two other Minnesota hatcheries and have other business interests in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Mandt were also honored in Minneapolis in December as the company's "Tonnage Kings" in the Minneapolis area which includes all of Minnesota and North Dakota and parts of South Dakota and Wisconsin.

DISCARDED AUTOS create an unsightly appearance anywhere they are, as illustrated in this photo. What to do with the bodies after they are stripped of all useful parts becomes a community problem in almost every community. For one answer, see page



ONE ANSWER to the problem lies in this portable car-crushing unit. One of the junked cars is shown being loaded onto the apron of the crusher with the use of a crawler tractor and loader.



HYDRAULIC POWER is used to crush the auto bodies as they are fed into the trailer-mounted unit. The heavy steel unit, resembling an inverted set of stairs, squeezes down repeatedly to flatten the cars into mattress-thick slabs of metal. Cars must be crushed to a nine-inch height to pass through the machine.

ONCE FLATTENED by the machine, car bodies are piled nearby to await loading on a semi trailer for shipment to Winnipeg. The Canadian city has a recycling plant where the metals in the car bodies can be re-used. With operations complete where three Times photos were taken south of East First street, the unit will now be moved to Peterson Auto Wrecking south of the city.

Fire Hazards In Home Listed

Spring into action against fire hazards now that Spring clean up time is here is advice of state fire protection authorities as they lead efforts to keep every home free from dangerous and destructive fires.

"Trash and rubbish are the breeding place for about 50,000 fires which destroy or damage American homes each year," says State Fire Marshal Patrick Barry, quoting statistics compiled by the National Fire Protection association.

A five-point program for Spring Clean up action has been issued by the association and is guaranteed to remove most of the common causes of fire in the home:

Clean out stacks of newspapers and magazines, discarded clothing, mattresses, old furniture and lamp shades, draperies, and any clutter that collects in attics, basements, and closets.

Do the same clean up job in the home workshop, getting rid of shavings, scraps, oily rags and old paints.

Don't forget about trash accumulating in the garage, and the dead grass and brush around and near the house. It should be disposed of immediately.

Repair defective electrical cords and plugs, check all home appliances and call a competent electrician if they need attention.

Have the furnace, chimney and stoves inspected and cleaned. Do it now instead of waiting for Fall when you might be caught by the first cold snap.
